Religion and Litvinoff.
Very Many String Beans.
He Gassed the Hens.
The Cross Was Roman.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 16.

OUR GOVERNMENT tells Litvinoff that before we resume friendly relations with Russia she must agree to let visiting Americans do as they please about religion.

Our attitude toward Russia is a little like "God Almighty to a black beetle," but Litvinoff is here on business, and will not reply as he might:

"You may worship anything you choose in Russia if you will let Russians worship Lenin in the United States."

Lenin is the one Russian divinity, and Marx is his prophet, but we wouldn't allow Russians to worship him publicly here or praise his theories.

A fair compromise would allow anybody to worship anything he liked, privately, as early Christians did in the catacombs.

In Marco Polo you read about the Asiatic ruler "Khan Grande," who, according to Coleridge, "did a stately pleasure-dome decree" and, permitting all religions in his dominions, would not allow Christian processions to carry the cross showing Christ upon it.

He said he could not permit one so holy to be "thus humiliated and degraded in public."

THE UPPER Everglades, north of here, described by inhabitants as "the source of the nation's supply of string beans," are now shipping as many as one hundred and twenty-five carloads of beans to northern markets daily, certainly a great many string beans.

Charles R. Barfield, who sends the information with a cordial invitation to visit the string bean country, is editor of the Pahokee "News and Philosophy."

The ideal editor is one who gives you plenty of news, and sound, but not too much philosophy.

POULTRYMEN found their chickens stolen in the morning and wondered why the hens failed to "squawk" and save themselves, as the geese saved Rome.

The secret is out, and Mr Walter Malone is in jail to stay one year, admitting that before he entered the hen house he sprayed the interior with gas that put the hens to sleep.

Had he done that to a thousand Germans in the war, and brought them in dead or alive, he might have had a Congressional medal. Now he gets a year in jail. So much depends on why and where.

GERMANY WOULD reform religion. One powerful Hitler authority in Protestantism says crucifixes must be removed from churches, because they represent the idea of an alien people. Also the "Nazi Christian" leader says:

"The Old Testament must be excluded and palpably superstitious parts of the New Testament must be stricken out. The holy places of Palestine must not be visited, but, instead, those of Germany."

THE EDUCATED are too intelligent to imagine that the crucifix has anything to do with the Jewish people; it was a Roman institution, as many Christian martyrs crucified in Rome learned to their sorrow.

Rome ruled in Jerusalem when the crucifixion took place and Roman officials brought the use of the cross with them.

Jewish law inflicted death by stoning, more democratic because it gave each member of the mob an opportunity to express actively his individual dislike of the victim.

A NICE old hymn began, "Wonderful things in the Bible I see," and went on to tell of the most remarkable, "That Jesus loves me."

It would have been well had Bible students interested themselves only in its beauty and kindness. Unfortunately many false interpretations have been made.

Here, a citizen doubtless demented, accused of conspiring with two friends to murder Mayor Sewell and Commissioner Fossey "with a rubber hammer," said to his friend who protested:

"You get a Bible and I will show you that God's word says Sewell and Fossey should be killed."

Dreadful use has been made of Bible words falsely interpreted. Thousands of miserable old women, men and even children guilty of no crime have been done to death by torture, because it says in the Bible:

"Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live."

And there are no witches, and never were any.

MISS MARY M'CORMIC, grand opera singer, getting rid of her husband, "Prince Mdivani," of Georgia, Russia, says her marriage was a "noble experiment," but failed. Others would find a better adjective to describe the experiment.

The same prince had married a Polish moving picture star, Pola Negri, who ought to understand foreigners. Her "experiment" didn't work, either.

There are three Mdivani princes, all of Georgia, Russia, and all, in the opinion of ladies, "easy to look at."

One recently married the daughter of the five and ten-cent king, who, this week, celebrated her 21st birthday, gained possession of a fortune called "close to one hundred million dollars."

You need not be a Cagliostro, or any kind of astrologer, to know that there was a lucky star over Georgia, Russia, when

BRIDE HEARS MAN ADMIT FRAUDS

Loyal to Bridegroom Balked at Suicide Over Bogus Checks

A bride of 10 days today found herself married to a man who admitted writing and passing 30 or more worthless checks.

Her hopes shattered, Anna Mae Hackett comely stenographer, sat alongside her husband in the Detective Bureau and watched him list the occasions upon which he had passed worthless checks to a dozen or more merchants.

But she told detectives that, regardless of his guilt, she would stand by her husband, Harry Swiger, 34—the husband who, in his cell last Saturday whote his will, then tried to end his life because he felt he had disgraced his bride.

UTENSILS RECLAIMED

It was a trying day throughout for the young bride. Earlier detectives had visited her new home in Kaercher street, Hazelwood, and reclaimed a frying pan and a coffee pot which they said had been bought on a worthless check.

They said, too, they were convinced that Mrs. Swiger knew nothing of her husband's activities.

In the cellroom will, Swiger wrote affectionately of his bride.

WILL NAMES BRIDE

On two old theater passes he scribbled in pencil:

"Last will and testament of Harry Swiger. Being of sound mind and feeling that death approaches, I hereby will, devise and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Anna Mae Hacketi, now Mrs. Harry E. Swiger, of Kaercher street, all my property, real and personal, including my individual interest in my mother's estate, as well as my war-risk compensation certificate also, all benefits accruing therefrom. It is my wish that my wife act as executrix without bond. I wish my sister, Mrs. Arch T. Lewis, to render all assistance to my beloved wife during this agony and forever afterwards. I also will God's blessing upon my wife and ask His forgiveness for all my sins. God bless you, Anna Mae, I love you eternally. Your beloved husband, Harry E. Swiger."

Swiger was brought back to jail today from the Allegheny General Hospital, after his suicide attempt last Saturday had been upset by Turnkey Anthony Damagola.

Fifteen merchants appeared against Swiger in court today and he admitted all the charges. He had been arrested in a downtown department store after a scuffle with a house detective.

He was held for investigation.

2 Prisoners Escape From Hospital Ward

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Armed with smuggled guns, two inmates of the new federal prison hospital here overpowered an attendant early today and escaped by scaling the wall on a rope ladder.

The fugitives are Edward J. Nichols, 27, of Wenatchee, Wash., and Edward Joe McNamara, 22, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who were patients in the tubercular ward.

Jury Frees Orchard Slayer

The pear-orchard killing was legally justified today.

A jury acquitted Willard R. Bryant, 36, a railroad employe, for firing the shot that took the life of John A. Drab, 45, of Stieren street.

When the jury's verdict was announced Bryant, overjoyed, hurried to a telephone to tell his elderly mother the news. Drab's widow, Mrs. Catherine Drab, tightened her lips and flushed.

Drab was shot with a .22 rifle while he was stealing pears to take to his hungry family, the prosecution contended. Bryant admitted firing the shot, in the Bryant orchard off Jacks Run road, but contended he had fired into the air simply to frighten off Drab and a companion.

Bryant's 8-year-old nephew, Bryant Cook, testified that his uncle had fired into the air and Dr. D. A. Atkinson, burgess of West View, who qualified as an expert rifle shot, expressed the opinion that the bullet had been deflected by a tree and then struck Drab.

Soon after he had been discharged Bryant appeared in the District Attorney's office and requested the rifle and the trousers which were bloodied in the shooting.

The jury reached its verdict at 9 o'clock last night, after deliberating 4½ hours.

DEATHS IN COLD INCREASE

A near-zero wave that broke all records for Pittsburgh for this date and brought death, injury and suffering, swept through the state today. The lowest official temperature reached here was nine, but outlying districts reported readings as low as two above zero.

Eight deaths were reported in the state within the past 12 hours, two in this vicinity. There were countless sledding and automobile accidents.

A hunter, believed the victim of the icy blasts, is being sought by posses of 100 near Kane.

The dead from this district were Eva Hindmarsh, 19, of Forest avenue, West Homestead, fatally hurt in an automobile skidding accident; Calvin C. Taylor, 30, of 1126 South Braddock avenue, died from exposure and injuries in Altoona.

The injured: John R. Mitchell, 9, of 380 College avenue, Oakmont, sledding accident; Edward Richey, 14, of Nelson Run road, sledding accident; Nathan B. Jacobs, 44, of 6329 Bartlett street, vice president of the Morris Knowles, Inc., skidding accident near Blairsville.

M'NAIR SITS AT VOTE TRIAL

Six Defendants Deny Ballot Fraud Charges

The six defendants in the government's first congressional vote fraud prosecution made a blanket denial of all charges today as the trial neared a close in Federal Court.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker overruled a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal after the government rested shortly before the noon recess.

McNAIR IN COURT

Mayor-elect William N. McNair and his former rival for the Democratic nomination, John M. Henry, sat together in the courtroom and watched proceedings.

One after another the five members of the election board of the Ninth District, Third Ward, ardn a Negro election constable took the witness stand and denied all allegations of marking or altering ballots or otherwise cheating in the November election of 1932.

This was intended to break down the government's contention that more than a score of straight Democratic ballots had disappeared from the ballot box and that Charles Betters, an inspector, had been seen to mark ballots after the polls had closed.

Betters, on the witness stand, testified there was a crowd around the board's table in the Letsche school and that as soon as a separation of ballots had been completed he asked them to leave.

He said:

"I told them if they thought anything was wrong to notify the Sheriff."

Betters denied marking any ballots.

MEYER ON STAND

Former United States Attorney John D. Meyer, at present an assistant attorney general of Pennsylvania, took the stand as a character witness for Betters. Fifty character witnesses paraded to the stand in behalf of the defendants.

The defense bent its efforts to refute testimony of the government's expert, Maurice A. Nernberg.

The latter testified that many ballots had been marked for United States Senator James J. Davis and State Senator James J. Coyne, Republican nominees, by a different person and with a different pencil than the mark for a straight Democratic ticket at the head of the ballot.

In addition to Betters, the defendants are Mike Wendell, judge; Carman Bosco, inspector; James Stulfire and Louis D. Petty, clerks,

NURSES HOME SWEPT BY FIRE

Forty nurses had marched out of the big stone house built by the late Henry W. Oliver at 845 Ridge avenue, North Side, today a few minutes before a section of the house, one of the city's early show places, caught fire.

Only one nurse, Miss Louise Naugoks, was in the house when the fire was discovered. She opened the door of her bedroom, detected smoke and fled to safety.

By that time the caretaker, Frank Vrana, who lives in the garage, had turned in an alarm. Later a second alarm was rung.

For the last five years the big house has been used as an annex to the nurses' home of the Allegheny General Hospital, thanks to the generosity of Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley, a daughter of the late Henry W. Oliver.

Most of the nurses were students.

The fire originated in the rear of the house and spread quickly toward the roof. Battalion Chief Alexander Reed estimated the damage at $5,000.

Clothes Ablaze, Man Flees Burning Home

His clothing ablaze, John Scholl, 58, of Wexford, ran from his burning dwelling to the home of a neighbor early today and collapsed on the doorstep.

He was removed to the Suburban General Hospital, where he was reported in a critical condition from burns.

The blaze destroyed the one-story frame shack.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales is about to establish a scholarship at the Devonshire Agricultural College for pupils from his Cornwall estates duchy, he announced at the twenty-fifth anniversary banquet of the National Farmers' Union.

The Prince hopes the scholarship will stimulate interest in agriculture as a profession.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A Reuters (British) News Agency dispatch from Paris early today said a Paris-to-London mail plane crashed in flames near Beauvais. No one, it added, was injured.

Teller and Clerk Threatened and Locked in Cellar

Three bandits held up the First National Bank at Cecil, Washington County, shortly before noon today and escaped with more than $2,000 in currency and silver. They overlooked an undetermined amount of bonds and currency.

A clerk and a teller, held at bay with pistols, were locked in the cellar of the bank building after the bandits had looted the cash drawer and the vault. The bandits fled, it is believed, toward Pittsburgh.

CLERK GIVES CLUE

Joseph Miscovey, teller, furnished police with a license number obtained several days ago from a car driven by one of the bandits who visited the bank and asked for a dollar's worth of nickels.

The same man returned this morning before the holdup with the same request, but Miscovey, suspicious after the first visit, was unable to telephone for help before the bandit returned with two companions, all armed with guns.

Two of the bandits, both well dressed, came in the front door and the third followed a few seconds later.

The two men walked directly to the tellers' windows and shov-

Merry Quits Hospital For Husband's Home

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Promising to forget her romance with a deported Chilean nobleman, Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering Eiszner, dynamic heiress, went home today to live with her new husband.

Frank V. Eiszner accompanied his bride of less than a week home from the hospital, where she had been recuperating from injuries suffered in an automobile crash that ended their sudden elopement and caused the death of Eiszner's brother, Donald.

Italian Spy Suspect Tries to End Life

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Commendatore Donato Batelli, charged with complicity in a spy plot alleged to have been headed by former Deputy Umberto Bianci, was said by police today to have attempted suicide during the night in Regina Coeli Prison, where he was held.

It was learned two artillery officers were arrested in the last two days, bringing the number held on the spy charge to 20.

FINED, JAILED IN GAS THEFT

Edward Gumbeski, of 323 Hamilton street, McKees Rocks, was fined $20 and sent to the workhouse for six months for using gas from the pipe lines of the Equitable Gas Company. He denied he used it.

Visiting Judge Harry C. James, of Bedford County, imposed the sentence.

Gas company employes testified that when Gumbeski refused to pay for the gas in his home, they shut it off. Later, they said, they found he was using it by making a by-pass, and when they attempted to block its use, 25 members of the Unemployed Council, of McKees Rocks followed them into the cellar and ousted them.

Again company workmen trying to dig up the road and halt the flow there were surrounded by unemployed while McKees Rocks police failed to act, they testified.

Protected later by county detectives, they said, they started digging up the road, and Gumbeski appeared on the front porch with a bugle, to call more unemployed. But detectives smashed the bugle.

SECOND LEVY MEASURE BLOCKED

Pinchot Foes Delay Action on Revenue After Repeal

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—Suddenly developing opposition today delayed final House action on one of the principal bills of the Pinchot liquor tax program, but the administration won an easy victory on the $2 floor tax proposed for immediate levy.

The Hous passed the floor tax measure after a spirited debate by a vote of 150 to 12. Estimates place the probable revenue from this levy at $25,000,000.

Hearing was set for Monday before the House Ways and Means Committee on the Pinchot measure to tax spiritous and vinous liquors manufacteured after repeal at $1 a gallon.

It also levies a 30-cent a gallon tax on rectified liquors.

Druggists and distillers were responsible for the last-minute postponement of final action on this bill.

TAX COLLECTION

The floor tax can be collected at once if it passes the Senate in form suitable to the Governor. The other tax, on which action was postponed, cannot be levied until after repeal.

Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks, led the fight against the floor tax after the House had refused to send this bill back to committee. His was the only Allegheny County vote cast against the measure on final passage.

Democrats and Republicans united in scoring the attempt to delay action on this bill and Representative Norbert Fitzgerald, Erie, estimated $200,000 would be lost to the state in taxes every day the measure was held up.

The Republican membership of the House, until just before the morning session, had been in apparent agreement on the plan to pass all of the five measures in the tax program today.

Speaker Grover C. Talbot said he was unaware of the opposition until the motion to recommit the Witkin bill taxing liquor after repeal. Mr. Pinchot gave his consent to postponing action for a hearing next week, but would not agree to delaying the floor tax measure.

Woman Jury Frees Four Fan Dancers

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—The fan dances of four pretty young women at the Moulin Rouge, Oakland's burlesque show, weren't vulgar—they were real art.

In substance that was the verdict returned yesterday by 12 women jurors who acquitted Phillis Lane, Dorothy Shannon, Mille De Vore and Virginia Eil on charges of "indecent exposure."

2,000 Needy Families In City Lack Coal

Nearly 2,000 families on the relief rolls of the city today are without coal.

George P. Mills, secretary of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, in declaring the coal strike left that many cases without fuel, said he was writing state coal orders and expects immediate delivery.

The State Relief Board, which meets this afternoon, is expected to grant the permission to buy the fuel, he said. Previously, the city paid.

And in Washington, Federal Relief Administrator Harry H. Hopkins let it be known that he plans to buy coal for distribution to the needy.

Mills explained the shortage of fuel by asserting that the companies having the contract to furnish coal to the needy, paid for by funds for city relief, had been unable to catch up since the coal strike. Once before, he said, city officials had to go into the open market and get coal from other companies. The current needs are 12,000 tons a month, he added, saying that during the strike, orders piled up.

City highway trucks were pressed into service today, delivering three and five bushel sacks of coal to the neediest cases.

Mills stated:

"The Mutual Supply Company and Snyder & Swanson have ample coal, I understand, but they can't catch up with the demand, because of the orders that piled up during the strike."

The County Poor Directors announced they had ample coal supplies, but the cold wave created a tremendous demand, 1,000 tons being sought yesterday.

Huey's Probers Jeered Climbing Fire Escape

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Senator Tom Connally (Dem.), of Texas, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the election of Senator John H. Overton, was forced to climb a fire escape and enter an upstairs window in order to reach the committee room in the Scottish Rite cathedral today, as hundreds of persons massed in front of the building, seeking entrance to the hearing.

As Senator Connally climbed through the window, he found himself in a ladies' wash room, but committee attaches quickly steered him through the building into the hearing chamber.

Senator Overton himself and other officials were forced to follow Connally's lead. Among those scaling the ladders was Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, chairman of the women's committee of Louisiana, which is seeking the ouster of both Senator Overton and Senator Huey P. Long from the Senate.

As word passed about that a washroom was being utilized for the Senators' entrance, shouts came from the crowd on the street below to "Remember Sands Point!" and "Don't get socked in that washroom!"

The shouts referred to the recently publicized incident on Long Island in which Senator Long, attending a reception, was struck over the eye by a fellow guest who was never identified.

When the hearing finally got under way, it was again thrown into turmoil when John G. Holland, the committee's investigator, again denounced the Senate committee, charging it "was not seriously seeking to get evidence into the record."

Holland stood before Chairman Connally shaking his fist and yelling until cheers from the crowd drowned out his remarks.

DEMOCRATS UP IN ARMS OVER FEDERAL RELIEF IN PENNA.

DEMAND RIGHT TO BOSS FUND DISTRIBUTION

Pinchot Man's Control Of Job Aid Program Under Fire

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Rumblings of discontent among Democratic representatives over present system of federal relief administration in Pennsylvania today resulted in request to Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator, that distribution of state's share of new $400,000,000 civic works fund be work of a new agency.

Hopkins was closeted for some time with Joseph Guffey, state Democratic leader, and others in Guffey's office, in the same hotel where hundreds of city and state officials were told how the government planned to put 4,000,000 men to work at once with the new fund.

Neither Hopkins nor Guffey would discuss the conference, but it was learned authoritatively that one suggestion called for establishment of a new federal commission of three to supervise distribution of Pennsylvania's share of the fund. Under the announced program for the nation as a whole, municipal projects would be subject to approval of state relief boards.

Feeling that Democrats should be in charge of passing out federal funds established by a Democratic administration, the Pennsylvania Democratic representatives have chafed at administration by a state board headed by an appointee of Gov. Pinchot, a Republican.

Jobs for 300,000 in State Seen by New Administrator

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Every federal, state and local governmental body today was called on by Eric H. Biddle, newly appointed federal civil works administrator for Pennsylvania, to co-operate to the utmost in putting across the civil works program in that state.

Mr. Biddle, who is the executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board of Pennsylvania, was here yesterday attending the conference of federal, state and municipal officials from all parts of the United States, to whom the new federal civil works program was outlined.

At the conclusion of the session he was appointed the administrator for Pennsylvania by Harry L. Hopkins, the federal administrator.

300,000 IN PENNA.

Mr. Biddle said:

"The program on a national scale contemplates putting 4,000,000 men at work on useful projects of permanent, social and economic value to the community and to the nation.

"While we do not yet have official figures, my estimate is that it will involve the employment of more than 300,000 men in Pennsylvania.

'WHITE COLLAR' JOBS

"There will be no further registration necessary in employment offices throughout the state for eligibility for work in the civil works program. People now on relief rolls and those enrolled in employment offices will be taken care of first.

"Among the suggested projects to be undertaken in Pennsylvania in this program are parks and playgrounds construction, sewers, water supply projects, highways, streets, roads, repairs and improvements to public buildings, flood control, surveys of traffic conditions, and many other white-collar jobs."

Roosevelt Appointee Raps Tammany Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—James J. Hoey, newly-appointed internal revenue collector, today began a fight to dethrone John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall.

Hoey demanded a leadership more in harmony with the policy of the Roosevelt administration. In political circles his challenge is considered as the first open attempt by the organized independent Democrats to oust Curry from Tammany leadership.

BANK ROBBERS FLEE WITH $2,000

ing guns through the grill, they demanded:

"Stick 'em up and don't move."

GUN THREATS

Miscovey was directly in front of one of the windows. Edmond J. Poudevigne, clerk, was at a typewriter, just off to one side. Both men raised their hands above their heads and the man who came in last and who appeared to be the leader, barked:

"Put those hands down at your sides and keep them there."

One of the other two said:

"Don't either of you move, or I'll fill you full of lead."

Poudevigne, sitting with his back to the tellers' winodw, thought at first the holdup commands came from a practical joker. He said:

"I didn't think it was a holdup. I heard a lot of talk, but I thought Joe and somebody else were kidding until the bandit came around to the other window and shoved a gun at me."

While the two men kept their guns trained on the bankers, the third man produced a large cloth sack. He ordered Poudevigne to "fill it up with big money."

The bank clerk replied that there wasn't much money in the bank and the holdup man snarled:

"Well, you better find some, or it won't be good for you."

DEMANDS BONDS

Then he demanded:

"Where's the bonds?"

He pointed to the vault and demanded of Miscovey:

"What's in there?"

Miscovey explained there were no bonds, all of them having been deposited in Pittsburgh. He told the holdup man that a locked door hid only notes.

The robber ordered him to open it, regardless.

He scooped up a heavy bag of silver, containing, according to Miscovey, about $300 worth of silver. About $1,800 in bills were taken from a cash drawer and the vault.

LOCKED IN CELLAR

When the bandits were ready to leave, their leader ordered the bank men to precede him into a back room. While he prepared to block the door so they could not get out easily, one of the others smashed the telephone and cut the wires.

Then the leader observed a trap door leading to the cellar underneath the bank.

He shoved the two bank men towards the cellar door and ordered:

"Get down there and don't move for three minutes until we can get away."

Shoving the bank men down into the cellar, the bandits pushed a heavy mahogany desk over the trap door.

Miscovey and Poudevigne, unable to budge the desk on the trapdoor, forced open a small cellar window and yelled for help.

RELEASED, CALL POLICE

Charles O. Wooten, Negro barber, heard their calls and went into the bank. He pushed the desk from the trapdoor and released the imprisoned men. Miscovey hurried to a nearby telephone and called the state police at Washington.

While they were in the cellar, Miscovey said he heard the bandit car which had been headed towards the West Virginia line turn around and speed in the direction of Bridgeville and Pittsburgh.

LICENSE NUMBER

Miscovey told state police, Washington County detectives and Canonsburg police who hurried to the bank following word of the holdup that he had seen all three of the bandits several times during the past two weeks. They visited the bank separately, he said, asking for change and, he declared:

"I think they're numbers men."

Miscovey took the license number of a coupe he said the leader drove about two weeks ago. He said:

"I jokingly explained to a friend of mine, 'maybe in about a week from now when the bank is robbed, I'll need this.'"

The bank has been operating on a restricted basis since the national holiday last March. John F. Wagner, former cashier, is the federal conservator.

Wagner was not in the bank during the holdup this morning, having attended a funeral in Bridgeville. Wagner estimated the bandits' loot at more than $2,000.

KAMONS JURY TOLD OF BOXES

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Testimony by which the state hopes to convict Louis J. Kamons, alleged Pittsburgh arsonist, of murder charges, in connection with the Ellington Apartments fire in June, 1932, was continued in Common Pleas Court here today.

Fred Streyle testified yesterday that on the morning of June 6, 1932, he saw four Negroes unload pasteboard boxes from a truck and carry them into the American Beauty and Barber Supply Company, in the basement of the Ellington Building.

Ray I. Turk, was part owner of the barber supply company, and state's attorneys charges Kemons was a professional arsonist who, conspired with Turk to burn the store so insurance could be collected, now is serving a life sentence. Twelve persons died in the fire.

BEAVER, PA., Nov. 16.—Abe Redlich, convicted member of an arnson ring, was to go to Cleveland today, to appear as witness for the prosecution against Louis J. Kamons.

M'CLURE RAID LISTS GIVEN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Edgar A. Davis, who has produced lists of lawbreakers, which he testified State Senator John J. McClure gave him to "knock off" because they did not pay "protection," today presented in Federal Court evidence of the raids which he said he made for McClure.

The Senator and 75 others are on trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, the government charging that McClure was the leader of a "protection" organization which dominated liquor law violators in Delaware County and paid police to do its bidding.

Eighty-five exhibits, search warrants and returns, were identified by Davis, a former detective and self-styled personal investigator for McClure.

As Davis went through the stack of documents, Judge George A. Welsh checked the addresses against those of the alleged McClure lists. One of the lists bears the words "knock off" in longhand on the bottom and Davis has testified that he "thinks" it is the Senator's handwriting.

NEW TREASURY CHIEF BACKS GOLD PLAN

Inflationist Trend Grows With Shakeup

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A new cabinet officer who says he will give unwavering support to President Roosevelt's gold-buying plan, and who is a close friend of a leading commodity dollar advocate, takes full control tomorrow of the Treasury.

But officials continued to deny vigorously that the designation of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., as undersecretary and the unlimited leave of absence granted to William H. Woodin, Secretary, meant any schism between the latter and the President.

The explanation remained that Woodin needed to go to Tucson, Ariz., in search of rest and health; that Dean Acheson, who had been under-secretary, resigned simply to let Morgenthau take the second-ranking position in the Treasury so he could assume charge while Woodin was on leave.

Woodin asked to resign, giving health as the reason and adding that "every policy" of the President "has had and still has my devoted support." Mr. Roosevelt turned down the resignation, proposed the leave, and said, "We need you back again."

RIFT SEEN

Despite this exchange, there were those in the capital who saw the development as meaning there was a rift between the Secretary, who once exhibited a 5,000,000 German mark note when asked about inflation, and the President.

These same individuals added that inflation would be along soon.

Morgenthau, now head of the Farm Credit Administration, is a close friend of Prof. George F Warren, an originator of the present effort to force commodity prices up through government purchases of foreign and domestic gold.

Warren also argues continually for the so-called commodity dollar whose gold content would be changed as natural, or other, forces raised or lowered the prices of commodities.

Raskob Reported Slated For Treasury Post

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The Daily News in a copyrighted story today said that Alfred E. Smith's White House visit with President Roosevelt, according to a "person high in Democratic party circles," concerned the following shifts in administration personnel and the following appointments:

1—Resignation of William H. Woodin as Secretary of the Treasury and the appointment of John J. Raskob as his successor.

2—Resignation of Jesse Isidor Straus as United States Ambassador to France and appointment of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland as his successor.

3—Appointment by Gov. Lehman as senator to take Copeland's place.

4—Designation of Postmaster General James A. Farley as the next Democratic candidate for governor of New York to succeed Gov. Lehman, who, the News said, will not seek renomination.

METEORS FAIL TO FALL HERE

Pittsburgh astronomers stayed in bed last night and are eight hours up on fellow scientists.

For astronomers at Harvard, Washington, Philadelphia and elsewhere, who tried to photograph the leonid meteor shower, spent today in bed after a "disappointing" night.

The meteors, which appeared by the thousands 100 years ago today, failed to show during the night, according to Associated Press dispatches. Or they appeared in small numbers and so faintly cameras couldn't "catch" them.

Bits of mineral and stone-like substances, they burst into flame, Dr. Frank C. Jordan, of Allegheny Observatory, said, due to the friction caused by the earth plowing through them.

ROCKEFELLER AND SINCLAIR WAR SEEN

Battle May Follow Disclosures at Stock Quiz

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A financial war between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Harry F. Sinclair, associates now in the Consolidated Oil Companies, loomed today as a result of a clash between their subordinates at the Senate banking inquiry.

If Rockefeller follows the precedent he set in ousting Robert W. Stewart from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, he must "fire" William S. Fitzpatrick as vice chairman of the Consolidated. He can do that only by deposing Sinclair, who controls Consolidated.

QUESTIONS VERACITY

The clash came when Fitzpatrick, a Rockefeller official for 25 years before he joined Sinclair, questioned the veracity of Bertram Cutler, Rockefeller's financial adviser, on the issue of a mysterious $449,000 gift in 1928.

Fitzpatrick said Cutler promised him a bonus, though not $449,000, for his long and faithful service with the Rockefellers. He said he believed the fortune paid him by Blair & Co. really came from the Rockefellers.

Cutler, regarded as one of the most influential men in Wall street in his role as Rockefeller's spokesman, flatly contradicted this story.

He said he had agreed only that Fitzpatrick should buy some of Rockefeller's Prairie Oil stock, then being sold through Blair & Co. He denied promising Fitzpatrick any gift and denied knowing anything about the money actually paid him.

In addition, he condemned revelations that $300,000 of the gift came from a Sinclair Oil syndicate.

'PASSES THE LIE'

This contradiction made Fitzpatrick literally "pass the lie" to Cutler. He said he had told Cutler about the $300,000 and that Cutler had advised him to say nothing of it.

Theater Stock 'Watered,' Senate Quiz Reveals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—A $38,285,000 "bowl of water" was poured into the stock of the General Theaters Equipment Corporation when it was organized by Harley L. Clarke, Chicago magnate, and his New York banking associates, it was revealed today at the Senate banking inquiry.

This included $26,275,000 in a "write-up" of assets of the International Projector Corporation, which were taken over by the G. T. E. The remainder came from "writing up" $10,737,000 on the assets of the National Theaters Supply Corporation and $1,273,000 in assets of ofur small camera companies.

The "watered stock" gave the G. T. E. a book value of $43,041,000 after it acquired only $4,756,000 in actual assets.

This was the corporation that brought tremendous losses later to the banking group that used it to battle William Fox.

GOLD HOARDING BAN UPHELD

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Frederick Barber Campbell, wealthy lawyer and clubman, today lost his fight to have set aside the indictment in which he was charged with hoarding gold and with failing to turn it over to the government.

He won a single technical point in his equity action before Federal Judge John M. Woolsey in his fight to retain 27 bars of gold, worth $200,574.34, which he deposited in the vaults of the Chase National Bank last fall and winter.

The court held that the Presidential order that gold should be turned over to the government was not in accord with the law of March 9, which gave that power to the Secretary of the Treasury rather than the President.

Disbarred Lawyer Found Ill in Home

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Daniel H. Coakley, a member of the executive council who has been waging a fight for reinstatement to the Massachusetts bar, was found unconscious in his home last night and was seriously ill today from mental strain and exhaustion.

Coakley was disbarred in 1922 on charges of blackmail and extortion. Recently he sought a comeback in politics and was elected to the Governor's council a year ago.

M'Govern's Saving On Fuel Angers County Jurors

At least 240 chilly jurors who reported for duty in the courthouse today, objected to County Commissioner C. C. McGovern's economy measure that the boilers be shut down at 4 o'clock each afternoon until the next day.

They reached the courthouse at 9, and heat from the recently started furnace hadn't permeated to the corridors and rooms. The temperature was low.

One woman juror inquired from court attaches as to whom she would sue if she contracted pneumonia.

SHIPS ABANDON WRECK SEARCH

VALENTIA, Irish Free State, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The steamship Manchester Regiment abandoned her 24-hour search for the stricken freighter Saxilby today shortly after the great liner Berengaria and the Dutch steamer Boschdyk were forced to quit their rescue efforts.

Abandonment of the quest by the Manchester Regiment was announced in a wireless message in which the ship reported she had sighted no wreckage and was afraid it was absolutely impossible for lifeboats to survive such weather as she was encountering.

Hope was generally abandoned for the little Saxilby and her human freight of 27 souls.

The rescue ships had battled a storm-torn Atlantic since yesterday morning in response to an SOS. The Saxilby crew, which abandoned their helpless ship in the mountainous waves, were feared lost in their tiny lifeboats.

The only hope that the men might still be alive was based on the possibility the high wind may have driven the lifeboats and their parent ship far from the spot from which the Saxilby sent out her last distress call.

130 SHAKEN IN TRAIN WRECK

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—One hundred and thirty passengers on the Buffalo-Cincinnati express of the Big Four Railroad were shaken up today when seven Pullman cars were derailed south of Worthington, near here. None of the injured required even first-aid treatment from a corps of doctors and nurses who were rushed to the scene.

Breakage of a rail was blamed by railroad officials for the derailment.

A relief train was dispatched to the wreck, and the passengers brought to Columbus, where they were given accommodations on another train. The flyer was made up of 11 cars. The locomotive and four of the cars passed over the break and were halted about a mile down the track.

Two of the seven Pullmans turned over, and the others rested at precarious angles along the right of way.

NATION IN GRIP OF COLD WAVE

Associated Press.

The cold wave from the Far North country today continued to hold much of the North American continent in its grip, bringing with it a slowly mounting death list.

The weather man held out little hope for relief today from the frigid blast which affected the entire country east of the Rocky Mountains, after recording new lows for this time of the year in various parts of the nation, including five below at Bemidji, Minn. Parts of the East were also hard hit.

Pennsylvania counted a total of six dead during the past two days, with a new storm sweeping the northwestern section of the state, already buried under a heavy snow fall. Two hunters died in Ohio from over-exertion, and the frigid blasts brought suffering to island inhabitants in Lake Erie, caught short of fuel.

DEATHS IN COLD INCREASE IN DISTRICT

were unprepared for the record-breaking cold blasts.

Many fires broke out as efforts to keep warm pressed into service defective equipment.

William S. Brotzman, meteorologist, explained today that the low, 9 degrees above, reached at 8 o'clock this morning, broke all records of the Weather Bureau for November 16.

The lowest recorded for this date since 1871, when the first records were kept, was 15, back in 1883.

MERCURY RISING

The thermometer was rising slowly today. The forecast, however, was for continued cold tonight with a low of 10, but prospects of warmer weather with rain terminating the cold snap tomorrow.

The 9-degree official was recorded on top of the Oliver Building.

Brotzman added that the temperature was 2 above zero at the Brookside Farms car stop, beyond Mt. Lebanon, and 6 above at his home at the Farms.

Unofficial street temperatures from various sections gave Banksville, 2; West End, 7; East End, 9; Mt. Washington, 8; South Side and Lawrenceville, 10; Woods Run, 12, and downtown, 12.

Members of the C. C. C. camp near Kane, and others continued their search today for Harry Mattison, 37, of Ludlow, who has been missing since Monday when he started on a hunting trip. Relatives and neighbors fear he is a victim of the cold and snow, 41 inches of snow having fallen in the vicinity.

Taylor died in an Altoona hospital last night from injuries and exposure. He was brushed off a railroad train near Lilly.

AUTO SKID FATAL

Miss Hindmarsh was dead today from injuries received when the automobile in which she was riding skidded on an icy pavement and struck a pole in West Run road, West Homestead, yesterday. Her skull was fractured.

Her sister, Isabelle Hindmarsh, 21, is in Homestead Hospital suffering from shock and bruises. Haretta Guest, 19, of 6160 Cambria street, Munhall, also a passenger in the car, and Rudolph Stirner, 19, of 6166 Interboro avenue, the driver, were uninjured.

Stirner was to post bond before Coroner W. J. McGregor today.

The Mitchell boy is in Columbia Hospital today with scalp lacerations suffered when his sled crashed into a parked automobile in College avenue, near his home, last night.

BOY HURT ON SLED

Young Richey suffered internal injuries late last night when his sled collided with an automobile driven by John Wagner, of 3605 East street, at Nelson Run road and Evergreen road. Richey was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Jacobs was injured critically in a skidding accident on Penn View Mountain near Blairsville. He was taken to Mcmorial Hospital at Johnstown. Jacob's automobile sideswiped an automobile truck which was attempting to pass his car.

SNOW STORMS RAGE

In the lake regions and throughout a great part of the state, blinding snowstorms accompanied the cold. Erie was blanketed, Crawford County was so deeply covered that automobile traffic was impeded or completely stopped. High winds piled the snow in drifts.

Motoring was reported as dangerous throughout the state, with the exception of parts along the southern and eastern lines. Highway workmen found keeping the roads clear an almost impossible task in many sectors.

Three feet of snow was reported from many placed. Hampton Station, in Venango County, recorded 5 below, with temperatures in other parts ranging up to 4 degrees above.

Weather Reports Shun Odd Figures

For Pittsburghers, the official low temperature was 9 above zero. To the outside world it was 8 above zero.

The low temperature—9—was recorded at 8 a. m. today, but according to a rule of the Weather Bureau, in reporting the 8 a. m. and low temperatures to other stations, odd numerals are not used, and today's temperature went out 8.

Dog Dies Saving Woman, Boy Gives Life for Pup

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—Aroused by the barking of a pet dog, Mrs. Michael Geheim, of Lower Burrell Township, fled her home in night attire as the home and an adjoining dwelling were destroyed by fire early today.

The dog raced back into the home and perished when it was trapped by the blaze, firemen said.

The fire, believed caused by an overheated furnace, destroyed the Geheim home and an adjoining two-story unoccupied frame dwelling. Loss was estimated at $7,000.

PLAISTOW, N. H., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Norman Rogers, little 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Rogers loved his puppy, loved him too well and so both died.

Trapped in the burning Rogers home, the frightened dog set up a whimpering that struck deep into the heart of Norman, safe outside with his parents and his nine brothers and sisters. While the parents watched with distraction the burning of their worldly belongings, Norman went back into the building to save his pet.

Firemen who first had to rescue his frantic father as he plunged through falling, burning timbers after his child, then found Norman, his clothing ablaze, and brought him out—without his puppy.

Despite the burns he suffered the child sobbed pitifully for his pet as he was rushed to a Haverhill, Mass., hospital. He died several hours later.

Workman Forgets Rye, Wants P. O. Walls Razed

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A workman who helped build Boston's new, 22-story granite-and-steel Federal Building called at the office of Postmaster William E. Hurley, the custodian, today and asked that a hole be knocked in an inside wall so that he would retrieve his blue overalls.

Puzzled by his belated concern over a pair of overalls left in a partition, officials finally obtained the admission that in one of the pockets was a quart of Kentucky rye whisky.

Postmaster Hurley explained, however, that he would not begin tearing down the walls of the postoffice for even two quarts of Kentucky rye.

the little Mdivanis made their appearance.

NRA does increase prices. In Miami, lumber for building, framing, joists, etc., has gone up 100 per cent, ordinary tongue and grooved sheathing about ninety per cent.

That makes it not quite so easy to sell or persuade people to build, unfortunately, and lumber men will observe the fact that cement blocks have moved up only twelve per cent, cement not twenty per cent, rock and sand for concrete about fifty per cent.

If concrete blocks and cement remain cheap while lumber goes up, that will hurt lumber men.

Ripley Proves 80,000 Fans Can Be Wrong

"Jesus wept" is not the shortest verse in the Bible!

This, from no less an authority than "Believe-It-Or-Not" Robert Ripley.

And in face of the fact that 80,000 Ripley fans responding to his query of October 22, have said that it is.

Let Ripley explain:

"The answer to this question—which is the shortest verse in the Bible?—hinges upon the proper determination of what constitutes 'the Bible.'

"The Holy Scriptures have been translated into more than 400 tongues, and the English version is merely one of the 400.

"The Bible of my query can only mean one thing, the original. The original of the Bible is the Old Testament in Hebrew and the New Testament in Greek."

Ripley said that there is no single verse of the Bible that can be termed the shortest. In fact there are three, he said, each consisting of two words aggregating six letters. He explained:

"These verses are Exodus xx, 13, 14 and 15. In the English version they read 'Thou shall not kill,' 'Thou shall not commit adultery' and 'Thou shall not steal.' In the Bible (meaning the Hebrew original they read 'Lo trzh, 'Lo tonv' and 'Lo tnof.'"

"Jesus wept" in the original Bible is 'Edakrusen o Iesous,' 16 letters. The shortest verse in the New Testament is "Pantote chairete" Biblical Greek for "Rejoice evermore."

M'NAIR'S PLAN FOR OFFICE IN LOBBY UPSET BY DRAFTS

CLIMBS LADDER TO FIND 'LEAK' IN HEAT

'Might Catch Cold,' He Says, Suggesting Alterations

The new Mayor made a speech today from the top of a ladder.

William N. McNair strode into the lobby of the City-County Building, called for a ladder, climbed it, put out his hand and announced:

"Yep, there's a leakage o' heat out those windows."

The Mayor-elect was trying to find out whether he could install his office, not in the sumptuous layout on the fifth floor, but right in the heart of the first floor corridor, without catching cold.

Well, sad to relate, he can't. At least he wasn't satisfied. He said there'll have to be some changes made in the heating system:

"I'll have Bill English fix it."

ENGLISH WILLING

Believe it or not, Mr. English, who will be chairman of Council's finance committee until the McNair ticket moves in, said he'd be glad to have the system changed—the heating system, that is.

A crowd that could hardly be blamed for its curiosity, followed the new Mayor as he examined the corridor. First he examined the radiators. He asked John Gardner, chief engineer, if a radiator couldn't be installed right in the middle of the lobby and Mr. Gardner said he was sorry, but he didn't think so.

So the Mayor-elect began his study of the heating system.

He climbed the ladder some 10 feet to the point where the marble walls meet the high windows before he made his discovery and speech. Then he came back to earth, so to speak, took a hold on somebody in the crowd and suggested:

"Crawl up there. Don't be afraid of the ladder. Look down there where those heat pipes are. You're a volunteer fireman."

ADLER'S INQUIRY

Sam Adler, the merchant, who heretofore has given no indication of his admiration for the Democratic ticket, asked the determined Mayor-elect if he'd do something about it. And Mr. McNair reckoned he'd see Bill English.

Somebody asked the Mayor-elect where he'd put his desk in the corridor. The ladder-climber revealed:

"Right there under Woodrow Wilson."

And he pointed to a Wilson placque. But:

"I can't have my office here if it's not heated."

To Engineer Gardner:

"Fix it; it's too cold."

To everybody, pointing to the information booth in the lobby:

"Two men have died in that booth."

And so the new Mayor left the building.

All this occurred as innumerable persons wondered just who'll be in his cabinet.

Gossip includes the names of James F. Malone as Director of Property and Supplies, Attorney Cornelius D. Scully as City Solicitor, Edward Jones as Director of Public Works and George E. Evans for an undesignated position.

LISBON CROWDS HAIL LINDYS

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—An enthusiastic reception was accorded Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their arrival here yesterday after a flight from Caldelas de Tuy, Spain.

Robert G. Caldwell, American minister, and Portuguese officials were in the large crowd that greeted the American fliers.

During their visit of several days the Lindberghs will stay at the American legation.

He will be received today by President Oscar Carmona.

Lindbergh is known to be considering a return to the United States by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

Jean's Nose Too Sharp?

JEAN HARLOW . . . "A GRACEFUL AND EXPRESSIVE FIGURE"

All Hollywood Beauties Imperfect, Artist Says

'Big-Nosed,' 'Horsey,' Stanlaws Calls Several Stars

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Despite all the ballyhoo, Penrhyn Stanlaws, eminent portrait painter, is convinced that there is not one perfect screen beauty among Hollywood's stars.

There would be if one of them had Lupe Velez's profile, Joan Bennett's facade and a boyish figure, Stanlaws would add a touch of lip stick, rouge and mascara.

In 1922 Stanlaws lost his job as a Hollywood director because he spoke out on Hollywood's pulchitrude.

He spoke out again today with no job to lose. He said:

"Mae West: Her head, eyes and mouth were constructed for a simple nose, but nature presented her with a complicated one—interestingly modeled, but bringing the eyes too close together.

"Katharine Hepburn: Her chin and the lower part of her face project too far. Anthropologists have a name for such a facial type; they call it prognathism. Artists call it 'horsey.'

"Constance Bennett: A real symphony in jazz—her nose too small for her face.

"Gretta Garbo: She has a sleepy, sophisticated look, attained by deep eye sockets and a peculiar slant of the upper lip. These are not aids to beauty, but schoolgirls find the effect more alluring than beauty.

"Jean Harlow: She has a graceful and expressive figure—between that of the '90's and the boyish form. Her face is the same type as Katherine Hepburn's, but more so, caused by her nose projecting at too sharp an angle."

He said that Lupe Velez's figure is the "true maidenly" one, and her face is mobile so she "can look sophisticated or innocent at will." He continued:

"Ann Harding: Fine symmetrical features—but so nearly approaching the classic type that repose of features is essential to beauty.

"Kay Francis: Nicely-balanced features—head in fine proportion to the body—oversized triceps of the arms.

"Mary Pickford: There is no one in the films who has her sculptural modeling and harmony of features. Mary hasn't "it," however.

"Marlene Dietrich: Take Mary Pickford's head, replace it with one slightly out of drawing, give her heavy eyelids and sunken eyes, and you have Dietrich—a sophisticated Mary."

Joan Crawford and Joan Blondell, Stanlaws said, have Mae West's unusually prominent features, but their "skull construction isn't large enough to carry them."

ROY SCHOOLEY FUNERAL HELD

With former political associates and intimate friends in attendance, the funeral of Roy D. Schooley, former City Treasurer and once a powerful leader in the Republican city organization, was held today from the Homer E. Leslie funeral home at 7134 Bennett street.

Mr. Schooley died Monday night at his home at 4740 Maripoe street, East End. He had been ill since his retirement from the Treasurer's office two years ago. Burial was in the Smithfield Cemetery.

MARY M'CORMIC SLAPS DIVORCE 'TATTLER'

Serge's Girl Friend Cuffed as She Offers Divorce Secrets

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Mary McCormic, the opera singer, squared off in a face-slapping episode with a young woman identified as Grace Williams and as a friend of the Prince Mdivani, and came out the winner, last night.

Reporters and editors, of whom there were many to witness the brief engagement in the editorial offices of a Los Angeles newspaper, separated the pair. The witnesses agreed that Miss McCormic was the victor.

The face-slapping episode came as a sequel to Miss McCormic's divorce from Prince Serge Mdivani Tuesday. At that time it was announced the property settlement between the pair would remain secret.

Miss Williams attempted to dispose of the "secrets" of the agreement to a newspaper. Miss McCormic, her Irish eyes blazing, entered the newspaper office a few moments after Miss Williams appeared.

Demanded Miss McCormic, swinging into action:

"You will, will you?"

Miss Williams, those whom she approached said, represented herself as a "close friend of the Mdivani family" and said she was writing a biography of the famous princes, of whom there are three, Serge, David and Alexis. The latter is the husband of the former Barbara Hutton, five-and-ten cent store heiress. David formerly was married to Mae Murray, screen actress.

PLOTTER SHOT FLEEING TRAP

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Unaware that 15 detectives and Department of Justice agents were "planted" in the vicinity, a 20-year-old baker snatched a package supposedly containing $1,000 from the go-between in an extortion plot yesterday and shortly afterward he lay near death with a bullet in his head.

After grabbing the dummy package from a friend of Charles B. Halsey, a real estate dealer, whose name is listed in the social register, the youth dived into the nearest taxicab on busy Third avenue.

It so happened that the driver of the cab was Detective Joseph Bonano, who promptly turned to grapple with his "fare" while the 14 other officers, disguised as street cleaners and messengers, closed in on their quarry.

The young baker, later identified as Joseph Kessler, wriggled loose and started on a run up the street. Bonano drew his pistol and fired, striking Kessler in the cheek.

Bandit at Large After Running Fight

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—John Dillinger, ex-convict and leader of a gang of Indiana desperadoes, was still at large today after shooting his way out of a police trap with machine gun and pistol fire, speeding away in an armored sedan.

During the running gun battle along Irving Park boulevard, 16 Indiana and Chicago police fired scores of shots at the sedan, but armored plates and bullet-proof glass apparently prove impregnable.

CAPT. PHIL C. ELSEY IN HIS PITTSBURGH . . . . HUNTING A PACKET TO MEET A CHALLENGE

KIN TAKES BODY OF VANDERBILT

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The body of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., 26, scion of the famous New York family, who lost his life in a South Carolina motor accident, was en route to New York today by train.

Accompanying the body was Erskine Gywnne, relative and companion, who received minor injuries as Vanderbilt's car crashed into a truck at Ridgeland, S. C., yesterday. The youth's chauffeur, J. W. Guppy, who was injured seriously, remained in a Savannah hospital.

Officers who investigated the accident said Vanderbilt, on his way from Miami to New York, was at the wheel at the time of the crash. The investigators said they saw "no reason for the accident" which occurred on a long level straightaway.

Young Vanderbilt was going to visit with his mother, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, from whom his father is divorced. The elder Vanderbilt is a director of the New York Central Railroad.

MULL FAMILY'S PLEAS AWAITED

Roy Mull, his wife, Grace, and their son, Elmer, held in connection with the murder of Margaret C. Schwickrath, the mystery girl, were to be arraigned this afternoon before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan.

The findings of County Chemist F. C. Buckmaster's analysis of the stains found on Mull's trousers were to be ready for presentation at the hearing.

Two women surprise witnesses will be called to testify against the Mulls if necessary, county detectives said.

They were said to have overheard an alleged quarrel between the Mulls and the girl at Haydenville, near Greensburg, the day before her body, a bullet through the heart, was found in an Allegheny River boulevard storm sewer.

Ohio River Packet Boat Queen Challenged Here

Pittsburgh Skipper Willing to Race For Prize

Those golden antlers, symbolic of Ohio River packet boat speed supremacy, yet may hang aboard a Pittsburgh boat.

Since June 28, 1930, when Capt. Mary Greene's steamer, the "Tom Greene," of Cincinnati, defeated the Betsy Ann, she has held the Ohio prize. But now Capt. Phil C. Elsey, 43, of 4051 Brownsville road, has answered her standing challenge, he announced today.

In a letter to William A. A. Castellini, who managed the last race for Capt. Mary Greene, he says:

"I herewith accept your challenge by Capt. Mary Greene, of November 5, 1933, published in the Sun-Telegraph November 7, 1933, for a race with her grand steamer, "Tom Greene," to be run sometime in May, 1934, provided, however, that you can make it interesting enough to engage in such a race. I expect to have a packet boat comparable in size to meet with Capt. Mary Greene's approval along with a suitable bond to cover challenger."

He must be assured, however, he says, that he will be paid his expenses, win or lose.

Capt. Frederick Way, of Sewickley, was the last challenger. In a thrilling 21-mile race in the Cincinnati pool, his "Betsy Ann" held the "Tom Greene" all even during the first few miles, but fell far behind near the finish.

Crowds lined the river banks for miles to watch the contest.

Boy Fliers on Way To Yucatan Jungles

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Two Westfield (N. J.) youths, Bob Buck and Bob Nixon, took off from Port Columbus here this morning for St. Louis after landing here yesterday.

The two will leave St. Louis for an exploration trip to Yucatan as quickly as a new motor is installed in their ship.

NURSE'S STORY TOLD TO JURY

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Statements quoting Frieda Wilhelmina Weltz as admitting she fatally shot her former employer, Francis J. M. Grace, were read into the records of the 43-year-old nurse's murder trial here today. The purported statement said:

"It was something between himself and myself. I supposed he would apologize in time."

The quotations were admitted by the court as memorandum of what a shorthand reporter allegedly heard when Miss Weltz was questioned by police. The court held they should not be considered as any part of a confession. Miss Weltz was quoted further:

"I did it and I had a reason. You wouldn't think it was a reason, but I did."

The nurse's account of the affair as read to the jury told of her former employment by Grace and quoted her as declaring she had planned the shooting for a year.

DRIVER PERILED IN MEAT STRIKE DISORDER

Police Foil Attempt To Crowd Truck Against Curb

The mailed fist of the police was wielded in the meat workers' strike today as Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide issued a general order to put down violence.

Motorcycle officers chased and captured three strike sympathizers in an auto this morning, after F. S. Douglas, Ingram retailer, pointed out the men at Federal and Ohio streets as the ones who had tried to intimidate him.

Douglas reported the men had attempted to crowd him into the curb with his load of meat obtained at a packing house, and threatened him unless he returned to the plant.

THREE ARRESTED

Arrested were Michael Bundeck, 1624 Branchport street; William Syka, 1464 Spring Garden avenue and George Scheuring, Millvale. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

Another retailer was given an escort of deputy sheriffs when he turned back to the Oswald and Hess Company plant and reported he had been threatened if he refused.

Two men were arrested on disorderly conduct charges while in the picket line at the Hess Company plant.

GUARD WORKERS

A cordon of 16 police escorted 11 employes of Armour and Company from East Liberty Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad to the company's plant at Hamilton avenue and Dahlem street, 50 yards distant. Fifty pickets were lined up at the plant.

Strike sympathizers hurled stones through windows of the engine room of the Dunlevy-Franklin Company, Hamilton avenue, endangering several employes last night, the company reported to the police.

Before police arrived, the marauders had sped away in an automobile. A police guard was maintained at the plant and loitering by pickets was prohibited.

Taxicabs last night refused to transport employes from East End hotels to the plants because of menacing pickets.

UNION RESTRAINED

Judge George V. Moore today handed down a five-day restraining order against the Packing House Workers Industrial Union, and its officers including Edward Stohl, president, prohibiting interference with the operation of the William Zoller Company, now in the hands of a receiver.

He was expected to act later on a petition in behalf of the Hess Company.

At a hearing yesterday, Judge Moore commented:

"It is hard to understand why 300 employes of these companies, with their jobs hanging on a string want to cut the string."

Attorney Joseph H. Reich, representing State Senator Frank J. Harris, the receiver, told the court both companies wanted their employes to return to work and hold a fair election under government supervision.

SEEK POLICE BAN

A delegation purporting to represent 1,800 strikers asked County cil yesterday to prohibit police from interfering with picketing plants of packers and distributors.

Magistrate J. J. Sweeney, in North Side Police Court, assailed John Wenzel, 832 Lockhart street, leader of a crowd of strike sympathizers who halted a truck of the Dold Packing Company, Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday on the North Side after Wenzel admitted he had not worked for the Hess company since January and was on welfare.

TWO HELD OVER

Wenzel and Andrew Lhota, 1130 Voskamp street, were held over. Two brothers, John and Henry Hemmrich, of Sharpsburg, who said they were not citizens, were turned over to immigration authorities. The truck was placed in storage.

Five men arrested after they had compelled P. J. Gall, McKees Rocks retailer, to return to the Morris Company's plant with a load of meat from the Ninth Street Bridge were discharged by Magistrate Sweeney, when he was informed the five will face charges of surety of the peace before Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks tonight. They admitted interfering with Gall.

Car, Auto Collide In Second Avenue

Several passengers on a Hazelwood street car escaped injury early today when an automobile collided headon with the trolley in Second avenue, near Brady street.

Windows in the cab of the street car were broken. John Maraslyk, 36, of 305 Renova street, driver of the automobile was treated at Mercy Hospital.

Dolly Jewels on Block To Pay Dancer's Debts

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 16. — Knocked down at a price of 30 cents on the dollar, Jenny Dolly's magnificent collection of jewels were sold at auction today to enable her to pay her debts.

Seriously injured and possibly permanently disfigured in an auto crash, the famous dancer allowed her noted gems to go to the highest bidder. The collection, valued at more than $1,000,000, brought a total of $300,000.

The highest price paid was $113,000 for Jenny's 52-carat diamond solitaire. It was also the best price of the sale, for Miss Dolly valued ia at $176,000, and many of the pieces in the collection went for far less than her appraisal valuations.

A price of $140,000 was paid for another huge diamond solitaire, cut in almond shape and mounted on a platinum ring.

Both were bought by private French buyers. The conditions of the sale provided an immediate 11 per cent down payment.

Sosiety folk in fashionable clothing mingled with curious shopgirls and shrewd businessmen when the auctioneer placed the collection under the hammer at the Hotel Drouet.

Observers failed to recognize in the crowd any of Jenny's former admirers, some of whom had been expected to buy back the jewels they gave her when her dancing career was at its height.

Baby Enjoys Plane Ride With Mercury 15 Below

What's a 3,000-mile trip to 2½-month-old Virginia Ann Crowley, with the thermometer down to 15 below?

Virginia Ann's mother, arriving here this morning via Transcontinental and Western Air from Los Angeles, says its nothing.

Mrs. Crowley, comely and young wife of Ensign D. S. Crowley, of the Airplane Carrier Saratoga, left Los Angeles yesterday morning. Flying through winds as cold as 15 below, mother and baby landed at the County Airport this morning to change planes for Washington.

Said Mrs. Crowley:

"It was as warm as a Pullman car and I didn't have a bit of trouble with the baby. She slept practically all of the time."

Baby Virginia Ann blinked her eyes sleepily as Co-Pilot Bat Taylor lifted her out of the plane. She looked around for the Pennsylvania Airlines plane poised for the trip to Washington and cooed

PROFITEERING UNDER NRA TO BE AIRED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The NRA hopes next month to prove or disprove oft-heard assertions that profiteering merchants and manufacturers are gouging the public.

Public hearings will start December 12 with only the industries under NRA codes subjected to scrutiny. At these hearings, the NRA announced, any person may submit charges that he paid more than increased costs justified. Those complained against also may be heard. Those desiring to appear personally must notify Deputy Administrator Arthur D. Whiteside by December 2.

By the time that hearing is over, NRA officials said they expected Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, would have ready, or already in force, a new plan to obtain better compliance with codes and Blue Eagle re-employment agreements.

COMPLIANCE 'BAD'

Johnson found compliance conditions "bad" on his just-completed Mid-Western trip. He told the President about the situation and studied proposed remedial steps.

Simultaneously, NRA moved into the differences between labor and employer groups over the construction code, announcing that a public hearing would be held Monday over revised copies of the master code for the industry and supplementary compact. Officials said that in the revision many of organized labor's objections would be met and others would be left for action after public discussion.

Other NRA developments of the day:

Approval by President Roosevelt of seven codes, including one for the air transport industry.

Virtual decision at NRA that the code for newspapers would contain a clause to protect the press against any infringement of its constitutional right to freedom of expression.

DELAY FORD RULING

Further postponement of final decision as to how the government would deal with Henry Ford in the light of rulings by J. R. McCarl, the Comptroller General, that wherever the Ford company is low bidder for government contracts it should be given the business despite Ford's failure to sign the automobile code.

Discussing his trip, Johnson made clear that conferences he held in every community with NRA representatives and local leaders convinced him that present lax conditions in regard to observance of Blue Eagle terms could not be allowed to continue.

Until President Roosevelt had made a decision, Johnson was not prepared to say what would be done, but he said compliance would have to be obtained—"and will be."

CORN-HOG PLAN O.K.--WALLACE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace predicted today that the farm administration's $500,000,000 corn-hog production control program would be a "big success."

Returning from the Middle West where he made three addresses to explain the aims of the Roosevelt farm program, Wallace told newspapermen that while in Iowa Saturday he looked for strikers, but didn't find them.

He disclosed that he had reserved a statement for use in his speech at Des Moines which he did not need to employ. He said:

"I had expected hecklers to ask me about the cost of production idea of the Farmers Union and the Farm Holiday folks. The meeting was open but as it turned out I was not called on by any hecklers and so I did not use it."

Asked about the unused statement, Wallace said he intended making an explanation that the goal of production cost for farming was socially desirable but it would mean "making a public utility out of agriculture which I don't believe most farmers are prepared to see."

Secretary Wallace Gives Critics of the NRA And Farm Program His Idea of Their Purposes

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a speech yesterday, says the Chicago Tribune of last Tuesday criticized the attitude of city folk toward the recovery program as expressed in Chicago newspapers.

This viewpoint, he said, is "far more dangerous than the outbreaks in Iowa." The criticism was uttered in a last minute departure from the text of Mr. Wallace's prepared speech.

The Secretary, who is responsible for carrying through the federal farm adjustment program, spoke before the Association of Land Grant Colleges in the Stevens Hotel.

Starting out to deliver an academic discussion of the relief measures for agriculture and the problems that would follow the present emergency activities, he turned abruptly to a clipping in his hand which he described only as an editorial from a Chicago evening newspaper.

"If the people of Chicago cannot become possessed of a more statesmanlike knowledge of the national crisis," he shouted, pounding on the table, "the consequences will be such that Chicago must surely become an ash heap.

"I admit that the processing tax is unpopular. But it is justified if for no other reason than that it brings us more promptly to realization of our predicament."

Quoting from the newspaper clipping which described the advancing city living costs to meet the expense involved in the program of farm production control, Wallace declared that "it is damnable to set class against class."

"Details of our plans may be subject to criticism," continued the Secretary, "but the plan itself is an effort to face the facts and to correct a situation resulting from 15 years of failure to face resolutely our responsibilities as a creditor nation that also is an exporting nation.

"I don't like the idea of compulsion in making the readjustments in our output that must be made. I would much rather see increased foreign purchasing power come by the reduction of tariffs. But it became necessary for us to take the expedient course at our command."

Mr. Wallace pleaded for a realization by city wage earners of the fact that the wage earner and farmer have fared equally in recent years and that "gross income of farmers has no more than kept pace with wages" since the recovery program was started.

"I have tried to make it clear to farmers, and to the Western governors who sought price-fixing and a rapid price increase," he added, "that farm prices cannot rise as fast as we wanted because the income of purchasers just isn't there to make it possible."

Mr. Wallace likened the NRA and AAA programs to the two legs of a man, who, he said, could not advance one leg much farther than the other. In June and July, he said, the leg of the farmer had been ahead, and in August, September and October the leg representing industry had gained advantage.

"It is impossible to keep an even balance between the two," he said, "yet both must move ahead if we are to bring about recovery. Higher prices of consumer goods, it must be realized, either bring increased payrolls or increased income to distributors and in time they must be reflected in greater purchasing power for all."

Mr. Wallace told the heads of the land grant colleges, upon whom depends actual operating process involved in carrying out the crop reduction program through the state colleges and rural extension services, that:

"All of us will be subjected to great pressure from the extreme right and left—business interests on one hand and radicals on the other. There is danger of being swept off our feet without thinking their proposals through."

The Secretary defended the professors in the "brain trust" as being "more immune to pressure of this sort than any men I know of," because, he said, they have trained minds to attack a problem and see it through.

The taking out of production of between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 acres of land in major crops during 1934, Mr. Wallace said, has brought the nation face to face with the land utilization problem.

He characterized the land policy of President Roosevelt as such that "in time it may be recognized as the most important departure in American land policy since the homestead act."

This land policy, announced last July, was described by the Secretary as the taking out of production of as much submarginal or waste land as could produce crops to be grown on lands being reclaimed.

This land, taken out of production and returned to the public domain, is to be "kept out unless and until there is need for it"; one acre of reclaimed land might call for the retirement of several acres of waste land.

"There are tremendous difficulties ahead in the execution of this policy," asserted Mr. Wallace. "I know we can dispose of them, but we can best do so by facing them realistically at the outset.

"Local demands for government funds with which to reclaim new lands will have to be examined with the utmost care. The record of past government ventures in reclamation is not exactly studded with shining successes."

To show what could be done in readjustment of agrarian lands, Mr. Wallace cited figures to prove that half of the farms of the nation could be taken out of commercial production and the total output be reduced only 11 per cent.

On the other hand, he pointed out that many of the miners and other industrial workers now being permanently thrown out of occupations through economic changes, came originally from farms.

"It is too early to say with any assurance whether or not these workers have gone back to farms to stay there, but there are signs and portents that the rush to the cities of past decades may not be repeated."

Secretary Wallace gave only a brief discussion of the present emergency efforts to curtail cotton, wheat tobacco, corn, and hog production, describing them as having been "remarkably successful."

He admitted that "we have made hundreds of mistakes," but said that this was to be expected where so many thousand people were involved and that:

"The surprise to me is that there have not been more mistakes."

The most hopeful sign, he declared, was that millions of people, and especially farmers, who had come to be independent operators and thinkers, were beginning to consider their operations from a national and international point of view.

"In spite of the malcontents," said Mr. Wallace, "they are beginning to get the feeling of a common goal voluntarily and intelligently approached."

But he added the warning that:

"If selfish, bitter prejudices enter in too much, the nation may find it necessary eventually as a matter of self-preservation to use compulsion. I hope that such measures will not be necessary, because I regard them as against the inmost spirit of the American farmer as I know him."

After his address, Mr. Wallace made an effort to allay the fears of the college leaders and corps of governmental employes who had gathered to hear him.

He said that even though the administration is spending millions in reducing production, it does not intend to relax scientific research and investigation. He said he intended to use his efforts to combat any tendency toward curtailing the expenditures for extension and educational work in agriculture.

"With all of this there is the hope of progress being made in this nation and among the nations toward a higher plane of spiritual life," he asserted.

"We are moving toward the position where wealthy men cannot get more than 10 to 15 times the incomes of good workmen—which is in reality the heart of the New Deal."

EMPLOYMENT GAIN SLIGHT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—While there was a return of 85,000 workers to employment between September and October in the manufacturing industries and 16 non-manufacturing industries regularly surveyed by the Labor Department, employment in the manufacturing industries showed but little change between the two months, Secretary Frances Perkins said today.

The increase amounted to only one-tenth of one per cent over the month interval. In the non-manufacturing industries, the gains in employment in 11 of the industries more than offset the declines in the remaining five.

Reports from retail trade establishments indicate a gain of approximately 117,000 workers in that industry between the two months.

Miss Perkins said the gains in employment and payroll in October, added to the cumulative gains since March, indicated the return of employment, over the seven-month interval, of over 2,800,000 workers in the industries surveyed, with an increase in weekly payroll aggregates of almost $70,000,000 in October over the estimated weekly disbursements in March.

NRA AIDE DENIES CURB ON PRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Newspaper publishers should not think, Dr. Lindsay Rogers, deputy NRA administrator, said yesterday, that government control of broadcasting "will be any precedent for public supervision of publishing."

Prof. Rogers, declaring the spoken word of the radio was a transitory thing soon forgotten, while the written word of the press, good or bad, was an imperishable record, said it was "inconceivable that we could have broadcasting without some measure of supervision." Addressing the Newspaper Guild of New York, Rogers said:

"A newspaper can be printed in any form that the proprietor desires without preventing the publication of another newspaper, but unless broadcasters are limited to different wave lengths, they interfere with each other.

"Again it is particularly true in respect to broadcasting that, to paraphrase a fact not unfamiliar to news writers, the flowing voice speaks and having spoken moves on; and that neither your piety nor wit shall lure it back to cancel half a syllable. There must, therefore, be some control in advance to erect safeguards against obscenity and libel."

NRA VIOLATORS PROSECUTED

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Criminal prosecution of NRA violators was launched by the government today when the federal grand jury in Brooklyn handed down the first indictments under the Recovery Act.

A Brooklyn gasoline filling station company and two of its officials were charged with violating provisions of the code governing the petroleum industry.

Coincidentally, it was announced that Secretary Ickes, of the Department of Interior, had directed that prosecutions be launched immediately in all parts of the country.

Today's indictments alleged that the gasoline company worked some of its employes 66 hours a week, instead of 48 as provided by the code, and violated another provision calling for the posting of tax separate from the price of gasoline.

Poets Demand Code, Weekly Wage of $100

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—And now a code for the poets and poetesses. It was filed with the NRA by Earl A. Cuevas, of Washington, president of the Poet Laureate League. It would keep the poet from working the muse more than 35 hours a week. The poet, not the muse, would be guaranteed a minimum weekly wage of $100; if the rhymes were syndicated, the minimum would be $200.

FARMER 'HERO,' SAYS BORAH

WEISER, Idaho, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, described the farmer as the "hero" of the economic situation in an address last night and assailed the "powerful figures in finance" who have "defrauded the people of millions."

The Congressional investigation, he said, disclosed that bankers had "cheated and defrauded the people by selling them millions of dollars of worthless securities and then turned about and began cheating and robbing one another, and at last cheating the state and nation of their taxes."

The meeting was arranged by the Weiser Lions Club.

FRICK FIGURES DENY CHARGE OF LOW PAY

Contrasting its policies with those of other producers, the H. C. Frick Coke Company in a statement last night denied charges that its new wage rates "are the lowest paid by any operator in Pennsylvania."

The statement was issued while a committee of the National Labor Board, with headquarters in the William Penn Hotel, was completing details for an election next week in "captive tonnage" mines, in which workers will name representatives to deal with operators. It made no direct reference to a charge of Philip Murray, of the United Mine Workers of America, that the Frick Company "has made nothing short of a bold and deliberate attempt to violate provisions of the NRA." The statement read:

"At the No. 20 mine of the Jamison Coal and Coke Company, and the Uniontown mine of the South Union Coal Company, the United Mine Workers of America made agreements under which the miner is paid 33 cents per net ton for loading the coal, but the miner makes the falls. The company drills and shoots the hole, furnishes the powder and delivers the mine car.

"At several mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company with similar conditions, contracts have been made with representatives of employes under which miners are paid 32 cents per net ton while loading the coal, but the company makes the falls. In addition thereto, it drills and shoots the holes, furnishes the powder and delivers the mine car. It costs the H. C. Frick Coke Company in excess of 1 cent per ton to make these falls and permits increased output per miner per day."

PROBE WEIRTON VOTE CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The National Labor Board today directed its secretary, Dr. W. M. Leiserson, now in Pittsburgh, to send a representative to Weirton, W. Va., to investigate charges that employes are bein coerced into voting for establishment of a company union at the Weirton Steel Company.

The company, by agreement with the labor board, is to hold an election December 11, for the employes to choose their representatives for collective bargaining.

Teh issue is described as between an American Federation of Labor union and a company organization.

An affidavit filed with the labor board alleges employes have been called into the company office where letters are read to them, purporting to be refusals by important manufacturing concerns to deal with the Weirton plant if it becomes unionized.

Leiserson is in Pittsburgh now to supervise next week's elections in the "captive coal mines" owned by steel companies.

WIFE WHO SLEW RIVAL WAITS IN JAIL

International News Service.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 16.—Texas justice faced the task of prosecuting Mrs. L. W. Boone, 37-year-old mother who followed the code of the Old South by shooting to death her rival, Mrs. Pearl Hall, 30, as her husband looked on.

Held in jail without bond on the charge of slaying the comely brunette widow, Mrs. Boone admitted taking Mrs. Hall before her husband, L. W. (Dan) Boone, in their small apartment and there shooting her rival to death.

Officers investigating the dramatic shooting said Mrs. Boone indicated she would base her defense on the unwritten law that justifies slaying for the invasion of a home. That self defense might also be her plea was indicated when Mrs. Boone told investigators she thought Mrs. Hall was about to attack her.

The examining trial was set for Saturday before a justice of the peace.

Before sending a bullet from an automatic pistol through Mrs. Hall's chest, Mrs. Boone awakened her husband to witness the execution.

In a statement to police the outraged wife admitted luring the comely widow to the Boone apartment in the early morning hours.

During the automobile ride to her home, Mrs. Boone said the widow, not recognizing her as Boone's wife, told of her associations with him during the last six months.

Taking her rival into the bedroom, she awakened her husband and commanded:

"Now tell him what you have been telling me."

Mrs. Hall cried:

"She knows all about us."

As Boone started toward the two women, his wife drew the automatic pistol and fired, killing her rival almost instantly.

HART KIDNAPING QUIZ SECRET

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Two men, whose identity was shrouded in secrecy, were questioned today in connection with the kidnaping of Brooke L. Hart, 22-year-old San Jose store executive.

Information concerning the seizure and identity of the pair was closely guarded by officials, but the San Francisco Chronicle said it understood the two were known as J. M. Holmes and George Owen.

The man identified as Owen was taken into custody last night by Sheriff William J. Emig and Department of Justice operatives as he was telephoning from a San Francisco garage. The other man was arrested today.

The two men were grilled in Emig's office. Reed Vetterlie, chief investigator for the Department of Justice, was present.

The second man was understood to have been arrested at a hotel as a result of the first arrest.

The first demand for $40,000 ransom came in a telephone call from San Francisco, and since then the Hart family has received many other demands, purportedly from the kidnapers.

CERMAK'S KIN THREATENED

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Despite denials of the story from the child's mother, Dade County authorities today pushed an investigation into an alleged plot to kidnap the granddaughter of the late Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago.

W. W. Wood, Miami politician, in a sworn statement to County Solicitor Fred Pine said the alleged kidnapers demanded a total of $63,000 under threats to kidnap 3-year-old Mary Alice Kenlay, daughter of Mrs. Helen Cermak Kenlay, of Chicago, and later threatened to kill the child, its mother and himself.

Pine further quoted Wood as saying he had already paid the alleged kidnapers $8,000.

From Chicago Mrs. Kenlay denied her child had been threatened and said the story sounded like "attempts of some one to gain publicity." She said she had not paid any extortion money and that the whole thing sounded like "a joke."

Realism Marks Hard Times Tale Of Pittsburgh

ARISTA E. FISHER

Novelist, Instructor At Tech, Describes Scenes Here

Arista E. Fisher, instructor of English at Carnegie Institute of Technology, has written a novel of Pittsburgh, its mill people and their turmoil during the depression.

Set in Oakland, the Second avenue steel mills, Craft and Meyron avenues; the "Coyne for County Commissioner" signs still splotched on poles and corners, local radio programs—all these form familiar interjections and background for the psychological study.

Schenley Park and its people come in for some inspection, too.

Fisher, who has made Pittsburgh his home for nearly eight years, gets the city's atmosphere unequivocally into the book, which he calls "Requiem."

It doesn't present a roseate city, but a stark, industrial place, where the grind of the wheels of the mills has been silenced, and the grind of poverty and trouble has arisen within a mill worker's family.

Fisher, from Massachusetts, came here after taking his master's degree at Harvard University and spending a year at the Sorbonne in Paris. It's his third novel; his short stories and sketches, however, have appeared in many magazines. One appeared in 1931 among the Best Stort Stories in Britain.

GUARD FACTOR IN COURT

By MILTON S. MAYER

International News Service.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 16.—Fear for the safety of John Factor, expected to testify today against Roger Touhy and his three Chicago associates in the William Hamm kidnaping trial, was evidenced in the secrecy with which the government has surrounded the movements and whereabouts of the millionaire stock broker.

Factor was brought here from Chicago guarded by two federal operatives, who sat with him in the courtroom throughout the day.

Whether Factor's life has been threatened as the result of his identification in Chicago of Touhy and six gangster associates as his kidnapers, is not known. His willingness to testify against four of these men—all members of the Touhy beer mob—indicates that he is not afraid of reprisal.

Movie Actress Weds Studio Staff Doctor

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Eleanor Hunt, movie actress and former wife of Rex Lease, also of the movies, was married here yesterday to Dr. Frank S. Nolan, staff physician of Columbia Studio, Hollywood.

The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace.

Philippines' Chief Kills Tax Leniency

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Asserting "a sound, solvent government is the first necessity of a modern community," Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy today vetoed a legislative act remitting tax penalties on provincial real estate accumulated until last year.

He said no substantial benefit would accrue to the government and it would set a bad precedent. Tax delinquency is not of major proportions in the Philippines, he added. It was Murphy's first veto since he came here earlier this year from Detroit, where he was Mayor.

Fighting Lady Mayor To Face Recall Vote

SEATTLE, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Stella M. Alexander, fighting Mayor of the little coal mining town of Issaquah, must face a recall election December 30.

Difficulties with her all-male City Council, which began last summer when she ousted one of them from a meeting with the aid of a chair, have ended with charges of malfeasance and misfeasance in office.

Miriam Hopkins Goes Back to Broadway

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Miriam Hopkins, motion picture star, had signed today to replace Tallulah Bankhead in the leading role of the new play by Owen Davis, "Jezebel." Miss Hopkins' last Broadway appearance was three years ago in the Greek drama, "Lysistrata."

Miss Bankhead has been ill for several months, and only recently underwent an operation.

State Tax League Invited to Meet Here

An invitation to the members of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania, having a membership of 750,000 to hold its next meeting in Pittsburgh, has been extended on behalf of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League by I. Leonard Aronson, president of the latter organization.

The invitation to the Tax Justice League was extended yesterday during a meeting of representatives of the tax organizations at State College, Pa.

Mexican Newlyweds Greet Friends in U. S.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—In Los Angeles on a honeymoon following their marriage five days ago in Mexico City, Alberto R. Pani, son of Mexico's recent minister of finance, and his wife were greeted yesterday by friends he had made while a student at a university here.

They plan to remain here about a week before sailing for New York via the Panama Canal.

Father, Four Sons Indicted in Killings

GRUNDY, Va., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Adam Justice and four sons, Zeb, Matt, Boyd and Walter, are under indictment on three charges in connection with the killing of George Akers, deputy sheriff, of Princeton, W. Va., George Collins and Hiram Collins, of Tiogabutioga, W. Va., on Knox creek August 15.

Matilda Roberts, who has been held in jail since the tragedy, was taken before the grand jury, as a witness. She was riding in the car with the victims when the tragedy occurred.

McCanns Fruit and Vegetable Department

A JUNE garden couldn't offer more variety than does our Fruit and Vegetable Department today—seasons mean nothing at McCanns. When tomatoes, green beans and suchlike are not available in these parts, we go to California, Florida or wherever the best fruit and vegetables are to be found. And because we buy and sell such huge quantities, out-of-season fruits and vegetables are practically as low-priced at McCanns as they are when the homegrown variety is at its peak of production. There's no excuse for not eating fresh fruits and vegetables the year 'round when you do your food shopping at McCanns.

PINCHOT LIQUOR TAX BILLS SPLIT

day, it could not be considered an accurate forecast of the vote on the main plank in the Pinchot liquor program.

The bill creating state-controlled stores for wholesale distribution will appear on the House second reading calendar next Monday and is due to get kicked around. Amendments to this plan are developing in batches and the ultimate fate of the measure is conjectural.

Besides the floor tax bill, the House today passed Pinchot measures lifting the alcoholic content restriction on beer, and eliminating wines from the malt beverage act passed at the last session. Wines, under the new legislation proposed by the Governor, will be placed in the same class with whisky, both as to taxation and control.

Gov. Pinchot today declined to comment on any amendments or proposed amendments to his liquor stores bill. He said:

"I have no comment to make except that I am for the bill as written."

This statement was in response to reports that the Governor was willing to compromise so long as the central feature of his bill, state liquor stores, was retained.

PRESSURE EXPECTED

House members leaving Harrisburg today expected to be under pressure over the week-end to amend the bill along lines demanded by various organizations, including the various liquor dealers' associations, the hotel men and druggists. It is admitted that the maneuvering of Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, which delayed passage of the bill this week, had prejudiced its chances in anything resembling its present form.

Even should the House approve with comparatively minor amendments, the Senate then will have a whack at the proposition, and the organizations, which lose their fights in the House will renew them in the upper branch. As with all legislation, each day of delay increases the hazards.

Rural members who approve the state stores plan are openly critical of Republican leadership which in Tuesday's caucus indorsed delay when the votes were at hand to shove the measure through.

There is increasing support for the amendment inserted by Representative Witkin requiring restaurants to have no more than 500 square feet of floor space to be eligible for license.

Representative John J. Kane, of Pittsburgh, intends to offer an amendment next week preventing women from serving whisky. They are now permitted to serve beer. Other Democrats have some ideas for amendment, but there is no unity among them on the subject, and they may take no hand in the struggle until the bill eventually returns to the House from the Senate, where it is certain to be amended.

OPPOSE HOUR RESTRICTION

Hotel men object to the provision that drinks may not be mixed or displayed in the room where they are served, and have gained some support for an attack on the restriction of sale to the hours of 12 noon to 12 midnight.

While Pennsylvania is wrestling with the liquor problem, the interstate conference on liquor control, plans to meet with President Roosevelt and seek his support for regulations dealing with interstate liquor control. Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth in the Pinchot cabinet, is chairman of a committee named to draft a model statute.

The ideas of several eastern state authorities are being embodied in the bill, which in its salient features follows the Pinchot state stores bill.

FIGHTING FLAMES ON THE LATE HENRY W. OLIVER MANSION, A NURSES' HOME TODAY

Pinchot Aides Hit Cost Of State Government

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—At least two members of Gov. Pinchot's cabinet agree there is "too much government" in Pennsylvania.

Addressing the closing session of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women's annual convention last night, Attorney Gen. William A. Schnader and State Treasurer Charles A. Waters condemned this situation.

Criticizing "too many tax-eating government agencies," Waters asserted:

"Beyond all question of doubt government costs too much."

Schnader, referring to the 5,611 local governments in the state, said three-fourths of these units are "obsolete" and could be eliminated. He added:

"We have entirely too much government; and too much government is bound to be expensive."

The convention closed after adopting a resolution urging the Legislature to "keep liquor out of politics," and recommending that revenue from liquor be made available "as soon as possible" for unemployment relief.

Mrs. Clifton A. Verner, of Pittsburgh, was advanced to third vice president, and Mrs. George B. Hemphill, of Beaver Falls, and Mrs. Gertrude Stauffer, of Lancaster, were named to the board of directors.

All other officers, headed by Miss S. M. R. O'Hara as president, and all other directors were re-elected.

WHISKY MAKING RIGHT ARGUED

The right of the Pennsylvania Distilling Company to manufacture medicinal whisky under a federal permit, but without a state permit, was argued yesterday in Criminal Court before Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County. The case originated in Armstrong County.

Judge Graff, after hearing the arguments, said his decision would be announced later.

District Attorney William A. Ashe, of Armstrong County, maintained the company lacks the right to distill liquor, because a state permit had been refused. The federal permit was granted June 24 and expires at the end of this year.

PINCHOT LIQUOR PLAN SCORED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot's liquor control plan was pictured by a committee of wholesale liquor men today as "the surest way of continuing a bootleggers' paradise."

The description was contained in a statement issued by the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Wholesale Wine and Spirits Merchants' Association, composed of Theodore G. Stein and James Carstairs, Philadelphia, and Patrick F. Cusick, Scranton.

Saying the Pinchot proposal for a $2 a gallon floor tax and the expected federal tax of about $3 a gallon would mean "$1.25 a quart before consideration of any other charge," the statement asserts that the bootleeger, using smuggled liquor, "can continue to undersell the distributor even if the distributor is the state itself."

State-owned stores were described as a political haven of patronage and the statement concludes:

"We wonder whether, despite the Governor's undoubted belief in the efficacy of his plans, he has not also an eye to the political machine which could be floated on liquor to the harbor of a membership in the United States Senate."

VOTE RECOUNT EXPENSE VOTED

The County Commissioners today authorized the judges of the return board to spend what was necessary to detect and expose fraud.

Informed, the resolution stated, the judges were hesitant about expending the money for recounting boxes showing evidences of irregularities, the commissioners stated they believed it the duty of all officials to detect, expose and prosecute election fraud.

The judges were informed the county would bear the expense of reopening and counting as many boxes as needed.

And at the same time, Judge Samuel H. Gardner was signing petitions by Democratic counsel, asking recount of the First and Second districts, Millvale; First and Second districts, Second Ward, Pittsburgh; First and Second of the Third Ward, and Fourth of the Seventh. Eight other petitions were granted the Democrats yesterday.

No decision has as yet been made on the ballots left by thugs in the Eighth District, Seventeenth Ward. With 223 districts tabulated by the return board, the contest for Sheriff stood:

Deny Auto Insurance Required With Tags

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger today spiked reports that the new financial responsibility law will affect all persons applying for 1934 license tags by declaring "this is positively untrue."

Tags are being issued at the present time, Metzger said, without thought to this new act and will continue to be issued. The law only affects any auto driver not satisfactorily settling claims against him after an accident.

'Baby' Burgess Pledges Town Officer, Lockup

Youth Ready to Stir Things Up In Clarksville

CLARKSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 16.—The saga of Clarksville has never been written.

It never has had a lockup or a policeman.

But beginning right now, with the election of 21-year-old Glenn A. Arnold as burgess, folks might do well to keep their eyes peeled.

A young Democrat, he won—and this is his platform:

"I'm going to advocate the appointment of a regular policeman and the establishment of a lockup for Clarksville.

"Many of the townsfolk have already urged me to take such action. I'll bring it up at the next meeting of Council."

Clarksville, if you don't know, is in Greene County.

It has been policed by a constable from East Bethlehem Township.

At the general election Tuesday, young Arnold voted for the second time—his first vote having been cast in the primary—and he defeated Burgess W. A. Staull, Republican, by 27 votes.

You can depend on youth. Just watch Clarksville. You can't tell what will happen, in the way of doing things, from now on.

OHIO RUM PLAN DRAFTED

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Recommendations for a liquor control system after repeal in Ohio were ready today to be submitted to Gov. White, but members of the Governor's advisory commission, who drafted the plans, kept their counsel on what the program represented.

Nevertheless, the Ohio State Journal said it understood the recommendations will call for licensing bona fide hotels, restaurants and clubs to sell wines and beers of high alcoholic content; will propose retail package sales of whisky in establishments under strict state regulation, and will suggest appointment of a three-member state commission to be advised by county committees.

M'NAIR VISITS VOTE FRAUD TRIAL

and George Taylor, the election constable.

DISCREPANCY CITED

Yesterday Nelson A. Zimmerman, federal investigator, testified a count of ballots in the box, which was opened in the courtroom, disclosed only 16 ballots cast for the straight Democratic ticket.

The government had placed 45 witnesses, including eight nuns, on the stand, who testified they had voted the straight Democratic ticket.

As the first trial neared a close, 115 witnesses summoned for the second prosecution gathered in the Federal Building. They were excused until this afternoon.

In the second trial the defendants will be members of the election board of the Nineteenth District, Fourth Ward, home of Senator Coyne.

'REVOLT' WINS TAX SLASH

CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A taxpayers' "revolt" has won a $15,000,000 reduction in the 1933 assessed valuation of property in this city.

Mayor William Ward, Jr., and James L. Rankin, leader of a group which raised strenuous protests against the valuation, announced jointly last night that all assessments, totaling $71,000,000, which had been mailed to property owners, have been ordered canceled and that new assessments will go out as soon as possible.

These will effect a straight 20 per cent cut on assessments of all business properties within the downtown districts and from 20 to 30 per cent reductions on a large number of residences.

Michigan Proposes Vote on Rum Plan

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 18.—(INS.)—Sale of liquor by the glass will be left to municipal governing bodies and ratified by the people at a special election, under a substitute section now being written into the state liquor control bill.

A two-thirds vote of the governing body would be necessary before the question would be submitted to the voters for ratification.

EAGLES' LEADER HAPPY OVER PARDON

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Conrad H. Mann, saved from a five-months' prison sentence by a pardon from President Roosevelt, turned to his Kansas City home today happy and grateful.

Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, had entered the federal house of detention to start serving the sentence for violation of the federal lottery laws in connection with enterprises of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, of which he was formerly national president.

LEAVES PRISON

Four hours later he left the prison a free man, as a result of the President's last-minute pardon.

With tears in his eyes, Mann said he was "deeply grateful" to President Roosevelt for giving him his freedom. He waved a jovial goodby to the prison guards as he drove away. Previously he had been described as being "all broken up."

His attorney, Clyde Taylor, of Kansas City, who waited for his client in a taxicab before the warehouse-like detention house, asked him:

"How did you feel when you heard the news?"

GLAD TO GET OUT

Mann said:

"I can't tell you that, for I don't know myself. But I can tell you I was mighty glad to get out. I'm going right back to Kansas City as soon as I can. What else is there to be done?"

Former Congressman John M. Morin, of Pennsylvania, who waited for Mann with Taylor, replied:

"Nothing at all. You're free right now to do what you want."

George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, declined to comment on the pardon, saying:

"It is not for me to discuss Mr. Roosevelt's action."

Mann's pardon climaxed a day of much activity in the federal government's campaign against alleged violations of lottery laws by fraternal orders. It was announced that outstanding charges against United States Senator James J. Davis for alleged lottery violations have been quashed.

Urges Civil Service For Vote Counters

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Establishment of an election system whereby ballots would be counted only by persons who have passed civil service examinations, was advocated today by Common Pleas Judge Horace Stern.

Pinchot Backers See $2 Liquor Possible

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Administration officers, hoping for approval of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's state store system of liquor control, today saw the possibility of purchasing liquor at $2 a quart through the dispensaries.

Manufacturing costs and the proposed tax will permit $2 sales, they claim. It also would enable licensed retailers to sell drinks in proportion to this price and make a profit of 10 cents on a glass.

Sales Tax Imposed On N. Y. Speakeasies

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—With repeal of prohibition less than three weeks away, New York state has decided speakeasies must pay the 1 per cent retail sales tax on the liquids they dispense in the final month.

Decision to this effect was made yesterday by Mark Graves, state tax commission president. Lists of the speakeasies have been compiled by the commission and will be turned over to sales tax examiners for inauguration of a thorough canvas.

WOMAN LAUDED FOR DISCOVERY IN EPIDEMIC

The story of the sleeping sickness plague in St. Louis and what the medical profession is doing to prevent its recurrence, was the theme of an address last night by Dr. Howard McCordock, noted St. Louis pathologist, at the Health Day program in the Hotel Schenley.

The meeting, attended by nearly 1,000 persons, many of them physicians, was held under auspices of the Allegheny County Medical Society.

Dr. McCordock said the discovery of Dr. Margaret Smith, former Carnegie girl, that inclusion bodies were associated with a virus disease limited the search for the caustic agent, and was the most important contribution to the medical profession's battle against the disease.

FEW CASES NOW

Although the epidemic is over, Dr. McCordock said occasional cases still appear in St. Louis hospitals, averaging two a month. They are gradually decreasing, he said, and probably will soon cease entirely.

Symptoms, sources and treatment of the disease were discussed by Dr. McCordock. Encephalitis he defined literally as an infection of the brain.

There are three types of the disease, he said, and the one that attacked St. Louis is the rarest and most difficult to overcome.

Speaking of this type, he said:

"It has been known as Japanese sleeping sickness, type B, since it first appeared in Japan in 1924. There were 7,000 cases in that epidemic, and 50 per cent of them were fatal."

MANY NOT RECORDED

In the St. Louis epidemic there were 1,200 recorded cases, but Dr. McCordock expressed the belief that many others in the city were not included in the record. The mortality of the disease in the Missouri city was 20 per cent.

Future epidemics of sleeping sickness are possible, he said, since their origin is not known. Concerning the source of the disease in St. Louis, he continued:

"We eliminated from possible causes the water supply, the food supply and the milk supply. We analyzed 150 insects, and subjected doctors to bites by various mosquitoes. Nothing definite was found."

CAME IN HOT SEASON

Dr. McCordock declared to be significant the fact that the St. Louis epidemic came during the hottest summer of the city's history. The epidemic in Japan and a lesser one in Australia, he said, also came in the midst of record-breaking hot spells.

Dr. Logan Clendening, professor of clinical medicine at the University of Kansas, in his address, "The Heritage of Medicine," voiced the opinion that state medicine would never become successful, asserting different persons require and demand different medicine and treatment.

Dr. George W. Grier, president of the medical society, presided.

Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once underway is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside. A cold, you know, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

JUNIOR PATROL

We want to remind you again about the Welfare Fund and other campaigns to get money for the poor and sick this winter, fellows!

As you know, the Welfare Fund is the Community Chest of the Pittsburgh district — that means that money people give for the welfare is divided among many different organizations, all of them doing their best to do good.

It will be up to them this cold, bitter winter to give food, shelter and clothing to poor people, and to take care of many sick and injured people. The same kind of campaigns are going on in towns and cities outside of Pittsburgh all over the country, and we hope no matter where our Junior Patrol members live that you will do everything you can to help.

Not only give money, food and clothing if you possibly can yourselves, but ask others to help as much as they can, too.

It's a terrible thing, fellows, to be sick and cold and hungry. We who live in warm homes and eat good meals every day don't realize how hard it is—don't realize the hardships of our fellow human beings who are in want. Many people give their dogs better treatment than thousands of poor and sick people are getting.

Today's dandy letter comes from Capt. Charles Janovec, of 294 Penn avenue, Salem, O. Here is his letter:

"I am sending five more new members to my patrol, please send the badges and the membership cards to their address. The other members received their badges and cards which they are proud of. We have 15 members now.

"We hold our meetings on Friday at my place in a garage which we have fixed for our meetings. We have elected a secretary, Junior Menough, of 364 Penn avenue. The dues the members pay are 2 cents a week. We also save newspapers and magazines to raise money for the club.

"We have a football team which I coach. We practice every day for an hour and a half after school. We have played two games which we have won by a score of 42-34; the second, 27-6.

"We are to have a Thanksgiving party. We are going to elect a committee of five for the refreshments and decorations.

"All the members read the Junior Patrol Mail Box and they all think it is interesting to read about the other clubs."

Okay, Charles, you must have a dandy active club, and we are anxious to get another letter from you. With more good news.

JUNIOR LEAGUE DISPLAYS ART

Etchings by Morgan Dennis, of New York, compose a special art exhibit under auspices of the Junior League of Pittsburgh, which will continue through November.

The display is largely composed of etchings of dogs. A few pastel portraits of children add color to the exhibit. It is open to the public daily in the league's rooms, Clark Building, from 9:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. The rooms close Saturday at noon.

The exhibit is under direction of the art and interest committee. Mrs. Raymond F. Moreland is chairman and Mrs. McCook Reed, assistant chairman.

D. A. R. IGNORES PAINTING

"Daughters of Revolution," the Carnegie International canvas which brought criticism from several sources, escaped mention at the meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Hotel Schenley yesterday. Censure of the painting would "only call attention to the ridicule" of the picture, it was held by officers.

Yesterday's meeting was in honor of Mrs. Russell W. Magna, of Holyoke, Mass., president-general of the society.

Westminster Names Health Service Aide

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—Miss Alice Maxwell, graduate of the Presbyterian Hospital training school for nurses, has been named resident nurse in the complete health service organized for Westminster College this year. The college has equipped infirmary rooms in both Browne Hall and the Hillside dormitory.

That masculine fortress, the Duquesne Club, was the scene today of a debutante party! For some time there's been a special dining room for wives and daughters of club members, but this is the club's bow as a scene of deb entertaining.

The Duquesne Club debutante, Antoinette (Tony) Vilsack, the daughter of the Maurice Vilsacks, Beechwood boulevard, was presented at a luncheon her mother gave at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The two private rooms on the third floor of the club were used.

A distinctive gown of amber crystelle velvet was the choice of the debutante. It was made in the sheath-style draped in cowl fashion at the neckline, and had as its only trimming sable extending from the left shoulder to the waistline. Her gob-styled small hat was of brown velvet, trimmed with copper beads.

Her mother chose a wild blackberry faille gown with a negri brown felt hat. She entertained a few of her friends at her table.

In between all these d.. parties, the girls are rehearsing for their dances in the Cinderella Ball Thanksgiving Eve in the University Club.

Some of the debs will sell cigarets and others will usher. Cigaret girls for the night will be Elinor Cowdrey, Nancy Chess, Mathilde Reed and Frances Gott.

Ushering will be Katharine Ward, Katharine Dangerfield, Margaret Phillips and Maria Wilson.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening vivacious Alice Douglas Brown, the McCleane Browns' daughter, will be a much-feted debutante.

Bud Bows Tomorrow

Her mother will give a tea to present her tomorrow afternoon in the Allegheny Country Club. And tomorrow night the deb's grandfather, J. Stuart Brown, will entertain at a dinner dance in the club for her.

At her tea, Alice will have as her aides Betsy Liggett, Gwendolen Holmes, Margaretta Oliver, Peggy Mitchell, Barbara Verner and Patricia Witherow, all sister debs, and Elizabeth Craig, post-deb.

Her mother's aides will be Mrs. Ralph S. Richards, Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, Mrs. Percy E. Donner, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. Clinton L. Childs, Mrs. Hubert L. Moore, Mrs. William P. Witherow, Mrs. David McG. Witherow, Mrs. J. Stuart Brown, Jr., Mrs. Leslie M. Johnston, Mrs. Lucian Patton and Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell.

Debut Aides

Debutante Alice (Gracie to her friends) will be honor guest at a dinner Mrs. Clinton L. Childs will give December 28, before the ball for Mary Gordon that night in the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Some of Pittsburgh's children are posing for their portraits nowadays, being done by Morgan Dennis. The Junior League is exhibiting his pastels of children and of dogs at the clubrooms in the Clark Building—the exhibit's open to the public.

Pose for Portraits

Mr. Dennis, who'll be here until the first of December, has done a portrait of Mrs. T. Howe Nimick's little daughter and of Mrs. James McKay's.

Pittsburgh society will meet one of Washington's leading hostesses, Mrs. George Barnett, wife of the late Maj. Gen. George Barnett, at a tea Mrs. W. Harry Brown, her hostess, will give for her Tuesday afternoon in her home.

Winner of Play Contest Gives Luncheon

Prize-winning Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd—she won all three prizes in a play-writing contest of the Twentieth Century Club drama committee this past winter—entertained with a luncheon at the Twentieth Century Club before one of her prize winners, "The Challenge," was presented.

Her guest of honor was Mrs. Bennett Chapple, of Littletown, O., a member of the Iron City Fishing Club, to which Pittsburghers galore belong. There were 20 some guests, almost all Iron City members. Another out-of-town guest for the luncheon and the "theater party" was Mrs. D. Alan Burt, of Wheeling, W. Va.

During her visit here, timed to include Mrs. Todd's play, Mrs. Chapple will be the house guest of Mrs. C. B. Steffey.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

The architects are "at it" again. Now they're having an art bazar at their amusing clubhouse in Charette way (a downtown alley to the uninitiated.)

After you've seen the exhibit, (it's open to the public) you can have tea, served at the elevated end of the club's main room.

Placed on an easel at the entrance to the tea salon is a massively framed crayon drawing of a hilarious gathering on which is lettered "Tea stimulates the emotions." In one corner a man and woman in a clinch dangle a tea cup behind each other's back.

By the way, the Architectural Club has received scads of requests for more soires charettes, and I hear that the requests are to be granted.

Deb Mary Edwards found herself penniless the other day—had to scurry about to borrow luncheon money.

Wherever Mrs. Edward Wallis Woods goes, her knitting is sure to be with her. She was working on a white wool skirt at the Westover luncheon yesterday.

Metropolitan Basso Will Sing at Mrs. Martin's Birthday Dinner

A basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Arthur Anderson, will be among those who will sing at the dinner to be given tomorrow night in the Twentieth Century Club for one of Pittsburgh's most interesting women, Mrs. James Stephen Martin.

The dinner will celebrate Mrs. Martin's seventieth birthday and her 40 years of service to the cause of music in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. David V. Murdoch is chairman of the evening; Dr. Harvey B. Gaul, toastmaster. Dr. Jacob Simpson Payton will pronounce the invocation; Lewis E. Huseman will read John A. Bell's tribute from the First Presbyterian Church; Miss Georgina Negley will bring greetings from the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, John L. Porter will give reminiscences. Miss Anne Griffiths will describe the Martin studio atmosphere, Dr. Will Earhart will give an address, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, early choral impressions; Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh will speak of Mrs. Martin's influence.

In addition to Mr. Anderson, Esther Edmundson Mohr, soprano; Anna Woestehoff, contralto, and John Dickson Fulton, tenor, will be soloists.

A quartet, including Mrs. Mohr, Mrs. Woestehoff, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Anderson, will sing Cadman's "Morning of the Year," which was dedicated to the late Mr. Martin.

The Foster Singers, Esther Edmundson Mohr, Betty Young, Eda Kreiling and Anna Woestehoff, will sing, too, and so will a chorus directed by Ernest Lunt. Accompanists are Helen Reed Herman, Mrs. Murdoch, Homer Wicklne and Earl Mitchell.

There'll be singing during the dinner, led by Burton Hill Mustin.

Rosalie Siegal Married to Doctor

Mrs. Abraham W. Hirschfield was Miss Rosalie Lora Siegal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Siegal, of Craft avenue, before her marriage on November 4 to Dr. Hirschfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hirschfield of Bartlett street.

Mrs. Hirschfield

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock that evening in the Siegal home with Rabbi Herman Hailperin officiating. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore Persian green triple sheer dinner gown trimmed with gold metallic cloth with which she wore a gold cloth turban. Her boquet was of bronze chrysanthemums.

After a wedding trip to Chicago Dr. and Mrs. Hirschfield are at home in Craft avenue.

The sub-sub-deb left, below, has a thick soft bang cut across her childish brow, with just the suggestion of broad wave over the ears. Center, her sub-deb sister begins to sculpture her locks, though softly, and adds two tiny star ornaments.

Left, the active Junior Leaguer has her locks waved up from the forehead to curls which back one of the successful tiara ornaments. Below, the smart matron who mothered them all has all her graying hair swirled in waves to one ear, finishing the swirl with curls and jewelled pins.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE are certain occasions in a winter of social events when ever the child in her early 'teens can expect to step out with all the women of her family to an evening gala. The dancing class frock will probably cover the costume question for her, but you could not blame the poppet if she rebelled at wearing a hat with it when her older sisters and her smart young mother have had every hair put into shape to be exhibited as the perfect coiffure.

The horseshow is one such event, and the opera is another. There are even musicales to which little girls go in formal bliss with their grandmothers and their cousins and their aunts.

SO it is a good thing to get one's family heads done up in chronological correctness, trying out Alice in Wonderland charms for the youngest, and seeing just how much wordiliness can be added as the birthdays pile up for the rest of the girls.

In general, the more one is out on the world (in the debutante sense) the more histrionically one can dispose one's hair. A pretty girl can wear the most intricate arrangements if she has the poise to carry it off, and no amount of regal severity is amiss for the older woman whose complexion and carriage is good enough to stand such treatment.

BUT to be within the lines of good taste this year, a coiffure must not be elaborated beyond the point that it disguises the shape of the skull beneath, and all little decorative curls and ringlets must be flat and shiny, and not the least bit inclined to frizz out or hang down with independent notions.

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

When the first real snow flies, your faithful shophounding friend (that's us, you know) always prances about in wild abandon . . . and gets snow on her muzzle as well as "hot" items in her notebook, and today we're wagging our tail humbly hoping for a smile of approval. Call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass to get the names of the shops . . . or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Now let us lilt about, first on one toe and then the other! Mickey Mouse has skipped into town in another form! On a napkin ring, this time! And many are the merry shouts that will ring forth from sundry high chairs when young America views Mickey at his latest prank! And many are the mothers who will bless Mickey Mouse's mousey little bones for making the getting-on and taking-off of the bib a joke instead of an agony!

These napkin rings are silver-plated . . . come complete with a white bib edged in color . . . and cost 75c.

And just to do a quick-change as fast as possible . . . let's talk about great, swaggering, he-gloves! Because the town boasts them in a new form . . . de-grained pigskin, these, and very new, very nifty, very nice for regular wear or later gift-giving!

The de-graining process means that the outside skin has been peeled off, leaving a pigskin of suede-y finish . . . softer and finer than ordinary pig, and without scars (which so many pigskin gloves have!) Also . . . and by no means least . . . they're washable and cheap—$2.35!

Speaking of snow . . . and drafts . . . this thing of feeling chilly (or is it just us who are "getting old?") . . . we've found the VERY THING.

It's a little hand-knitted all-wool capelet (imported) . . . soft and light as the proverbial "feather" . . . and twice as warm! Across the shoulders a three-tiered capelet . . . while the real cape proper comes below the waistline. In pink, orchid, blue and white . . . edged with silk floss finished scallops . . . and tied under the chin with a tasseled tie? Quite the quaintest, cutest, most helplessly feminine garment we've eyed to be so practical . . . and so cheap, $1.95!

Echoes of Springtime . . . when strawberries are the grande finale of every good dinner! Here's some strawberry cream which is the fitting climax to every woman's face treatment . . . and it's offered FREE!

For the remainder of this week, Kathleen Mary Quinlan's famous toiletries are being offered in conjunction with her equally well-known $3 Strawberry Mask or Special Texture Cream, regularly $2.25. Every purchase of $2 or over, automatically gives you your choice of these two creams—which is just waiting to prove a feather in your cap!

So from strawberries to blackberries! We've done it . . . we've done it! Found EVENING DRESSES FOR $7.95 . . . whoops, my deah! And here's where the blackberries come in . . .

A sweet taffeta number in Patou's famous Wild Blackberry shade . . . which, as you know, is rather plum-ish, prune-ish, grape-ish as to color . . . and altogether ravishing when done up with embroidered silver dots, as this is! With plain wing-like folds at the shoulders . . . a clip in front . . . and a rhinestone buckle. (It also comes in black.)

Or . . . should you go in for the more naive sort of thing . . . there's a pink or blue heart-breaker standing 'round making eyes at all prospective buyers . . . and flirting its ruffles like nothing human! Shirred at your knees . . . ruffled just above the shirring . . . and carrying out the same effect at the shoulders above a square decolletage before and aft! Sizes 14 to 20 . . . and we can just see you mowing down the stag line in any of these!

GOERING GIVES 'MODERATION' ARMS PLEDGE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of air and Prussian premier, in a two-hour conversation following a three-hour cabinet session, last night told me:

"Germany is ready for an international convention in which she sees granted fullest equality with other nations in principle, and then Germany, in the same convention, will willingly and solemnly pledge and commit herself that she will exercise the right of equality in arms in a most moderate and limited extent.

"Is not that a fair proposition? Can there be any moral or other objection?"

DENIES AIR STRENGTH

That was the keynote of the conversation. I interjected:

"The French say you are already building military planes in violation of the treaty of Versailles."

Goering answered:

"By the sacred memory of my wife, I swear to you it is untrue."

For the German, there is no code more holy or sacred. I remarked:

"The British and French charge that Germany has 1,200 planes."

Goering exclaimed:

"I wish I had half that number. When I took over the air ministry, I found a fleet of old transport planes, many of them of 1925 and 1926 vintage. I am trying to replace them with later, faster, and more up-to-date types.

"You yourself have remarked that Germany is two to three years behind America in air transport. As a measure of even greater safety in air transport, I am planning to eliminate single-motor ships and replace them with multi-motors. I am installing beacon lighted airways for night travel.

CHARGES FACTS JUGGLED

"All this activity in our commercial air transport is being purposely misconstrued and distorted abroad as military air activity. The French general staff is not so badly informed as all that.

"After the war, commercial air transport was fully in second place to military air transport for years in the countries of our former foes.

"Germany, not permitted a military air force, concentrated wholly on a commercial air fleet and developed one faster than Britain's and France's, just as we have faster trans-Atlantic steamers because we centered our engineering minds in that direction, not being permitted to do so on a navy."

FISH HITS RED'S NAZI CHARGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., (Rep.), New York, made public last night a telegram sent to Representative Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the House Immigration Committee investigating Nazi activities, in which he denied he ever had attended a Nazi meeting.

Testimony before the committee by Clarence Hathaway that Fish had been present at a Nazi gathering here last Saturday, the telegram said, was not true. He said:

"It is a typical Communist propaganda misstatement. I have not communicated with Heinz Spanknoebel or any other Nazi, and am opposed to their propaganda in the United States.

"I have no more use for alien Nazi propagandists than you have and believe they should be deported, but I am opposed to Jews or Gentiles whether in Germany or elsewhere who stand for Russian Communism and its main objectives: Hatred of God, class hatred and world revolution."

Air Raid Drill Held At Poland's Capital

WARSAW, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Poland's capital seemed like a dead city during three mimic air raids yesterday, the last of which at 8 p. m. formed the climax of the national air defense campaign.

This last raid lasted for half an hour, during which all the lights in the city were extinguished. In a late evening announcement, city officials complimented the people for their exemplary discipline.

Reed Opposes Recognition If Russ Get Loan

United States Senator David A. Reed is utterly opposed to the recognition of Russia if it carries a loan, he declared in a speech at the third anniversary dinner of the McKeesport Business and Professional Women's Club in the Penn-McKee Hotel last night.

The Senator also declared that the country would have succeeded in ridding itself of the depression regardless of the NRA, and scored Gov. Pinchot's liquor control plan as a "most potential political machine."

Of Russian recognition, Senator Reed said:

"If the Russian people are after a loan, I am utterly opposed to recognizing them. If not, it might be just as well to recognize them, for all the good it will do the United States.

"Russia's two principal products shipped to the United States are anthracite coal and oil. And these do us more harm than good, especially in the state of Pennsylvania.

"Our government has not the authority to loan out money, but I think the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will loan money to a corporation which in turn would lend the money to Russia.

Attacking Gov. Pinchot's liquor control plan, Senator Reed declared it a "most potential political machine," and advocated the distribution of liquor through individuals guarded by strict government legislation. Under this plan, he said, the state would be spared a large cash outlay to run the dispensaries.

Asked what he thought of the NRA, he later said:

"It has done only three things. It has abolished the sweatshops, child labor and has heightened the morale of the United States. As far as the depression is concerned, it has probably helped a little and will possibly help a little."

WELLES PARLEY STIRS CUBA

HAVANA, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Keen interest was manifested by both Cubans and Americans here today in reported arrangements for United States Ambassador Sumner Welles to confer with President Roosevelt.

No sooner had word been received from the United States that such a conference was being considered than it became the center of discussion, with speculation rife as to what the outcome would be.

Today, as word of continued disorders reached the capital from the interior, two aviators—Homobono Rodriguez and Basilio Gonzalez—awaited a decision by the Cuban cabinet which will mean life or death to them.

A military court recommended the death penalty for the two on charges of having led in the revolutionary movement put down in the capital last week with the loss of 150 lives.

President Grau San Martin indicated the cabinet probably would take final action on the recommendation within two days.

Anti-Hitler Group Here Plans Meeting

An anti-Hitler mass meeting will be held at Taylor Allderdice High School, Forward and Shady avenues, tonight by the Jewish Peoples Committee Against Hitlerism. The purpose of the meeting is to protest alleged Hitler atrocities against the Jewish people in Germany as well as alleged Nazi anti-Semitic propaganda in the United States.

DEBTS QUESTION DELAYS PACT WITH SOVIET

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—An understanding on all the principal problems standing in the way of American recognition of Soviet Russia but debts has been reached between President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, International News Service learned today.

Efforts were being made to reach a compromise on the debt question in time for announcement at the White House tomorrow of an understanding which will end the 16-year break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Russia.

DEBT DIFFICULTY

However, should it not be found possible to reach a compromise on the debt question within the next 24 hours, the discussions will continue.

The debt difficulty centers around recognition by the Soviet of the $187,000,000 which the United States government loaned the Kerensky regime before it was overthrown by the Bolshevists.

Litvinoff maintains that if his government formally recognizes the validity of the American debts, it will be obliged to meet the claims of other nations.

TREATY OF RAPALLO

Under the treaty of Rapallo, Germany can claim any concession which the Soviet grants another nation whose old debt claims they formally recognize.

President Roosevelt, on the other hand, maintains he cannot admit non-recognition of the American debt claims against Russia, since that authority rests solely with Congress.

Both sides are seeking a formula whereby the Soviets will agree to arrange a settlement of the old debt claims without formally recognizing them.

A satisfactory understanding has been reached on the question of Communist propaganda and protection of the rights of Americans who may work in Russia, it was learned.

Distribution of wheat surpluses and production also has figured in the discussions, but officials declined to reveal whether any understanding had been reached on this point.

COURT TAKES UP RADIO 'LIBEL'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Whether radio broadcasting stations may be sued for libel as a result of political speeches was before the Supreme Court for decision today.

The Nebraska Supreme Court held station KFAB, of Lincoln, is subject to libel suits, and upheld a verdict against it. The suit was instituted by C. A. Sorenson, who was Attorney-General of Nebraska at the time Senator George Norris and W. M. Stebbins were battling for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in 1930.

Sorenson charged that Richard F. Wood, speaking on behalf of Stebbins, made defamatory statements. In the first trial the broadcasting company was exonerated and a verdict for $1 returned against Wood.

After the Nebraska Supreme Court granted a new trial, Sorenson pressed his suit only against the station. The company paid the judgment and appealed again to the State Supreme Court, which upheld it.

The radio station claimed exemption from libel suits because it is licensed under the Federal Radio Act. The state court, however, held that even if the act applied it would be in conflict with the federal constitution.

Norris Advocates Russ Recognition

DECATUR, Ill., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, en route to Washington, today urged that the United States give speedy recognition to Russia and adopt an immediate currency inflation plan.

Senator Norris urged that the federal government retire the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds, called for April 15, by an issue of greenbacks, to circulate more cash.

BRITISH PLAN ARMS MOVE

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Sir John Simon, foreign secretary of Great Britain, will go to Geneva tomorrow to consult Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain, president of the disarmament conference, and the representatives of France, Italy and the United States.

His decision to make the trip was regarded as indicating a new initiative to save the arms parley which was disrupted two weeks ago by the sudden withdrawal of Germany.

JEWS PROTEST PALESTINE BAN

JERUSALEM, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Jews are deeply indignant at regulations recently instituted by the Palestine government to prevent the entry of unauthorized Hebrew immigrants, it became known today.

Striking at the new regulations, the Jewish agency executive not only demanded the withdrawal of some but asked revision of the rest.

The regulations were directed against Jews crossing the frontier without certificates from immigration authorities, and Jewish visitors, admitted on temporary permits, overstaying and settling.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The London Herald cited Jewish information here today of alleged "wholesale arrests and imprisonment" of Jews in Palestine while, its information said, a steady, unrestricted influx of Bedouin Arabs from Syria and Trans-Jordan was permitted.

BALKAN PACT REVEALED

International News Service.

ATHENS, Nov. 16.—Crystallization of a Balkan four-power pact, binding Rumania, Jugoslavia, Greece and Turkey into a single political group, was revealed here today.

Although final plans have not yet been made, multilateral conversations have been under way for several weeks and will continue until January.

These have included a tour of Balkan capitals by the Rumanian foreign minister, M. Titulescu, meetings between King Alexander, of Jugoslavia, and President Mustapha Kemal, of Turkey, and King Boris, of Bulgaria, and a conference between King Boris and King Carol, of Rumania.

Britons Fear Riots In Spanish Elections

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Fearing trouble in the Spanish elections scheduled Sunday, hundreds of British residents of Andalusian towns and tourists of all nationalities are flocking here.

Extra police and military reinforcements were arriving today from Algeciras, San Roque and Lalinea.

150 More Released In German 'Camp'

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—In recognition of the "overwhelming pro-Nazi election result" Sunday, the Senate decided today to release immediately 150 inmates of the concentration camp here.

Lily Pons Resumes Tour After Illness

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Lily Pons, French operatic star, was en route today to Toledo, O., to resume her concert tour, recovered from an attack of bronchitis.

She may embark soon on a career in the movies.

FREEDOM

It is no longer necessary to endure any pain, or even to be uncomfortable, because of the time of month. Midol will prove this to any woman in a few moments. One tiny tablet, and the pain is gone. And it's as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. No narcotics. No "let-down" later. But don't be fooled by general remedies now being offered as a specific for such suffering. Midol's direct action brings quick relief. It is not a mere measure of relief, but actually ends such pain.

CAMPUS DEATHS MYSTIFY AT PRINCETON

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16.—A death mystery—the third in the shadow of Princeton University in the last two months—evoked widespread comment and speculation in college circles here today because of new developments.

The latest victim was Jay F. Towner III, 23, of Perryman, Md., a former student of Johns Hopkins University. With a party of friends he attended the Dartmouth-Princeton football game last Saturday. He became separated from his friends.

His body was found several hours after the game on the lawn of Guyot Hall, half a mile from Palmer Stadium. He had died of internal injuries, an autopsy revealed. Both of his wrists were broken and his face lacerated.

DEATH THEORY SPIKED

The theory that Towner was crushed to death by the crowd leaving the game was definitely spiked today by two Princeton undergraduates (whose names were not revealed by the authorities). The two students talked with Towner a half-hour after the game.

Princeton students are now demanding action from the authorities in the Towner case and also in the strange deaths of a university janitor and a 5-year-old boy.

The janitor, John M. Tighe, 69, was found lying on the campus near the dormitory where he worked. The Coroner held he had fallen from a roof in an effort to commit suicide.

However, the janitor's son, Arthur M. Tighe, said in a statement last night that such a conclusion is preposterous. He cited the fact that his father could not have leaped from the dormitory window without striking a tailor shop sign that was in line with his supposed jump. Tighe also declared that his father's spectacles and false teeth were not damaged.

FOUND IN RUBBISH

Equally mystifying were the circumstances surrounding the death of the 5-year-old boy whose body was found on the Princeton dump a fortnight ago. The theory was advanced that he might have been playing there and had died of exposure. The identity of this boy has not become known.

Towner's death, coming on the heels of the other two deaths, drew a caustic letter from Joseph C. Sloane, of Pasadena, Cal., a Princeton alumnus, which was published in the Daily Princetonian, the undergraduate newspaper. It resulted in Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall, of Mercer County, assigning detectives to investigate the strange deaths.

Marshall admitted there might be a possibility that a "killer" is loose in Princeton, but he had no information to support such a theory.

Disabled Veterans To Benefit by Sale

A sale of articles made by veterans in the Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, will be held on the balcony of Horne's store, Thursday to Saturday, according to Mrs. George Alter. She is chairman of the Grey Lady Service of the American Red Cross. Disabled veterans will benefit by the sale.

Scientist Blames Radio Static on Moon's Rays

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—A new theory that the moon is charged with radium was announced last night by Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, astronomer of Ohio Wesleyan University, to an amateur astronomers meeting.

Traveling with the speed of light, these invisible lunar radium rays seem to penetrate deeply into the earth's atmosphere, sufficiently to disturb radio reception in home sets.

The evidence for their existence is found in thousands of radio tests made recently between Chicago and Delaware, O., and in some volcanic deposits just uncovered at Naples, Italy.

JUNE TESTIFIES IN DIVORCE SUIT

International News Service.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 16.—The unsuccessful attempts of June Howard-Tripp, internationally known dancer, to patch up her romance with Lord Inverclyde after she obtained a Reno divorce decree were described in court today.

The actress, known as "June," took the witness stand in Divorce Court to deny allegations in the suit brought by her titled husband, who named Matthew Bartholomew Anthony Paanakker, her business agent, as corespondent.

June tearfully denied Lord Inverclyde's charges. Paanakker once attempted to make love to her in his London apartment, she said, but she resisted him.

Turner Closes List For Holiday Jobs

With thousands of applications for extra postoffice jobs during the rush Christmas season already on file, Postmaster William M. Turner today announced that no more would be accepted.

Of those on file, 1,500 of the "most deserving" would be selected, he said.

Braddock Dwelling Destroyed by Fire

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the one-story frame dwelling of Lewis Ulin, Negro, of 16 Elm way, Braddock, shortly before last midnight, police reported. The family was absent and damage was estimated at $800.

MYRIAD STARS -:- Radio City Hollywood -:- ON THE AIR

Prof. Phelps Heads New Program

"The Voice of America," a new half-hour program featuring William Lyon Phelps in his first radio series, Nat Shilkret and his orchestra and Alexander Gray, baritone, makes its debut over a Columbia-WJAS network tonight at 8:30.

The weekly "Voice of America" broadcasts will salute American creative genius, presenting glimpses of the development of native art, science and industry.

A note of comedy will be injected by Cal Tinney, drawling editor of "The Oologah Oozings," a newspaper commenting on everything from the League of Nations to local haircuts.

Guest artists representing various sections of the country will appear on the program from time to time.

Flicker's Nest

An hour-and-a-half broadcast originating in Hollywood brings many of the brightest stars of Movieland to the air tonight from 11:30 until 1 o'clock.

Among the flicker favorites who will sing, talk and make merry are Jimmy Durante, Patsy Ruth Miller, Fay Wray, Russ Columbo, Jack Oakie, Jobyna Ralston, Richard Arlen, Mae Clark, William Gargan and Helen Mack.

The full program is heard over WCAE, and KDKA joins in the broadcast at midnight.

In a program dedicated to Rockefeller Center, the huge project of which Radio City is a part, John B. Kennedy introduces a number of prominent speakers, including Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord and Col. Arthur Woods, over KDKA at 10:30.

The Globe Trotter, voice of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, airs the day's news over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.; over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Much as there is to protest about the severe cold weather, with its icy, snow-laden streets, it provides the annual opportunity to launch the humanitarian movemen of feeding the birds.

No sooner had the first blast from the north sounded than William G. Schossgow, Bellevue; Fred T., Woodburne avenue; Martin Jacobs, McKeesport, got in touch with me to remind me of the perennial campaign.

So don't forget to sweep the snow away; put bread crumbs, water and suet out for the birds.

J. A. Musgrave, also concerned with the ice and snow, broadcasts a few non-skid hints.

He saves coffee grounds. When there is a sufficient quantity he sprinkles them on the icy pavements.

He says that although they stick to your shoes they won't soil the rugs and carpets.

The same old cold weather might have prompted Ignace Yakulis, of East Vandergrift, to write a letter.

He wants to know the address of the Sonjie Henie, the Norwegian fancy ice skating champion.

You might reach her, Ignace, through a letter addressed to our A. A. U. Perhaps they can forward it to the corresponding amateur organization in Norway.

The last cold weather suggestion comes from George Riley, Aspinwall. George is a shutin and spends his time thinking out things to keep other people well and making them more comfortable.

He suggests that to keep from catching cold in bed, wear an old stocking cap like grandpa and grandma used to wear. It sounds like a good idea, too.

Local Radio Artists To Sing With Holst

Ernie Holst, of NY and NBC, makes a graceful gesture and provides fun for the guests at his downtown hotel dance Friday night by inviting a flock of local radio artists to join in an impromptu entertainment.

Among those to be seen and heard with Ernie's orchestra will be Tommy Riggs, (Bob and Betty); the Four Aces, Pat Haley, Ed Harvey and others.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings Oscar Fox's "Hills of Home" as the feature of his 6:45 "Songs at Eventide."

Two feminine singers of modern song are worthy of attention on the early evening schedule—Patsy Shannon and Jeanne Galbraith, at 6:15.

Lum and Abner Coming Here, Radio Talent Losing Out

By AIRCASTER

Whether the winter winds blowing in from Lake Erie drive them out of town, or it's just plain wanderlust, the lads at Cleveland's WTAM go places and see things.

Gene and Glenn no sooner returned to the home station from a barnstorming tour of Pittsburgh, Springfield, Mass. and points down east than Lum and Abner shut up their crossroads store and set out to see the sights of Boston, Radio City and Pittsburgh.

And of course, the Four Aces are here from Cleveland, now.

The road tour of Lum and Abner and their Pine Ridge Sociable will bring them to Pittsburgh within the next two or three weeks. And while they're here, their regular broadcast will go on the network from one of the larger town halls.

Pittsburghers will have an opportunity to see the show, featuring prominent radio and theatrical stars.

Stage vs. Radio

Speaking of radio and stage stars, anyone who has observed the trend of radio entertainment can't have failed to note that radio personalities who have grown up with the studios—having devoted their time to air entertainment for long and lean years, excepting occasional windfalls—are being ignored by the radio patrons, while outside personalities, chiefly from the stage, are getting the gravy.

This has proven something of a blow to the artist-service bureaus conducted by the radio stations, as well as bad medicine for the artists who have given their careers to the mike.

NBC, for one, has decided to do something about it.

Talent for Hire

It has begun a drive to re-establish the prestige of radio talent and boom business for the artists' bureau by staging public auditions daily at 4 p. m., limited strictly to radio folk.

These shows, in direct competition with theatrical agencies, are designed to show the public and the sponsors that radio, as well as the stage, has plenty of talent for hire.

Girl Poses as Man In Radio Drama

Two noted radio and stage artists are featured in a most unusual drama—"Switchboard Secrets"—broadcast over 10 stations in the tri-state area today and tomorrow.

Eileen Douglas, of "Grand Street Follies" and "Cat and the Canary," and Alice Frost, of "Bath Club Revue," "Crime Clues" and other radio hits, play the leading roles in a story revealing the actual experiences of a girl who was forced to wear trousers and pose as a man.

Her difficulties in extricating herself from her dual role provide a thrilling and sometimes humorous radio dramatization.

"Switchboard Secrets," a presentation of the American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is scheduled on the following stations:

TODAY—WFBG, Altoona, 3 p. m. and WKBN, Youngstown, 8:15 p. m.

FRIDAY—WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton O., 2 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, 5 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15 p. m.; WAIU, Columbus, 7:15 p. m.; WADC, Akron, 7:45 p. m. and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

It Pays to Read Advertisements

It Will Pay You to Read This One

THE other day a friend gave my wife a recipe for a new Froze Orange Pudding. We had it last night for dessert.

"This is something new," I said. "Where did you get it?"

"Mae gave me the recipe yesterday. She clipped it from a advertisement."

My wife didn't read that advertisement. If her friend hadn't read it, what a treat we would have missed.

Do you read the advertisements? It will pay you many times over to do so. From them you may learn about all sorts of new things. New foods, new ways to use them, new recipes that will add variety to the daily menu.

Right in the advertisements in this paper there are countless things to interest you, to save you money, to bring you the most value for what you spend. And now, as a reward for reading this advertisement, here is the recipe that inspired it.

Recipe for Frozen Orange Pudding

Ingredients: 2 egg yolks (beaten); 1 cup orange juice; 1 cup cream (light cream or top milk will do); 4 teaspoonfuls flour; ⅛ teaspoonful salt; ⅓ cup sugar; 1 teaspoonful grated orange rind.

Blend thoroughly egg yolks, sugar, flour, salt, and add orange juice and cream. Put in double boiler and cook until thick. Add orange rind, cool and pour into freezing tray of refrigerator or three or four hours on ice. When ready to serve, top each dish with meringue made by beating two egg whites stiff and adding ¼ cup sugar. Garnish with orange segments.

It pays to read all the advertisements in this paper.

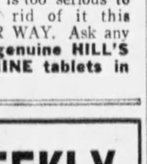
"Betty's Neck was Sore and Itched Constantly"



Resinol Healed It

"When my little Betty was two months old, she began to suffer from a skin trouble on her neck which lasted several months. It was very sore and itched constantly. I tried many recommended treatments, but nothing seemed to help. Finally I bought a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. In a short time her neck was very much improved, and it was amazing to see how quickly it healed." (Signed)—Mrs. F. A.* Reading, Pa.

*Name on request.

FOR FREE TRIAL size package of Ointment and Soap with booklet on Skin Treatment, write to Resinol, Dept. 46-A, Baltimore, Md.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Unapproachable Lady!

You are so calm, your gaze so cool,
So unperturbed your eyes;
If you have ever been a fool,
The years have made you wise.

Surrounded by a glacial wall,
The pattern of your life
Has left no room for pain at all,
No place for tears or strife.

Within a vault that bars despair,
You dwell, oh, sheltered one!
The rain can never enter there,
But neither can the sun!

—Naomi Shaw.

Broadway Pals

Two of Nazimova's meowing rivals were dining at the Colonnades a few hours prior to the premiere of "Doctor Monica," the other evening.

"What shall we do tonight, Mary?" the first one asked.

"We've both got such a bad cough," replied the other. "Let's go to the opening!"

'Bright Sayings' Dept.

It was during the rehearsals of "Thunder on the Left" that Anton Bundsmen, the director, was disturbed by the persistent giggling of Charita Bauer and Mary McQuade, 9-year-old members of the cast.

Every few moments, the youngsters would cease their giggling and jot studious notes on a slip of paper. Bewildered and curious, Mr. Bundsmen approached the budding Duses and inquired:

"Just what is it that strikes you girls so funny, and what are you writing on that paper?"

Charita dropped her pencil, drew up indignantly and replied:

"We're writing in our 'giggles,' of course!"

Settled?

"Dear Paul," writes Pierre de Rohan. "Now that all the others have had their say about the President's use of 'chiseler' and to 'chisel,' you might settle the argument by pointing out that both the Oxford and Webster Dictionaries have sanctioned their usage for over a half-century. The Oxford volume notes that this meaning—to cheat; to gouge—was first attached to the written word in 1808, and that it has been in general use since 1835, if not longer.

"Its first appearance in an American dictionary was in 1848, when it was adopted by Bartlett. But it did not reach full popularity until used by Ouida in 1863 in 'Held in Bondage.'"

This seems to acquit Mr. Roosevelt on one account, but what explanation is there to offer for his use of "loaned," a word which does not exist in English?

Definitions of a Loafer

Paul Forrest vows a loafer is a fellow who takes 18 baths in succession because no one will help him out of the tub; Burton Cabot defines him as a fellow whose skin is so tender from idleness, he gets sunburned from a bright remark; and Franklin Boswell says a "loafer is a fellow who dreams he is in a six-day bicycle race and, when he awakes, immediately goes to the mountains for a rest."

Once Upon a Time

Now comes the tale about the two parrots. One—a female—was owned by a minister of the community and was continuously in the habit of reciting prayers. The other—a male—was the possession of a retired sea captain and was notorious for his vile fits of anathema.

The old tar, wishing to gain the respect of his neighbors, called on the minister one day and complained about the language of his bird.

"I've had him for years and I'd hate to part with him. Maybe you can suggest something."

"Well, what I'd suggest is that you bring your parrot to my house and I'll put him in the cage with mine," the minister replied. "In a short time your parrot should have an entirely respectable vocabulary."

The next day the parrots were placed together, and immediately the seaman's bird opened the conversation with:

"Say Miss, what do you say to a little necking?"

To which the other flashed:

"Okay, what do you think I've been praying for all this time?"

Fashion Note

Don Bestor's tailor predicts that during the coming winter there will be no change in men's suits, especially in the pockets.

Safe

Vivien Ruth, of Passaic, calls our attention to the reply of the First Columnist, Eugene Field, which he made to a would-be poet who had submitted a verse titled—"Why Do I Live?"

"Because you sent your poem by mail," was Field's notation on the rejection slip.

Hollywords

A noted Hollywood producer rejected an original manuscript by H. G. Wells with the complaint:

"The plot's all right, but it's never been used before."

Subway Sequence: No. 1

How easily the years are measured here!
The young, before their stations even near
Jump to their feet and linger at the door;
We who are older rest a little more
And rise with all the crowd; if older still
We do not wish to rise at all until
The train has stopped. Then someone holds our door
And after that we ride but little more . . .

Daughter of Otis Skinner Brings Her Characters To Nixon Stage

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Admirers of Ruth Draper have generally transferred their admiration to Cornelia Otis Skinner, who begins a three-day engagement in the Nixon Theater tonight. This clever and charming daughter of the well-beloved Otis Skinner, who used to be Romeo to Margaret Mather's Juliet, has won a secure place for herself in all hearts as a humorist and character artist. Tonight she pictures "The Loves of Charles II," impersonating half a dozen of the many ladies who made the Merry Monarch mad or melancholy. Of course the most fascinating of the bevy was Nell Gwyn; she must have been, for Charles' last words are reported as, "Don't let poor Nelly starve!"

Mr. Seibel

It should not be forgotten that Cornelia writes her own sketches. The woman dramatist has always been with us. Hroswitha the nun, about a thousand years ago, wrote the play on which "Thais" is based. Martha Morton and Marguerite Merington were famous in America before Rachel Crothers and Zoe Akins came along. Cornelia Otis Skinner has genuine humor and literary skill. Her performances — one-woman comedies—are the exquisite essence of stage art and Bryn Mawr culture. She's the most popular Cornelia since the Mother of the Gracchi, whom you read about in your Roman history.

POPULAR PRICED OPERA

A week of opera at popular prices in the Nixon Theater, under the banner of Fortune Gallo, makes us almost feel as if we were in sunny Italy, where opera and olives thrive. All the old favorites are in the bill, beginning with "Aida" Monday evening, and closing with "Il Trovatore" Saturday night. Those operatic twins, "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," are to be sung Thursday evening; the ever-popular "Carmen" and her melodious rival, "Faust," also will be heard. Best of all is the news that prices are even lower than usually fixed for legitimate drama. This is as it should be, for opera should not be the exclusive privilege of the dress-suit aristocracy. If everybody could whistle airs from "Rigoletto" and "Lucia," musical education would have made a vast stride.

Not so many years ago opera was heard almost as often as Shakespeare was played. Emma Abbott and Colonel Savage, later the Aborns, knew the public liked it. The public will like it again, if offered in acceptable doses at acceptable prices. They have just had the same experience in Poland with Shakespeare—modern plays did not draw, and the repertoire is again being supplied by the lad from Stratford. Verdi, Bizet and Gounod may have a restorative for our languishing stage.

PATTERSON THE CRITIC

When Judge Frank P. Patterson was on the air with me Tuesday evening, he revived happy memories of glorious days when he was one of Pittsburgh's dramatic critics. He has enjoyed suppers with Henry Irving and Richard Mansfield, has played chess with Francis Wilson, knew E. H. Sothern and Roland Reed, and was one of the worshipers of Tom Keene, "always good." Judge Patterson told a story about Roland Reed, while playing here in "The Politician," forgetting his lines so completely that the play was suspended for 10 minutes until the prompt book could be found. That brought to my mind a near-tragedy in which Roland Reed's daughter, Florence Reed, figured. "Mourning Becomes Electra" was being played in the Nixon. Florence Reed was walking across the stage at my side, half an hour before the rise of the curtain, when she said, "I feel ill," and sank in a heap on the floor. Two doctors were summoned and brought her to exactly five minutes before the curtain rose. She took it easy during the first scenes of the play, and by the intermission was herself again, and had formed a resolution never more to try the diet of two opposing nationalities during the same meal.

Fritz Kreisler In Mosque

Fritz Kriesler, the eminent violinist, will give the opening May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tonight. It has been three years since Mr. Kreisler played in Pittsburgh. The following program will be given:

Sonata, C minor ..... Grieg
Chaconne ..... Bach
(For violin alone.)
Rondo ..... Mozart
Andante cantabile ..... Tschaikowsky
Humoresque ..... Tschaikowsky-Kreisler
Hymn to the Sun ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff-Kreisler
Four Caprices:
La Chasse ..... J. B. Carter
Saltarello ..... Wieniawski
B minor ..... Paganini
A minor ..... Paganini

Three One-Act Plays At I. K. S. Sunday

Recently on the stage of the Theresa L. Kaufmann auditorium, little theater of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, there was given a group of one-act plays that won the awards in the annual playwriting contest open to writers in Allegheny County. Next Sunday night the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players will be seen in the three "runners-up" in the same contest. They will be "That's the Way it Goes," by Louise C. Walker; "Black Sheep," by Henry Vogelsang, and "She Wanted a Garden," by Margaret Lillich. Mr. Vogelsang and Ivan B. Rosenbaum are assisting Louis Isaacs in the direction.

Miss Barriscale Acts After 15 Years

Because of a friendship which started when Bessie Barriscale was a star and Bennie F. Zeidman was a publicity man, Miss Barriscale came out of a 15-year retirement last week to appear in "Beloved" with John Boles and Gloria Stuart. The former publicity man is now a producer and "Beloved" is his first production for Universal.

Charles Laughton as Henry VIII in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," which is being retained on the Fulton screen for a second week, beginning today.

Keeping Up With the Trend In Entertainment Field

Empress

Cornelia Otis Skinner, who will open her engagement in the Nixon tonight, is seen here as the Empress Eugenie, subject of her monodrama that will be the bill Saturday night.

Norma Shearer to Act In 'Rip Tide'

"Rip Tide," Charles MacArthur's original story for Norma Shearer, will be Miss Shearer's first starring film following her recent European trip. Irving Thalberg will produce "Rip Tide" as first of a group of new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer special features.

Romance Seen In Scott's Trip

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—They'll tell you that Randy Scott is going to Europe to see the sights with Gary Grant but his other purpose is much more romantic.

For, according to Vivian Gaye, pretty manager of Sari Maritza, the handsome North Carolina star also goes to London to meet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bezencenet, and if certain matters can be arranged, Vivian will be leaving Hollywood about December 15 to spend the holidays with her family.

Will there be a marriage?

"Randy and I are not officially engaged," says Vivian, "My family are old-fashioned, and how do I know they are going to like him? Or he them? I'm awfully glad, though, that Randy could get away at this time to meet them, our plans will have to be decided later."

The boys who grab photographs for the fan magazines and the picture services are great matchmakers, and they follow a Hollywood romance from its inception to the divorce court.

There was that time the other night when Junior Laemmle left a hotel dining room with a well known ingenue. He was asked to pose and did. Then the photographer asked for a second picture.

"And put your arm around her this time," he suggested. "What would that be for?" asked Junior, amused. Oh that will be for the February issue," was the unabashed reply.

A young lady who is not always so compliant to the photographers' wishes is Bette Davis. In the prolonged absence of her husband, Bette naturally goes out some with other men. (Remember when she ribbed the gossips and appeared with eight boy-friends at a Hollywood premiere?) But when she goes dancing with one man she dodges pictures. Just two nights ago, she and Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs," sidestepped the lenses at a fashionable dining place.

Odds and Ends

JUST HOW true the story is, I hesitate to say. But Jack Benny, expert stage and radio comic, relates it himself. So if there is any blame attached to the matter, let the blows fall upon Mr. Benny's noble dome.

Jack, it seems, has had a form of stomach trouble for many years. He has visited hundreds of doctors, and he has spent a small fortune in an attempt to cure himself. But the old tummy ache still persists.

During the vaudeville tour from which he has just returned, Jack struck a town that holds one of the world's most famous clinics. The comedian pounced upon the opportunity to visit the clinic and ask the staff to study his case.

He was ushered into the presence of a distinguished-looking medico. The doctor examined him, h'mmmd a bit, and then nodded.

"Mr. Benny," he asserted, "I don't know in what business you are—but whatever it is, you're working too hard. There's nothing wrong with you physically. Your condition is primarily a state of mind.

"Were I you, I would learn to enjoy life more. Go to the theater as often as possible. If you can arrange it, pack your things and spend a month in New York—on Broadway. You need recreation—and laughter. Laugh all you can. Laugh, and your troubles will be over."

The comedian gulped.

"I can see you don't know who I am," he muttered. "I'm a comedian. Laugh? Why I make people laugh. That's my business."

The doctor shrugged his shoulders.

"So what?" he snapped. "I'm a doctor, and I make people well. And I've got stomach trouble, too!" . . .

I HAVE a number of letters from people who wish to know how long I will continue to print Joe Green columns. I am taking this space to inform them that the contest is a thing of the past, and the last Joe Green column has already been printed.

I still have plenty of excellent stories, and I'd like to be able to print them. But, as the actor said when his eighth wife divorced him, enough is enough.

A RITZY chorine, who appears for a performance only when she feels in the mood, recently celebrated a birthday. One of her admirers, who bears the name of George, sent her a bottle of perfume—and around it was wrapped a $1,000 bill.

"How did George treat you?" asked another girl.

"Not so hot," replied the ritzy mamma. "He sent over a $1,000 bill, and a bottle of perfume."

"Gosh!" exclaimed the other dame. "That's a marvelous present. What are you squawking about?"

"Aw," was the amazing retort, "the perfume was terrible!" . . .

OVERHEARD in a hospital dressing room the other morning:

"It only takes a woman five minutes to squelch a man—but it sometimes takes a man a lifetime to find it out."

THE charming Mrs. Biow relates the story of the American Senator who, while abroad, was invited to a dinner that was attended by a number of foreign diplomats. The Senator was seated beside a youthful Chinaman and, for once in his life, seemed to be at a loss for words.

As a matter of fact, he didn't talk at all until the soup was served. Then he smiled at the young man beside him.

"Likee soupee?" he inquired.

The Chinaman smiled and nodded. The dinner went on, and the young man was finally called on for a speech. He spoke, of course, in perfect English—and did an excellent job with a five-minute offering. Then he sat down, and smiled at the Senator.

"Likee speechee?" he inquired.

I WANTED to devote an entire column to my thoughts as I stood as a pall bearer at Texas Guinan's funeral. But I'm not going to do it now. Everything that could have been said has been said—and by far better writers than I.

I think the funeral took place exactly as Texas would have wanted it. Until the very end, she packed 'em in. The little chapel was crowded to capacity. Traffic was closed for five blocks around. Thousands and thousands of people jammed the sidewalks for a fleeting glimpse of the cortege.

Yes, that's the way Texas would have wanted to go. And I'm glad it happened that way. If I could get a final message to her, it would be this:

"Good luck, Tex. And if you get together with Larry Fay up there and open a good spot, save a ringside for Winchell and me. We'll be seeing you, kid. So long." . . .

FIND CHILDREN LACK MANNERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The boys and girls of this day and age need—according to a survey announced yesterday—to brush up on their manners.

The survey, made by Dr. Ruth Strang, of Columbia University; Dr. Marion A. Brown, of the University of California High School, and Dr. Dorothy C. Stratton, of San Bernardino High School, questioned 4,114 boys and girls, and concluded from the answers received that too many of them are lacking in "the fundamental principles of courtesy and social usage."

The questions sought to determine such things as whether the boys and girls rest their elbows on the table, butter a whole slice of bread before eating it, talk about operations at the dinner table, and blow on their hot soup.

Children's Home Holds 'Open House'

Gifts of food and money are being accepted today for the inmates of the Allegheny Temporary Home for Children at a reception in the home, 3035 Perrysville avenue. Open house is being held from 2 until 10 p. m. A musical program, arranged by Mrs. E. V. Linnekin, will be given tonight at 8 o'clock.

Cuban Battle On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of the terrific battle in Havana, in which 200 persons were killed and many wounded before the old Atares Fort fell, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Hearst Metrotone cameramen risked flying rebel bullets as they photographed the attack on the fort behind the guns of the government artillery. Shells burst on all sides with the populace fleeing in panic. Finally a white flag is waved from ramparts of the fort signalling that the rebels have surrendered. The Globe Trotter graphically describes the battle.

Pictures from Atlanta, Ga., show tragedy riding with the auto racers in the Dixie Derby. The car driven by Shirley Goff, of Alabama, crashes into a fence and Goff is hurled back to the track, where another car hits him.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt are shown attending the Armistice Day exercises at Arlington Cemetery, Va. Secretary of War Dern declares that Uncle Sam realizes that "there is no use talking about disarmament while the rest of the world remains armed to the teeth."

There are pictures of the big birthday party given to Marie Dressler in the M-G-M Studios at Culver City, Cal. There are speeches by Gov. Rolph and famous stars of the screen and stage.

United States Army fliers test a new "cloud car" at Langley Field, Virginia. It seats one observer and is lowered by cable 1,500 feet from a dirigible which remains concealed above the clouds.

The first shipment of gin since repeal is seen going to California from New York. In Los Angeles, Jimmy Durante gives his ideas on repeal.

A crowd of 60,000 persons sees Sherman Hendrickson win the national corn husking championship at West Point, Neb.

More than 90,000 see Southern California U., champions of 1932, go down to defeat before Stanford by a score of 37-7. Among the pictured fans are ex-President Hoover and Babe Ruth.

(Note—Because of the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

PAUL WHITEMAN

DON BESTOR

You don't know what records can be until you've heard the marvelous tone-purity, the life-likeness, the aliveness made possible by RCA VICTOR'S modern electrical recordings. It's a thrill. Hear EDDY DUCHIN'S orchestra play It's the Talk of the Town...or PAUL WHITEMAN'S It's Only a Paper Moon...or RAY NOBLE...GARBER, VALLEE, THIBAULT, NIESEN, ROMONA...rhythm-master ISHAM JONES...name any of the best of them. If your mood is deeper, JOHN CHARLES THOMAS sings the glorious Trumpeter...STOKOWSKI and the Philadelphia Orchestra play the tenderly magnificent Tristan and Isolde for you...CARUSO'S golden voice is recreated with modern orchestral accompaniment—and sings again, today!

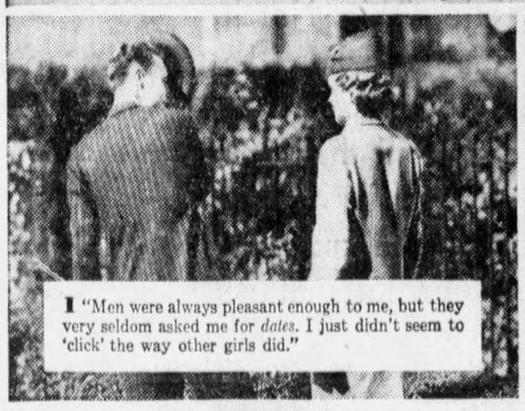
"Now my skin is as lovely as Margaret Sullavan's"



1 "Men were always pleasant enough to me, but they very seldom asked me for dates. I just didn't seem to 'click' the way other girls did."

2 "Visiting a friend, I noticed how lovely her skin was . . . how she cleansed it with Lux Toilet Soap. 'I learned this beauty care from Margaret Sullavan, the actress we saw tonight!' she said."

3 "The next day I began to use Lux Toilet Soap, too. Gradually my skin improved. I noticed I was getting more popular!"

Margaret Sullavan, lovely Universal star, says:

"Of course, stage and screen stars take diligent care of their complexions, and any woman who wants to keep her youthful appearance should, too. Lux Toilet Soap certainly keeps my skin as smooth as I could wish."

4 "Now when I see Margaret Sullavan on the screen I know my skin is as lovely as hers . . . Lux Toilet Soap makes it smooth and clear."

10-MILE FLIGHT STRAIGHT UP PLANNED

International News Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—Rarified air pressure, equivalent to that ten miles up in the stratosphere, without protection—proving that man can live in a virtual vacuum if supplied only enough oxygen to breath—was the accomplishment claimed today by Mark Ridge, Dorchester aviator and parachute jumper, in a cablegram from London today to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Ridge.

His cablegram read:

"Success. 50,000 feet, going 60,000 Monday. Everything is fine. Staying week-end Dr. Haldane."

First interpretations of Ridge's parents was that he had actually ascended into the stratosphere, but advices from London revealed that the feat was a preliminary test, made in tanks on the ground with the air pumped out to such a degree that the air pressure inside was equal to that of a distance of 50,000 feet up.

WEARS 'DIVER'S' SUIT

Ignoring warnings from the United States Navy Department that he was risking his life to make the tests, Ridge went to England last month and interested a number of noted British scientists in his contention that man can live in a virtual vacuum by wearing equipment similar to a diving suit and inhaling pure oxygen from a tank.

The experiments were carried out as a prelude to a projected flight into the stratosphere. Ridge plans to use the apparatus and ascend at least 10 miles above the earth in an open balloon basket.

He feels he will be able much better to test stratospheric conditions under these circumstances than if sealed in a metal gondola—the method used by Prof. Auguste Piccard and the Soviet balloonists in their successful ascents into the stratosphere.

Naval Balloonist All Set For Flight to Stratosphere

AKRON, O., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Weather permitting, Lieut. Comm. T. G. W. Settle, of the United States Navy, will take off on a stratosphere flight in a balloon of 600,000 cubic feet gas capacity early tomorrow, he said today.

Comm. Settle said he did not hope to break the world's altitude record, now held by Russians who ascended approximately 62,000 feet in a balloon of 900,000 cubic feet capacity.

The daring Navy pilot, who moved the scene of operations here after one attempt at the Chicago World Fair failed, declared that the ceiling of his proposed flight probably will be about 58,000 feet.

He stated that once in the upper regions, he planned to drift eastward and that it would necessarily be a quick flight because he did not wish to drift out to sea. The Atlantic seaboard is approximately 400 miles from Akron by direct flight.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Setting the Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me if china candlesticks and centerpiece are in good taste on an informal dinner table? My dinette is very pale green. I use green or gold or peach colored table linens most of the time. On account of this particular arrangement, I felt Dresden china candlesticks and centerpiece would be attractive, if in good taste. I also have china "extra pieces" on the table, such as small dishes for nuts and compotes. MARY.

Your table-setting sounds as if it were very lovely, and you sound like an exceptionally artistic person. For an informal table-setting china candlesticks and centerpieces are in excellent taste, and I am very fond of them. The three shades of table-linens that you use on your informal table . . . green gold and peach-color . . . are beautiful backgrounds for Dresden china accessories. A hostess who has such charming plans for her table-settings must be a joy to her family . . . and I congratulate you and them.

Calling Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I expect to be graduated from high school very soon, and I am wondering how I should have my calling cards printed. Would you advise Mary Elizabeth Jones, Miss Mary E. Jones or Mary E. Jones? READER.

None of these forms is the one that I would suggest. You should have Miss on your visiting card, and you should either spell out your middle name or omit it. For abbreviations are not in good form on visiting cards. So the form of your name should be either Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones or, if you prefer, Miss Mary Jones.

And don't have the cards printed. They should be engraved. It costs very little to have a plate made, and the cards are engraved from this plate. I suggest that you ask your engraver to show you the form of engraving called "shaded antique Roman." This is the most popular style now.

BLAZE NEAR OIL BOILER QUELLED

Donning masks, firemen battled a blaze in the boiler room of the Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., Baum boulevard and Roup avenue, more than an hour last night.

The fire, its cause undetermined, originated near the oil-burning boiler in the basement, firemen said. The damage was not estimated.

Damage estimated at $700 resulted from a fire last night in the basement of the home of Elmer Freund, 201 Anabelle street, Mt. Washington. The flames were confined to the basement.

Freund conducts a grocery on the first floor of the building.

Irish Blue Shirts Seized at Dance

CULLOVILLE, Armagh, North of Ireland, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Seven members of Gen. Eoin O'Duffy's Blue Shirts were seized in a dance hall here today, stripped of their shirts and forced to walk in the bitter cold six miles to Carrick, across in the Irish Free State.

The Irish Free State government outlawed O'Duffy's Blue Shirt National Guard August 21 and set up a military tribunal with the power of "life or death" over the state's enemies. The Blue Shirts were banned as an armed menace.)

Wilkinsburg Girl Ends Cold Quick Way

Don't get the idea that you "catch cold" from germs in the air. It's cold that catches you, and the cause is poison wastes in your body. End a cold quick, and at the same time check acid, gassy indigestion, headaches, dizziness, nervousness and fitful sleep. Take "The Family Physician" Medicine, as Mary Louise Graham did. Here's the truth straight from a neighbor, who lives at 1368 Marlboro Ave., Wilkinsburg.

"I can laugh at colds now, for I've found how to whip them and prevent them, too. 'The Family Physician' Medicine certainly made short work of mine. I took a tablespoonful four nights and my cold just disappeared . . . head clear, no sneezing, coughing or snuffling . . . a complete job. It's the best medicine I ever found, that's why I'm telling everyone about it."

Yep—this is the same medicine which Pittsburgh mothers swear by—for sweetening children's upset stomachs, breaking colds and fever, opening and keeping open their bowels. Costs only 30c or 60c at any nearby drug store if it helps. No pay if it fails! Sold, recommended and guaranteed by Dow Drug Stores, Mayflower and Sun Drug Stores, Rand's Cut-Rate Drug Stores, C. Lloyd Ohle, 2889 West Liberty Ave., Dormont, and other leading drug stores.

A WORD TO THE PEOPLE OF PITTSBURGH

[There are a lot of words in this announcement, but don't skip a single one. It's a story of a big Pittsburgh industry and of an expansion that means better service to you. Read on!]

THIS is a story of a great consolidation.

Four great forces in the oil industry—leaders all—have become one. And out of this union is born an expansion of facilities and service desired by a host of Pittsburghers for years.

For the companies which have consolidated are:

AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM & TRANSPORT COMPANY
and its subsidiaries

MEXICAN PETROLEUM CORP.

LORD BALTIMORE FILLING STATIONS, Inc.

A Pittsburgh Institution Spreads Out!

Some years ago the American Oil Company started its Pittsburgh operations by taking over a local oil company. Later it bought out the marketing properties in this entire section of the Transcontinental Oil Company. Since then, with its hundreds of service stations and dealer outlets here, the American Oil Company has become a Pittsburgh institution. Its famous products—AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel, and Orange AMERICAN GAS, a leader in regular gasolines—have become Pittsburgh's favorites in their respective price fields. These products are now available from Maine to Florida, and inland.

As a result of the consolidation, the American Oil Company and its affiliates take a still more prominent position among the major oil groups of the country. The union means very big resources, large available crude producton and pipeline systems, refineries, complete research laboratories, large tank car and motor truck fleets, numerous ocean terminals, many hundreds of bulk plants, and thousands of service station outlets. A vast and far-flung system.

Leaders Individually Leaders Collectively

Individually, each company has risen to leadership in a specific field—through conspicuous merit of distinctive service and distinctive products.

Now collectively, they offer to Pennsylvania motorists and those in Maryland, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina and the District of Columbia—where the American Oil Company already operated up to the time of the merger—the benefit of all these fine facilities and the long desired opportunity to buy AMOCO-GAS, Orange AMERICAN GAS, and other famous American Oil Company products all the way from Maine to Florida, and inland.

In the series of announcements to follow, we'll tell you more about this great organization—its resources—its facilities—its products—under the theme . . .

"American" Marches Ahead!

Watch for them! . . . Read them! . . . Profit by them!

MANY RECIPES TO APPEAR IN COOK BOOK

In greater and greater numbers they keep coming in to Prudence Penny—recipes for cakes, pies, meat and fish dishes, salads, desserts, and most anything the clever housewife could want to include in her day's menu.

Although all the recipes are good, the judges can't possibly distribute the 11 prizes awarded daily to the many hundreds of favorite recipes received.

In Prudence Penny's cookbook, to be issued in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, you will find a large number of these recipes which did not receive one of the cash prizes, yet are worthy of honorable mention.

You'll want to use them, for they're valuable additions to any woman's cooking index.

In Sunday's book you will find special suggestions for Thanksgiving dinner, in addition to informative articles relating to cookery.

There still are many types of recipes which have not appeared in the prize recipe columns. No specifications are made as to just what kind of a recipe you may send.

Just so it is your best, it has a chance of winning for you the $5 prize or one of the ten $1 prizes awarded daily to recipes sent in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. A. B. KELLY,
Masontown,

OYSTERS AND MUSHROOM PATTIES

One pint oysters.
One-half pound mushrooms.
Two green peppers.
One cup milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
Flour to thicken.

Place half the butter in top of double boiler. Add pared and thinly sliced mushrooms. Mince peppers and add to mushrooms. Allow vegetables to brown very slightly, then add rest of butter, cover pot closely and steam for about 10 minutes. Add flour, blend with butter and vegetables, then add milk, using enough to make thick white sauce, place pot over hot water, add drained oysters and as much of liquor as is needed for desired consistency. When the skirts of the oysters begin to curl, the mixture will be ready to serve. Serve very hot in patty shells or on squares of buttered toast.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. FRANK SHATTUCK,
3231 College Ave., Beaver Falls.

STEAMED BROWN BREAD

One and one-half cup of brown sugar.
One-half cup of molasses.
Two cups of buttermilk.
One-half cup of cornmeal.
Three cups of graham flour.
One and one-half cups of white bread flour.
Four teaspoonfuls of baking soda.
Two teaspoonfuls of salt.
One tablespoonful of lard.
Two eggs.
One cup of seedless raisins.

Mix sugar, molasses, lard and eggs well together, then add buttermilk, then mix together your cornmeal, graham and white flour, salt, baking soda and raisins, and then mix all together. Steam two hours in greased pans. This makes three nice loaves if steamed in the oval pans of a 12-quart waterless cooker.

MRS. SARA STITT,
P. O. Box 671, Leechburg.

GARDEN ROAST

One and one-half pounds flank steak.
Two tablespoons fat.
Six medium-sized potatoes.
Two cups peeled white onions.
One bunch peeled sliced carrots.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper, one cup boiling water.

STUFFING FOR STEAK

Try one minced onion in two tablespoons fat. Add:
Two cups soft bread crumbs.
Three tablespoons warm water.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon thyme.

Spread steak with stuffing, roll and tie. Brown. Put in baking pan. Add water. Cover. Bake in slow oven for one hour. Add vegetables. Bake until tender. Remove cover last 10 minutes to brown vegetables.

MRS. R. N. LAUGHLIN,
513 Lorenz avenue.

CLOTHES-PIN CRULLERS

Beat four eggs until light, add gradually two-thirds cup sugar, one-third cup melted shortening and one-third cup milk. Sift three and one-half cups flour with one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cream of tartar and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg; add to the first mixture. Roll dough one-fourth inch thick and cut in strips nine inches long and one inch wide. Wrap strips around clothes-pin, starting just above the division in the clothes-pin. Slip end of dough between the two tips of the pin. Clothes-pins must first be cooked in the hot fat before the dough is wrapped on them. This saturates the wood and prevents sticking. Fry crullers in hot fat. Drain on soft absorbent paper, take out the clothes-pins and sprinkle crullers with powdered sugar.

MRS D. W. STEELE,
Leechburg, R. D. 2.

TOASTED CHEESE CANAPES

Cut rounds of stale bread, spread with grated cream cheese and toast under flame of broiler. Serve either open-faced or combined in sandwich form.

MRS. HENRY T. CRISSMAN,
601 N. Water street, Kittanning.

FISH AND CHIPS
(English)

Small fish may be fried whole. Large fish are cut into lengths, fillets or steaks.
Two eggs.
Salt and pepper.
One-half cup milk.
One tablespoon melted butter.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One cup flour.

Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately. To yolks add butter, seasonings and one-fourth tablespoon milk. Stir in flour and baking powder and beat thoroughly. Add rest of milk slowly, then beat in stiff egg whites. Fry in deep fat 360 to 390 degrees F. When fish rises to top and is golden brown, cooking is completed. Three to five minutes is sufficient, except for extra large pieces. Drain on heavy paper and serve at once.

CHIPS (FRENCH FRYS)

Cut potatoes in long triangular pieces, let stand few minutes in cold water. Then fry in deep hot fat till tender and golden brown. Drain on paper and sprinkle with salt. Serve hot. This with cold slaw is a good meal.

MRS. THEODORE BOYER,
R. D. 2, Box 24, Sharpsburg.

QUEEN'S CAULIFLOWER

Boil in salted water until almost tender one large cauliflower which has been broken apart. Drain and put in a buttered casserole. Over the cauliflower pour a sauce made of the following: Make a medium white sauce and add three-quarters cup pea puree, season with salt, pepper and butter. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake about 30 minutes or until crumbs are evenly browned.

MRS. J. W. HEDDERICH, Jr.,
R. D. No. 9, Box 56, South Hills.

HOT FUDGE SAUCE FOR ICE CREAM

Two squares Baker's chocolate.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half cup water.
One tablespoon butter.
Two tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in one-half cup milk.
Vanilla.
Cook until thick.

MRS. W. M. CULBERTSON,
241 Academy Ave., Mt. Lebanon.

ROAST PORK AND BEANS

Two pounds pork loin.
One and one-half pounds navy beans.
One cup brown sugar.
Three tablespoons wet mustard.
One large onion.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Soak beans over night. Brown pork in roaster. Drain beans, and add sugar, mustard, salt, pepper and onion. Cover with water and pour over meat. Bake from three to four hours in a moderate oven. Very good when served with chili sauce.

MAY M. SWAN,
R. D. No. 7, Bellevue.

CRANBERRY COCKTAIL

Two cups cranberries.
One-fourth cup orange juice.
Two cups water.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
Two-thirds cup sugar.

Combine sugar and water, add berries and cover and cook slowly until soft. Drip through wet jelly bag. Heat the strained juice to boiling point, add orange and lemon juice. If not sweet enough add more sugar and stir until dissolved. Chill. Serve as an appetizer for dinner.

MRS. MARY R. BOWERS,
500 Broadway, Farrell.

RABBIT SUPREME

One rabbit.
Three slices bacon.
Two bay leaves.
One can peas.
One can tomatoes.
One large tablespoon butter.
One large onion (chopped).
One large carrot (diced).
One teaspoon salt.
Pepper to taste.
Two large tablespoons flour.
Vinegar.

Put rabbit in salt water with little vinegar, let stand over night. When ready to cook, drain and dry each piece of rabbit thoroughly. Cut bacon in small pieces, add chopped onion and fry together in separate frying pans, until brown. Put lard in frying pan and when hot add rabbit and fry until brown; remove from frying pan and place in bake dish, add bacon, onions, bay leaves and carrot. Strain tomatoes and pour over this; if necessary add water with tomato juice as rabbit should be covered with liquid. Bake in over about 350 or 375 degrees F. about two hours or until tender. Open can peas, drain, let stand one hour in dish. Add peas to rabbit about 30 minutes before serving. Bake 20 minutes. Mix butter and flour together; remove rabbit from oven and stir butter and flour paste with spoon, add to rabbit. Bake 15 minutes longer. This is delicious with mashed potatoes, cold slaw and hot biscuits.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

STRICKEN, DIES ON CLUB PORCH

Stricken ill on a street car, Mrs. Bridget O'Brien, 45, of 5929 Bryant street, East End, fell dead on the porch of the Knights of Columbus clubhouse at Fifth and Bellefield avenues late yesterday.

Mrs. O'Brien, wife of E. J. O'Brien, a member of the order, was en route downtown on a street car. Taken ill, she alighted at Bellefield avenue.

While tapping on a window of the club building, attempting to attract attention of members inside, she suffered a fatal heart attack, according to a report made to the Coroner.

Stricken Seeking Aid for Brother

PALMYRA, O., Nov. 16.—Harley A. Tuttle is in a serious condition from a stroke of apoplexy, suffered last night when he rushed to phone for a physician, after his brother, A. Claude Tuttle, 67, was fatally stricken with apoplexy. Claude Tuttle for 19 years was manual training teacher in the Lakewood schools.

CHURCH FIGHT TRIAL OPENS

Cross-suits faced 72 defendants as their trials opened today before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff as an outgrowth of a fight at the Slavish Lutheran Church, Duquesne, last July.

The defendants totaled 47 on one side and 25 from a second faction. Charges of riot, inciting to riot and assault and battery grew out of a fight when adherents of the Rev. John Murcek, it is said, attempted to prevent installation of his successor.

Treasure Hunters Deny Trove Found

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The assertion that nothing of value has been salvaged from the treasure ship Merida, lying in 200 feet of water 60 miles off the Virginia coast, was made in the United States District Court yesterday when the Sub-Ocean Salvage Company, owner of the salvage steam tug Salvor, filed answers to numerous libels against the tug pending in the court.

All the libels are for wages claimed due to members of the crew of the Salvor on many expeditions to the Merida in attempts to raise to the surface silver and gold believed stored on the vessel.

ROBBER SLUGS MAN IN STORE

Frank J. Judge, of 242 Lehigh avenue, manager of a chain store at 119 Shady avenue, was recovering today from lacerations of the head suffered late yesterday when he was slugged by a robber.

A thief broke a window at the Goodwill Industries Store, 2943 Penn avenue, and escaped with a radio, according to police.

Transit Company Banned by P. S. C.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Declaring its alleged practices to be "nothing less than outrageous," the Public Service Commission today had ordered the Red Ball Transit Company to cease operating in Pennsylvania.

The order resulted from a complaint filed by Harold C. Knight, Philadelphia, alleging the concern refused payment of judgments obtained by Knight after a truckload of his furniture was burned in transport from Sewickley to Philadelphia. Knight claimed the insurance company paid the Red Ball Company $2,000 damages and he got none of it.

Ends Life, Leaving Note on Funeral

Leaving a note arranging for his funeral services, John A. Stauffer, 77, a roomer at 423 Foreland street, shot and killed himself late yesterday, according to North Side police. According to others living in the house he had been ill and despondent.

STATE BANK LIQUIDATION METHOD HELD ILLEGAL

POLITICS

Coyne's Wings Not Yet Clipped in Assembly

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—One of the chief political questions in this legislative session, bearing as well on the political situation in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, is the extent to which Senator James J. Coyne is to be recognized by Republican legislative leaders and chiefs of the state committee as the last word on matters touching his community.

Mr. Shields

There has been wide speculation as to whether, as a result of the municipal election of last week, when all of the Coyne - backed Republican candidates not only were beaten, but beaten badly, the state party chiefs might regard the outcome as something of a black eye for the Senator.

Also there has been greater discussion than might have been expected whether it might be advisable to give some attention, if not to new leadership entirely, then at least to recognition of other political factors.

However, none of this discussion appears to have impressed the organization state leaders.

There is nowhere among this leadership an apparent disposition to alter any of the setup which has existed.

Sway Over Delegation Determining Factor

If Senator Coyne is in a position to influence a majority of the Allegheny County Republican legislative delegation he will fill the same role here as in the past, according to one spokesman for the organization today.

In explanation it was said that the elections of last week had not affected any of the men now in office. The fact that the future of these men may have been very seriously affeced if and when they are again candidates appears to have not been considered.

On the direct question as to whether Coyne's authority would be considered with relation to his ability to influence Allegheny County senators, the reply was that control over both House and Senate delegations would continue to be the determining factor.

At no time has the Senator been able to impose leadership on a majority of the Allegheny County senators. He has, however, in the House, by a variable margin, but there is some evidences that this control is not so assured as it was.

Trend From Big City Leaders Indicated

Despite the conservatism of the state organization leaders, as well as some leaders of the Legislature, there is reason to believe there are legislators, many of them with influence, not disposed to co-operate either with the Philadelphia or Republican bosses as in the past.

Many members report an outcropping of this sentiment Tuesday in the Republican House caucus, when Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, one of the most powerful legislative lieutenants of Coyne, made a fight on the provisions of the Pinchot liquor stores and retail license bill. Dr. Steedle was joined by a brace of Philadelphians.

There was a vigorous, though not openly expressed sentiment, against Steedle and the Philadelphians attempting to dominate a Republican caucus or attempt to commit it to a course which might have political after-effects.

If the question of the liquor bill had come to a direct showdown, Dr. Steedle would have been badly in the minority.

Rural Members Plainly Resentful

From rural counties there were Republicans whose territory had voted the traditional party ticket, while the big eastern and western centers were slithering to the Democrats. And these rural members were resentful that representatives from the city districts should tell them what to do. They said so sharply.

The record of this session is a matter of self-preservation to many members with an election scheduled for next year, and they are not inclined to follow leaders who have been discredited. Gen. Martin is apt to hear something about this if he endeavors to give too much consideration to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

As a matter of fact, there is a very definite lack of cohesion in the delegations even from those two sections.

There are, for example, at least two Republican House members from Allegheny County, heretofore loyal to Senator Coyne, whom the Democrats can have tomorrow on practically any test vote if Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence says the word.

However, securing them might be dependent on some concessions which it is doubtful Mr. Lawrence would care to entertain, even if he could be certain that any promise would be supported by Mayor-elect William N. McNair, whose acquiescence through the police force would be necessary.

FUND REACHES $1,271,755 ON 4TH DAY

Women Workers Meet; Gift From Anonymous Donor Aged 102

Gifts totaling $125,270, announced at a luncheon meeting attended by 500 workers, today boosted the total subscribed to the Welfare Fund to date to $1,271,755. Today was the fourth day of a drive to raise $2,837,000 by November 28.

Judge Sara Soffel was the principal speaker at today's luncheon, which was arranged by the women's teams. The environment provided for youth today will do much to determine the kind of men and women they will become 20 years from now, she said.

Today's total was reported as follows: Women's division, $5,77?; corporation division, $54,487; special gifts, $33,929; men's teams, $4,676; employes division, $16,447; unit division, $9,087, and city neighborhood division, $873.

Features of yesterday's reports, totaling $52,659, were the receipt of $102 from an anonymous donor celebrating her one hundred and second birthday, and of a 30-pound package of $101.15 in coins from bellhops in a downtown hotel.

Dr. H. B. Hudnut, of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, spoke at the meeting.

WELFARE GETS COUNTY AID

All county employes earning $150 per month or more will be asked to give one day's pay to the Welfare Fund, county officials decided yesterday at a meeting with Welfare Fund officials. A check is also to be made immediately to determine whether all pledges for this year have been paid by county employes.

Attorney David I. McCahill and William P. Witherow spoke in behalf of the fund.

In urging contributions Chairman C. C. McGovern of the County Commissioners said:

"The Federal government has announced a new plan to distribute $400,000,000 to pay for gainful employment. We had better get out of our mind all thought of getting money from the federal government because the county has been making attempts for months to get money and we have not got a dime. We spent about $50,000 trying to prove our claim. The Democrats had better let go of some of that money pretty quick."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 16. To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

Those two friendly gentlemen are at it again. Germany voted confidence in their man, France had no election billed, but they got up in the middle of the night to vote confidence in their's.

Will Rogers

Germany wants to talk it over. France says not without the league being present. Germany says she will arm. France says she shouldn't, that they will keep the peace for her.

Now for once in our lives, let's just let those two old tom cats whose tails are tied over the fence alone, and try to cure the scratches we got from the last time we tried to untie 'em.

Yours, WILL.

Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Fleeing Girl Is Pursued

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies).

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Yellow Bob's saffron features were familiar to the chief of spies; his keen eyes lingered on Operator 13, glanced at the horses, reverted to the girl with the unconscious instinct of a suspicious, watchful hound. Then Joe Sweeny unslung his banjo, tuned it deftly, raised his voice in a song which the general took up, and the entire staff began to sing to the enchanting staccato of the banjo:

"I know er pretty lil gal,
Down Mobile;
Front name's Honey, hind name's Sal;
Down Mobile.
Onlies' rag she got to her back's
A ole stitch-up swee-'tater sack.
But lawzee-me, when she give yuh er smack,
Hit tas'e jes lak
A hot honey-bohn,
To me in de sun,
A-holn' ob de co'n.
She give me er smack,
An' hit tas'e jes lak
Ah ticky honeybee
Wus a-stingin' me,
Till her mouf wuz drippin'
Lak er peach dat's hit.
And Ah 'spec' Ah'd die befo' she quit.

Chorus.

"I'se got a pretty lil gal,
Down Mobile:
Front name's Honey, hind name's Sal,
Down Mobile,
Down Mobile."

Thus rode the laughing General and his staff into Yankee land to the twang of a banjo and an old Louisiana melody.

Sweeping On

Eastward and westward the bird-o'-prey wings of the northward-marching gray brigades swept the Pennsylvania country-side clean of horses and saw no hostile horsemen. The column proceeded by brigades. In the center of each brigade traveled prisoners and captured led horses.

Once the General looked around at his led horse and said banteringly to Bob: "I supposed you were clever enough to ride one horse and lead two! Where did you find that little black boy?"

Yellow Bob was too scared to reply, and merely rolled ashamed and frightened eyes. It passed as a jest—yet Chancellor turned twice to look with that unconscious "instinct" of his at the ragged Negro lad riding Skylark.

Toward dark it began to rain as the column bore to the east. But it was a little after 9 o'clock when the gray jacketed horsemen entered defenseless Chambersburg, where a scared group of prominent citizens, already warned by a Federal scout sent flying by Gus Littlefield, awaited in deepest perturbation the advent of Rebel raiders.

Stuart spoke to them courteously, suggesting that all good citizens should remain quiet and obey martial law as administered by their new provost marshal, Colonel Hairston. Officers politely requested shelter and food from the townspeople; regiments camped in the Diamond and along the streets.

Yellow Bob, his horses and Operator 13 found a rickety barn to shelter them from the rain. The girl sat in the dark doorway eating cold cornbread and bacon and watching cavalry details riding out to scour the region for horses. A ring of alert horsemen surrounded Chambersburg. There was no possible chance for her to get out.

Yellow Bob, mortified by the General's good-humored jest, had little to say to lil Lucille. When the horses were watered, fed, rubbed down and bedded, Yellow Bob, still sulky, lay down in the straw beside his own mount.

Operator 13 walked to the doorway and looked out at the rain. "Lawzee me," she said, "all the ridgements is got new clothes, Bob. Marse Butler's men is all rigged up in sky blue overcoats. Whar dey git dem pretty clothes, huh?"

"Yankee clothes," growled Bob.

"Honey, would yuh go out an' git me a new blue overcoat?" she wheedled.

Sullen

"Git it yuhse'f," he muttered.

"Hit's a-rainin,' she whined.

"Das why I done say; git it yuhse'f."

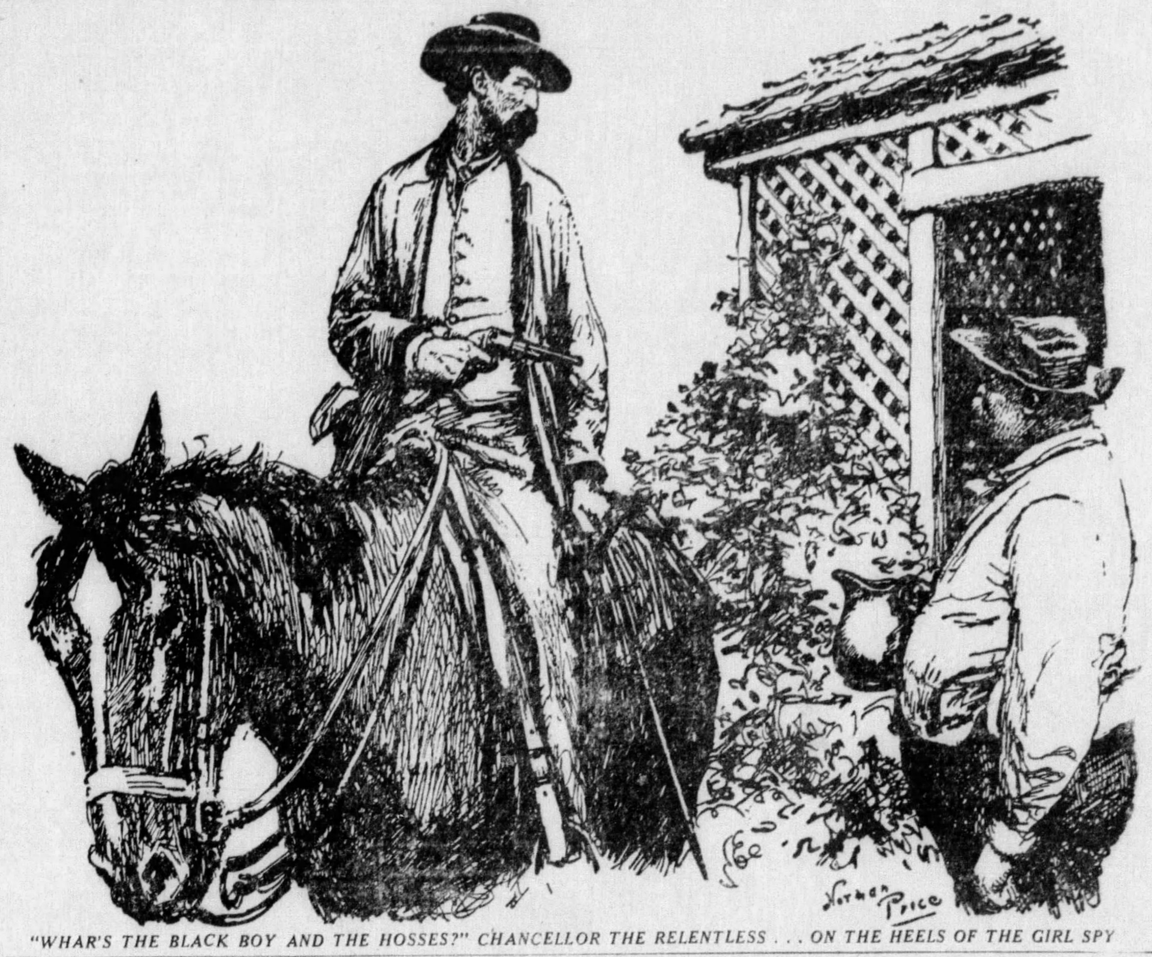
"Bob, ain't yuh love me no mo'?"

"Yuh done got me in trouble. Das whut yuh done!"

"I'se gwine out," she said.

"Whar you traipsin' now?"

"Gwine go find me a blue coat."



"WHAR'S THE BLACK BOY AND THE HOSSES?" CHANCELLOR THE RELENTLESS . . . ON THE HEELS OF THE GIRL SPY

"Hunh!" he grunted. "Yuh jes' try it!"

She tried it, but was stopped in the street. She had no pass; dared ask for none.

There was no way to get out of this dark, rain drenched Pennsylvania town. No way to get news to Averell or to Col. Rush's lancers. Yet somehow she had to escape. Death certainly awaited discovery, and discovery was inevitable if she were obliged to continue with the cavalry on their return march.

Gus Littlefield had said: "Better a bullet in the back, ma'am, than dancin' a sunset jig in Dixie." The "Sunset Dance" was at a rope's end. Bullets were kinder.

She brooded over this until she was scared cold; then resolutely forced the horror from her mind.

On her way back to the barn she noticed a candle burning in an outhouse behind it, and saw a fat citizen in his shirt sleeves, lowering corked jugs into a well for purposes of concealment from thirsty Confederate cavalrymen. She could smell applejack, too.

A clatter of a cavalry patrol in the street sent the Dutchman scurrying so fast that he forgot to blow out his candle. Operator 13 crept into the latticed wellhouse, picked up two jugs and crept out again on noiseless feet.

"Bob?" she called softly. "Does yuh love toddy?"

"Debbil in yuh, yaller gal! Whar am de toddy."

"Bob, I done fotch yuh a jug of applejack."

Bob sat up quickly. "Is yuh lyin'?"

"No, suh."

Concentration

He made his way to her in the dark, felt the cool jugs in her hands, clutched at them. Gor a-mighty," he chuckled. "Whar you steal dis applejack, honey?"

She told him, giggling; and the swift gurgle of the jug blended with her musical giggle.

"Yuh tas'e hit?" he inquired.

"One lil swaller, Bob."

It was quite enough for her, too, bringing heat to her cheeks and body and chilled feet. She climbed up into the loft and, curling up deep in the hay, lay silent, trying to see her way to some clear, safe end before a military court ended her and saved her all trouble of further thinking.

In a little while it became plain to her that Yellow Bob was getting drunk.

"Lucille," he shouted, "come hyah an' play ring-around-a-rosie wif me!"

His loud voice alarmed her, and she thought it better to descend.

Yellow Bob was dancing around in the dark, singing "Ring - Around - a-Rosie," and suddenly the full danger of his condition dawned on the girl, as he seized her and made her dance in a circle with him at a dizzying speed. She tried to get loose; his grip held her, and he made her sing with him, as they whirled there in utter darkness:

"Ring-Around-a-Rosie, Who's got the posy?"

until one of his hand slipped and she tore the other loose and reeled away.

By sheer luck she landed against the loft ladder, and went up on wavering legs to her hole in the hay.

He yelled for her awhile, but couldn't find her. He was neither very drunk nor beastly yet; he was playful, boastful.

Operator 13, now thoroughly afraid of him, peered down through a crack in the planks where she lay flat on her stomach in the hay, listening to his singing and shuffling corners, but unable to see him in the darkness.

Suddenly a lantern gleamed at the doorway, and she saw Yellow Bob dancing "Ring-Around-a-Rosie," jug in hand.

Also she saw a more terrifying sight—two men, one holding the lantern. He was Vespasian Chancellor. And with him, his head and face bandaged and only his eyes visible, was Jack Gailliard.

When Yellow Bob recognized his visitors he sobered a little and tried to conceal his jug.

"Bob," drawled the tall chief of spies, "whar's that black boy you fotched along, ridin' Skylark?"

Evasion

A sudden pang of fear sobered the mulatto to comprehension of his own danger, and he knew the General's punishment would be severe if it transpired that he, Yellow Bob, had aided in this escapade of the pretty laundress.

"Who yuh mean, suh?" Dat no-'count nigger boy outen de stables?"

"I mean him," said Chancellor. "Whar is he? I want to take a look at him."

"Yas, suh," said Yellow Bob promptly. "Dat ornery nigger boy, he tuk an' run down to de town. 'Pears lak he a-honin' to find him a new blue overcoat."

"When did he go?"

"Been gone jes a minute, suh."

"He's comin' back, of course?"

"Dunno, suh. He done act biggity, an' I done kick an' cuff him. 'Low I done give dat black debbil plenty Jimmy Crackcorn on de haid an' shins. Yaas, suh."

"Who is he?" demanded Chancellor.

"He-all jes' a jockey, suh, hangin' roun' de hosses."

"How long? I don't recollect seein' him."

"All de black hoss boys looks alike, suh.'

"Come on, Chancellor," said Gailliard, "there's nothing in your suspicions."

"Hits mah instinc' a-workin'."

"All right. Find my horse and you'll find the person you're after. She never came this way. She's in the mountains."

"Yaas, suh." But Chancellor lifted his lantern and looked around—at Yellow Bob and his jugs, at Lady Margrave and at Skylark in their bedded stalls, then upward at the haymow above. "I think I'll step up thar."

"Oh, come on," said Gailliard, detaining him by one arm.

Chancellor hesitated, his instinct working. Then it grew feebler—or seemed to—for Gailliard drew him to the door; and presently they went away together.

Operator 13 lay like one dead. For the shifting light of the lantern had sent one chance ray through the crack in the planks to which her eyes were glued. Chancellor was looking at the ladder; but Jack Gailliard had seen the light sparkle on her eyeballs; she knew he had seen by his manner.

And she knew also that he had let her go; let her live to take the desperate chance—if any—that remained to her. Now, stiff and chilled with terror, she could not know how long—but the hours of sickening fear seemed to stretch into years.

Below in darkness Yellow Bob was getting very, very drunk, but he retained sense enough to let her alone. And toward dawn retained no sense at all; for she could see him lying prone in the pale light, beside a pair of empty jugs.

Destruction

And now, in the thick mist and drizzle of earliest daybreak, the old barn began to shake and tremble with explosions where Confederate cavalry were blowing up storehouses, arsenals and depots of supplies of the Union Army and trying to blow up the iron bridge.

Everywhere Jeb Stuart's bugles were blowing, troopers saddling, mounting, clattering away out of town, bearing to the eastward. Guidons danced by; caissons, limbers, guns jolted briskly through the streets in the dawn.

Operator 13 rose from the hay and crept down the ladder to where Yellow Bob lay dead drunk on applejack. First she saddled Bob's horse, then led out Lady Margrave and Skylark into the rank bushes behind the well house, where the same man she had seen before was still Gail Loveless, at 20, became a spy in the Federal service and was designated as Operator 13. In the disguise of a quadroon laundress, she was sent to the headquarters of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Confederate cavalry leader, who was planning a daring raid into Pennsylvania.

Capt. Gailliard, leader of Stuart's spies, flirted with her, kissed her, fell half in love with her and was ashamed of himself. He and Belle Boyd, most famous Confederate woman spy, were convinced that "Lucille Lyndon," as she called herself, was a genuine colored girl, and harmless. But Vespasian Chancellor, Gailliard's colleague, suspected her. Eventually he exposed her as a spy. She stole Gailliard's horse, struck him in the face with his own pistol and fled.

Barred from flight in any other direction, she boldly joined Stuart's cavalry as it started north on its Pennsylvania raid. She cajoled Yellow Bob, Stuart's groom, into letting her ride one of the General's horses.

KREISLER HERE FOR CONCERT

Famous Violinist Spurns Thought Of Hitler

Hitler and political affairs of Germany and Austria have no place in his thoughts, Fritz Kreisler says.

The world - famous violinist, here for a concert tonight at Syria Mosque, had only thoughts for his hobbies and quickly evaded any political discussions when questioned at William Penn Hotel.

Admitting that he has thought of retirement, Kreisler said the affairs of an artist differed none from those of business people, and his investments lack income value like many other persons. Too, retirement would mean leaving the host of friends he has made in the concert world.

He revealed that his art today is bringing him greater satisfaction. He said:

"When one is young, he has hopes and fears. Now I have neither, and in their place I find a quietness and contentment. There is little to gain now or lose."

But when he retires, Kreisler will have a dog kennel at his Vienna home to bring enjoyment to Mrs. Kreisler and himself. Both are dog lovers their favorites being Airedales, Scottish terriers and police dogs. A library of more than 2,000 volumes of old books, too, shares his time. Kreisler's interest is seeking volumes from before the year 1500.

Gordon Surcharged For Funds to Aid Department

Depositors in every closed state bank in Pennsylvania were affected today by a decision handed down by Judge Elder W. Marshall in Common Pleas Court branding the Department of Banking's method of liquidating closed state banks as illegal.

The decision, surcharging Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, for $2,260.35 he charged against the Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue for support of the division of closed banks, in Philadelphia, apparently laid Dr. Gordon open to further surcharges possibly reaching $1,000,000.

Dr. Gordon announced he would appeal to a higher court.

The Marshall opinion decided exceptions taken last December by depositors in the trust company to the account of Attorney George F. Taylor, Jr., then deputy secretary of banking in charge of the company.

MAY DISRUPT MACHINERY

Those surcharges, made for methods typical of the administration of closed state banks throughout Pennsylvania, and that decision may result in the complete dislocation of the present liquidating machinery, based on the central Philadelphia office.

If that occurs, observers today said, the entire matter may become grist for the mill in the coming spring primaries, in which Gov. Pinchot is expected to seek the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator and Attorney General William A. Schnader, who approved the liquidation setup, the nomination for governor.

Meanwhile Dr. Gordon told the Sun-Telegraph he was awaiting a copy of the opinion in Harrisburg and expected to commence his study of it today.

PRECEDENTS SET

Judge Marshall's surcharge was on two major, precedent-setting grounds.

Gordon's liquidating machinery, set up extra-legally in the 1931 banking emergency, is declared illegal.

The short-cut he used to pay quick dividends through a private banker evading the liquidating laws, is thrown out.

Gordon's liquidating system called for a division of closed banks in the banking department, to oversee the work of the legally-prescribed special deputies in liquidating closed banks.

BEGUN AS CONVENIENCE

The office was established in 1931 in Philadelphia so its head, William L. McGee, could "sleep home nights," as McGee says.

Month[illegible] it prorated its expenses among the closed banks and charged them for their share of a reserve fund.

The office instructed deputies how they were to do their work and in the value and disposal of their assets, and the mechanics of their administration, including employment policies and salaries they were to pay.

So McGee's office charged the Citizens Trust $941.60 for nine months of its services in telling Taylor what to do.

JUDGE GIVES REASONS

But Judge Marshall threw those charges out of court in his decision, handed down late yesterday after almost a year's delay, because, he said:

1—McGee was appointed illegally as a deputy.

2—The amount of each monthly assessment "was determined by an arbitrary calculation and not on the basis of services rendered."

3—"The Philadelphia office neither supervised the work of Taylor, the deputy in charge, nor assisted him to any appreciable degree."

MAY SEEK MONEY

If the Marshall opinion stands up in the case of the Citizens Trust, it was a subject of speculation today whether depositors in the rest of the approximately 150 closed banks in the state oper-

Chefs Will Now Willingly Drink Their Own Work

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

All the hotel chefs are getting ready to cook with sherry and brandy again.

They have been out of practice: or so they claim.

The best recipe we have seen so far is for sherry and egg. You don't break the egg.

After several meals like that you can use your nose as a pilot light to start forest fires.

We are glad the chefs are happy again. The food will smell so good the chefs will dring their own cooking.

We will soon be back to the old days when we never knew whether the dinner gong was starting a meal or a fight.

MEMORIAL HALL BOARD WARNED BY COUNTY

Members of the board of managers of Memorial Hall have been informed by the County Commissioners that unless the veterans of the Spanish-American and World wars get representation on the board and unless the hall is made available to all veterans, no appropriation will be made for 1934.

County Commissioner C. M. Barr laid down this warning to the board yesterday after he had voiced his disapproval on the banning of the Hitler protest meeting several months ago and on certain charges made to organizations desirous of using the hall.

Barr told William H. Burchfield, president of the board, that he felt that the board was not right, just or in accord with the spirit of those who brought about its construction.

Commissioner Barr said:

"Unless you clarify your position and give more consideration to the World War veterans; eliminate the tremendous charges for the use of the building and make this a building offering 24-hour service, I will not vote for one dollar for the hall at budget time. The people of Allegheny County might be better off if it were closed altogether."

BOARD MEMBERS

In addition to Burchfield, other members of the board present were J. B. Hershey, L. W. Mallassee, John W. Williams and George Sands, Civil War veterans, and H. M. Faulkner, John E. Sautter, secretary, and Judges James R. Macfarlane and A. B. Reir. The judges and the County Commissioners are ex-officio members.

Judge Macfarlane protested to the Commissioners for taking up the discussion at an open meeting. He said:

"For us to be called up at a meeting like this I don't think is proper."

Commissioner Barr replied:

"It is proper. It pertains to what may be done at budget time. It's only your opinion."

The judge came back:

"That's my opinion flatly."

M'GOVERN'S VIEWS

Sautter said that the original board was of 10 Civil War veterans, who were privileged to name appointees to vacancies. Only veterans or sons of veterans have ever been named. He said the veterans of the later wars were offered use of the building whenever they desired.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern, expressing his views, said:

"The lines have been drawn too tight. Its a great question and the hall should be put to a better and wider use. People to whom the hall was built are rapidly passing on. We don't have to appropriate any of the money for the hall. The hall has been rented to spiritualists, half-witted fakers and a lot of 'cure alls' for a period of years."

OPEN TO FAKERS

McGovern indicated he would like to see representatives of the World War and Spanish American War veterans on the board and said that the soldiers of the Rebellion should be more liberal in their attitude to veterans of other wars. McGovern said for several years he has tried annually to have a bill passed in the Legislature, which would permit the board of managers to be made up of Civil War veterans, World War veterans, Spanish-American War veterans and sons of veterans. He said on every occasion it has been defeated.

McGovern said he could not understand why the hall would be rented to fakers who keep fooling the people and took money from women, when it was refused to others.

PROBE IN DEATH OF PRISONER

County detectives and the coroner's office today were investigating the death of Patrick Barry, 56, of 817 Middle street, North Braddock, who was locked up in the North Braddock Police Station for nearly 24 hours before he was taken, unconscious, to St. Francis Hospital, where he died yesterday of a fractured skull.

Barry was arrested in North Braddock Friday. He was aroused from a stupor Saturday and taken to Braddock General Hospital, where he was denied admittance on the grounds that he was suffering from alcoholism, police said.

Police said they did not know how he came to his injury.

Goodwill Industries Founder Guest Here

Dr. E. J. Helms, of Boston, Mass., founder of the Goodwill Industries, will be the principal speaker at a conference of leaders here today. At a luncheon given by Elmer L. Kidney, member of the Board of Home Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, D. Helms will be the guest of honor.

SANTA TO HAVE BAND ESCORTS

Non-professional bands, drum and bugle corps, Boy Scouts, singing societies and other musical groups have been invited to participate in the Santa Claus parade, a pageantry of Christmas, which will be held here Saturday morning, November 25, under the auspices of civic and business organizations.

The Pittsburgh Civic Parade Committee, sponsor of the event, has set up two capital prizes of $50 each, one for the band and the other for drum and bugle corps and other groups, which make the best showing in the march through downtown streets. Second prize of $25 for the band and $15 for others, have been set up.

Plans for the parade, which will include grotesque costuming never exhibited here before, and all characters out of nursery rhymes, as well as colorful floats, have been completed, according to Frank W. Shea, director. An award of $15 will be given to the boy and girl who best depicts some humorous character. Twenty-eight second prizes will be given for costumes and acting in the match. Entry to the contests can be made by applying at 1916 Oliver Building, headquarters of the parade committee.

Mayor John S. Herron will welcome Santa Claus at City Hall, symbolizing the ushering of the Christmas season into Pittsburgh.

ILLNESS ENDS POLA NEGRI'S STAGE FLING

Her American stage career blighted by an illness which caused her to collapse in the Nixon Theater Saturday night, Pola Negri left Pittsburgh last night for New York to enter a hospital for two months treatment.

Bundled in furs and complaining of the intense cold and her health, the exotic Pola, known also as the ex-Princess Mdivani and the ex-Countess Dobinski, was helped on the train at East Liberty about midnight by her doctor and secretary. She appeared pallid and her usual intense liveliness was gone.

Inside her compartment she had time to talk about but two things—her future plans and her much rumored engagement to Harold Fowler McCormick, of Chicago, millionaire 125 times over.

THROUGH WITH SHOW

Of the first she said:

"I'm going into a hospital when I arrive in New York to take a treatment—I'm terribly sick. I'll be there until January 15 and then I'm going to make a movie."

As for her starring role in "A Trip to Pressburg," which had its premiere in the Nixon last week, she explained:

"I don't know anything about the show—I'm through."

Her hapless bow here as an English speaking actress ended when she fainted backstage after the Saturday night performance. Dr. I. Kenneth Gardner, who attended her, said that she had an acute gall bladder attack. She was improved enough to go to New York, he explained.

M'CORMICK 'NICE MAN'

Asked about her romance with the aging McCormick, to whom her name has been linked in the public print for over a year, she said shortly before her train departed:

"I'm too sick to talk about romance now—he's a nice man."

She has been staying since Sunday at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gleich, of 1231 Bennington avenue. She had been at the William Penn Hotel.

COUNTY DELAYS PAYING COSTS TO 'SQUIRES

The request of the minor judiciary of Allegheny County that the County Commissioners replenish the exhausted fund for payment of costs on discharged cases, met new delay when the Commissioners, after hearing representatives of the organization, took the matter "under advisement."

A. W. McMillen, president of the organization, said about $20,000 would be needed to pay the costs for the remainder of the year. He declared the county would save money by paying, as aldermen and justices of the peace would hold all cases for court if costs were not paid them on discharged cases.

Chairman C. C. McGovern replied:

"That would not last long. The grand jury would begin to wrap these cases around the squires' necks and that would end it."

Commissioner C. M. Barr told McMillen the county was not aiming at honest squires, but intends to halt the robbing of the county through phantom cases.

He said the Commissioners' investigation of phantom cases, after meeting many difficulties had been temporarily halted, and meanwhile the Commissioners did not feel inclined to appropriate funds to remunerate the squires.

Controller Robert G. Woodside has refused to let Commissioners' auditors take certain records from his office to check books in the offices of justices of the peace and aldermen.

COUNTY'S RIGHT TO BANK TAX UPHELD

Allegheny County will continue to collect the 4-mill tax on bank savings, as long as such an act is on the books, it was indicated today, after a hearing by three Orphans Court judges sitting en banc, of argument by counsel for the county and the estate of Henry Schuetz, Jr.

Exceptions to the previous opinion of Judge H. Walton Mitchell that the county and not the state should make such collections were taken today by Schuetz's counsel, joined by the state.

Judge Thomas P. Trimble, after the hearing, declared:

"So far as I am concerned, I will not disturb the decree."

Unless higher courts reverse, the state will not be able to collect such taxes, although Gov. Pinchot, on a ruling by the Attorney General three months ago, expected to gather $8,000,000 for relief through this medium.

The basis of the argument presented by Thomas E. Whitten, assistant county solicitor, was that the county had been collecting it for years.

BANK RULING IMPORTANT

ating under the Gordon-McGee system may not want their share of that money back.

Most of the deputies' accounts have been filed and approved; several are known to be outstanding. Those already approved cannot be reopened.

But contributions to the support of the McGee office since the filing of the first accounts are almost sure to come under fire in exceptions suits similar to this when second accounts are filed, in the indeterminate future.

SUM NEAR MILLION

Unofficial estimates of the amount already paid the division of closed banks since the approval of first accounts run in the vicinity of $1,000,000. And Dr. Gordon is not understood to be wealthy, nor is he bonded against such charges as this.

The liquidating machinery was the principal focus of attack by Attorney George E. Morecroft, Jr., attorney for the depositors' committee, headed by Park H. Martin, of Bellevue.

The method of paying dividends which Judge Marshall declares illegal was devised by Gordon as a short-cut. The banking act provides that no dividend shall be paid until after confirmation of the deputy secretary's account.

Gordon's method paid small dividends through a private banker, to whom he technically "sold" the dividend money, long before the account was filed.

GORDON TOLD 'O PAY

Gordon paid the premium for the bond of Charles L. McCune, the private banker in this district, and charged the various Western Pennsylvania closed banks their share of the payment—$375 for the Citizens' Trust. And Gordon is ordered to pay that back.

Judge Marshall calls Gordon's purpose "laudable" but holds his method to be illegal.

The matter of appraisers is also involved. One—Stewart A. Shannon—was a former paper salesman with no appraising experience; the other, Harry Shapera, was an attorney. Each was paid about $5 an hour for his time—or $750 apiece.

Judge Marshall decreed that to be about $400 each too much, and told Dr. Gordon to pay back $800.

The other item was of $143.75 paid erroneously to Attorney Thomas G. Taylor, of Greensburg, and repaid by him on the day of the court hearing, last December. The surcharge of Dr. Gordon in this instance was a technical matter for the bookkeeper's convenience and will cost him nothing.

TAYLOR REGIME PRAISED

The opinion also cites the cheapness of Taylor's regime as deputy, his savings to the bank and his skilled work in administration.

It cites that:

"Over a period of 60 days he was unable to visit his own home and family, even for an hour, and at times was forced to retire without undressing.

"No one would have chosen deliberately to live under the conditions and work to the extent which Taylor did and there is not even the suggestion that he was motivated by other than a sincere desire to secure the largest possible amount of working time."

Taylor said today:

"While I'm naturally sorry to see Dr. Gordon held in error, I'm highly gratified at receiving judicial recognition of my efforts for the depositors of the Citizens' Trust Company."

SEES BURDEN LIFTED

Morecroft said:

"We feel the decision of Judge Marshall will lift a great burden from depositors in closed banks throughout the state. The Philadelphia office costs them hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"We are sure the opinion, if apealed, will be sustained."

David Glick, attorney for the Banking Department, who lost the case, said he was waiting for instructions from Gordon.

Dr. Gordon said:

"I haven't seen the decision yet, so I can't say anything until I go into a huddle with the Attorney General."

fussing with his jugs.

"Come here!" she called softly.

He was too fat to run; he came slinking, fear-stricken.

"Are you a Union man?" she asked.

He seemed incapable of speech, but finally nodded.

"Listen," she said, "I am a Union spy, disguised as a Negro boy. Is there any way I can ride out of here with these horses and escape to Harrisburg?"

"That wood road." He pointed with fat and trembling finger.

She sat on her horse in silence for awhile. Gray jackets were visible, riding flank to the moving column, beyond them videttes were galloping in from the westward. The Rebel cavalry was leaving Chambersburg and riding on—God knew where.

Now, through the misty drizzle an explosion shook the ground and a sheet of fire burst out beyond the highroad.

"There goes 50,000 Union muskets!" groaned the fat man. Then came a rock-racking shock and roar and a vast flame as the Federal depot of quartermaster's stores exploded.

A terrible silence, cut by clear, gay Confederate bugle calls. Far away to the eastward the girl caught the faint twang of a banjo. Without another word Operator 13 clutched the two halters and kicked Bob's nag into motion; and Lady Margrave and Skylark followed at a canter into the dusky woodland road.

She had been gone 10 minutes, perhaps, and the fat man had returned to his applejack, when Chancellor rode up.

"Yuh!" he called out. "Who made that nigger in the barn daid drunk?"

The fat man, jellified by fear, stammered out that he didn't know there was a nigger in the barn.

"Whar's the black boy an' the hosses?" asked Chancellor, gently, and produced a heavy revolver and cocked it. "An' don't yuh lie to me, either," he added.

"Th-they went that way!" stammered the fellow, and lifted a shaky arm toward the wood road.

"Yuh lie," said Chancellor, softly. "I reckon I better kill yuh."

"They did go that way," screamed the man. "A nigger boy and three horses."

"Yuh dirty coward!" said Chancellor, slashing him with a rawhide quirt. "It's yuh that oughto hang an' not that poor little Yankee gal ridin' gallant for her life and country!" Nevertheless he turned his gangling racker and spurred after her at full gallop.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE A CHAMPION BRONK RIDER!

RIDE 'EM COWBOY! Every second is crowded with danger for Eddie Woods, twice all-round cowboy champion at the famous Calgary Stampede. It sure takes healthy nerves to stay on board a fighting bronk! "Camels are my smoke," says Eddie Woods. "They never jangle my nerves."

"OUT ON THE RANCH I became devoted to riding and smoking Camels. Even though I am in the tenderfoot class I need healthy nerves. And Camels do not upset my nerves. That is important to a woman!"

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

EDDIE WOODS, one of the "top hands" of the cowboy world, says:

"Ten seconds on the back of an outlaw horse is about the hardest punishment for a man's nerves that anybody can imagine. To have nerves that can take it, I smoke only Camels. I've tried them all, but Camels are my smoke! They have a natural mildness, and I like their taste better. Most important of all, Camels do not jangle my nerves, even when I light up one Camel after another."

If you are nervous... jumpy... inclined to "fly off the handle"... change to Camels. Your own nerves and taste will confirm the fact that this milder cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos, is better for steady smoking.

Worthwhile Things Demand Fight More Than Talk

Who was the villain in Margie's tragedy?

The old folks?

Mother Nature?

Or—Listen, and see if your answer agrees with mine.

Dear Miss Robinson—

I dont' know whether I am an awful prude, a scare-cat, or what. Won't you please help me figure it out?

This is the story. We are both 21, and were very much in love. Three months ago I promised to love him always. To marry him. Our folks knew we were engaged, but no one else.

At first everything was so perfect. Our love was REAL. It was good. He would have fought for me, and I would have gone through hell itself for him. As the days went on, I wanted more—I wanted to be his absolutely.

But WE COULDN'T MARRY. It would have meant that his folks and my folks would have been outraged. There would have been very hard feelings. They could never understand what the two of us were going through—how we wanted to be absolutely each other's.

We thought of being secretly married and not letting them know, but that wasn't honorable, it seemed to me. And so things went further and further, until at last neither of us felt we could go on as we were.

Oh, it is so hard to keep RESPECTABLE! And rather than chance losing my self-respect, I let him go. He felt there would be no dishonor in my belonging to him without being married, but I couldn't see it that way, and it made me doubt the quality of his love for me. AND SO WE PARTED.

DIFFERENT VIEWS

Please, please, tell me. Was I a snob? Was I narrow-minded? He understood, I think, how I felt, and he didn't blame me. But, as he said, "We just don't see alike;" and so we've said goodbye.

I know, deep inside me, that he did love me, and that if we could have been married we would have been happy always. But we couldn't trust ourselves to wait.

Was there any other way than the one we took? We didn't want to separate, but things seemed too big to fight against. AND, OH! I STILL LOVE HIM SO!

MARJORIE.

Was there any other way than the one you took?

Of course there was. There is the way which all grown-up people must take when they put childhood behind them and tackle real life. YOU COULD HAVE MADE UP YOUR MINDS TO DO THE RIGHT THING—WHICH, IN YOUR CASE, WAS TO MARRY—AN THEN YOU COULD HAVE GONE AHEAD AND MARRIED.

"But how could we?" you cry. "Haven't I just told you that our folks would have objected?"

COWARDICE

What of it? If you are going to do anything worth while in this life, you will always meet objections—downright conflicts. There's nothing unnatural about that. It's the normal condition of all mature progress. And you knew this to be true. You'd vowed you'd "go through hell for each other."

Pretty words! But when it came to actual performance, YOU fell down. You didn't have the sand to face a few angry words for the sake of your happiness—and so you lost it. As you'll always lose everything fine, unless you're willing to fight for it.

And now you're trying to soothe your bleeding heart by hanging the blame on something or someone else. It's no go, Marjorie! It wasn't the Old Folks—or Mother Nature—or your Beautiful Soul—which licked you, parted you. IT WAS YOUR OWN COWARDICE AND LAZINESS.

You didn't need to marry on the sneak. You didn't need to go in for Free Love. YOU COULD HAVE STEPPED OUT, HONESTLY AND COURAGEOUSLY, AND JOINED YOUR LIVES TOGETHER—and let the chips fall where they would.

Maybe you can do it yet. I don't know. But I do know this—that you'll never find ANYTHING worthwhile, unless you're willing to fight for it as well as talk about it.

Wherever there are two or more men together these days one hears no end of talk about codes, politics, business conditions, gold standard, inflation, Russia and the countless other local, national and world problems.

But when two or more women are together I notice that the talk is still that which has ever been dear to women; love, marriage, home, children and clothes.

The other day at noon I was in the midst of the great throng of business girls coming out of the large office buildings. Girls who must have been working all morning with men and matters of importance. Yet I did not hear any of them so much as mention one thing pertaining to business matters, or world affairs.

I think that's fine!

Young People Agree to Veritzen's Ultimatum

I never have had to think more quickly than I did at Philip Veritzen's question as to where I wished Avis Arlen to report to me for the sartorial arrangements necessary before her attendance as bridesmaid at the wedding of Mary and Noel.

"I shall have to telephone her when and where to meet whichever of us can be spared. Perhaps I would better phone her very early in the morning not to go to your office, but to hold herself in readiness for a shopping tour. Does that meet with your approval? And may I say that you have given her the time, so that she will not worry about staying away?"

Mr. Veritzen cocked an eyebrow at my stilted banality, but answered briskly.

"Of course. The matter is entirely in your hands. I believe I gave you her home address today."

"Yes, I have it," I returned, and then he rose and came over to me with the formal manner with which he invests every arrival and leavetaking.

"You have given me a wonderful evening," he said, bowing low over my hand. "Thank you so much. May I come over some time tomorrow, to see if the roses and the car and the coat have been delivered properly?"

"May you come?" I echoed in my best hostess manner. "You know you are welcome at any hour."

SUPPRESSED DESIRE

"That is so like you," he said impressively, raising my hand to his lips in his courtly, old world fashion. "No," when I rose to accompany him to the door, "do not trouble. I will just say good night to the others, and slip away."

But I went with him.

It did not take much time to speed the parting guest. He evidently was as anxious to go as I was to get rid of him, although I made mine a carefully "suppressed desire," and in a few minutes I was back in the little study, while Mary was ranging up and down the room like some beautiful, feral animal. Her hands were linked behind her, her eyes blazing above her flushed face, and her lips curving into a mirthless smile.

"Has he gone?" she asked tensely, her voice almost a whisper.

"He must be two miles away, at least," I said, smiling, "and Mr. Underwood has promised to notify us at once if he, at any caprice, should come back again. And, to make us doubly sure of being undisturbed—" I turned and locked the door behind me. "Now, dear child," I turned indulgently back to her, "you may say anything you please."

JUSTIFIABLE WRATH

"I've already said it." Mary stopped short, and threw out her hands expressively. "I've shocked Aunt Lillian into a coma, while as for Noel, I think he's made up his mind to be conspicuous by his absence when the wedding march begins to play."

"Mary!" Noel exclaimed with the helpless intonation which he so often uses when his lovely fiancee is in one of her tempestuous moods.

"Well, darling!" She wrinkled her nose at him, and I saw with relief that the worst of her justifiable but uncomfortable paroxysm of wrath was over. "If you do show up at the altar, after the language you've heard me use in the last five minutes, you're braver and a nobler man than even I have dreamed."

She threw herself into a chair as if utterly spent.

"But what's the use of getting all hot and bothered over that polecat of an Avis Arlen?" she said resignedly. "There's no way out of having her. But I'd give a nice, cold turkey sandwich to anybody who'd tell me whether this bridesmaid idea was hers or your father's, Noel."

"I wish I knew." Noel's voice was tired, despondent.

"What does it matter?" Lillian chimed in sensibly. "Don't worry about that now. What we've got to do now is to keep the Arlen so busy that she won't have a chance to get out of here until an hour or two before the ceremony. And I'd advise changing the guard on her every fifteen minutes after she does get here."

"Why?" Noel's startled voice and Mary's sounded together. "What do you mean?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Lead Poisoning Is a Rare Disease Today

Not so long ago lead poisoning was a common and often fatal disease. Little was known about the disease and frequently it was confused with some other ailment. I am glad to say that the disease is now rarely encountered. This is due to our increased knowledge of the disorder and the preventive measures enforced in all plants where lead is used.

Dr. Copeland

When the disease occurs it is usually traced to carelessness on the part of the victim. Failure to observe the necessary precautions in the handling of lead products often results in cases of poisoning. Fortunately the disease is now easily recognized and when proper measures are taken immediately, relief and complete cure are possible.

"Plumbism," or poisoning by lead, occurs when excessive amounts of lead are absorbed by the body. This may follow the drinking of water contaminated by lead, or the absorption of lead through the skin by contact with the metal. It may follow exposure to lead particles and the continuous inhalations of lead dust.

Workers in lead factories are protected against this menace by wearing gloves, aprons and shields. They are guarded against the lead vapors by specially constructed hoods and ventilators. This minimizes the danger of inhaling the dangerous fumes.

Face powders, cosmetics and certain dyes may result in lead poisoning if they contain an excess amount of this metal. Cases of lead poisoning from this source have been greatly decreased as most manufacturers realizing this danger no longer include lead in their preparations. Never use any preparation that contains an excess of lead.

The symptoms of lead poisoning are varied. As a rule, the sufferer complains of colic, constipation, loss of strength and vitality. The gums become discolored and may show a black streak. The teeth are sensitive and feel loose. There is an excessive amount of saliva in the mouth.

In more advanced cases the victim suffers from vague rheumatic pains and has abnormal mental states. Paralysis may occur. This is usually seen in the muscles of the forearm. It produces a weakness of the muscles and an inability to hold the wrists up. So-called "wrist drop" is a characteristic sign of lead poisoning. This sympton is frequently seen in "painter's colic," a form of lead poisoning.

We are indeed indebted to those scientists who have made lead poisoning a rare and unusual disease. It is a preventable disease and with proper measures of protecting against it, should be entirely eradicated.

Contract Bridge

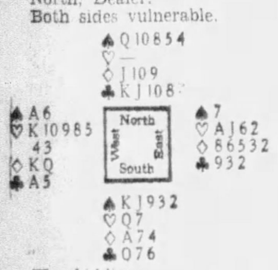
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Misunderstanding Partner

There are many misunderstandings at the Bridge table which arise because one player or the other does not like his partner's bids or plays. Sometimes the arguments in these cases wax exceedingly warm, but now and then they do have a happy ending, as occurred on the hand below:

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3 ♠ (1)	4 ♡ (2)
4 ♠ (3)	Pass (4)	Pass	Pass

1—The explanation of this bid is that South thought North had bid one spade; with 2½ honor-tricks and five of his partner's trump suit, the Raise to three spades is automatic.

2—While West's heart suit lacks tops and he might be stepping into a considerable penalty, the bid of four hearts here cannot be condemned.

3—Of course, North knows that he has not bid one spade and hence the Raise to four is automatic; in fact, North afterwards explained that he considered for a moment bidding five hearts as there appeared to him to be a remote chance for a Slam in the hand. He was deterred from this by the fact that he held no Aces.

4—It really appears as though East might have bid. If his vulnerable partner can bid four hearts over an Opening bid of three spades, then, with four hearts to the Ace-Knave and a singleton in the adversaries' bid suit, East can safely continue the bidding.

In the play South made exactly four spades after his partner had explained to him that he had not bid one spade, but had simply raised his Opening bid of three to four. East and West, it will be noted, could easily have made five hearts, losing a diamond and a club.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North and South vulnerable. The bidding:

South	North
1 ♡	3 ♣

You, North, hold:

♠ 5 ♡ K 9 4 2 ◇ A K 6 ♣ A Q J 10 4

What do you bid?

Answer: Four notrump. This call should need no explanation. The North hand contains two Aces and the King of a third suit and in addition several other plus values not as yet disclosed. There is no better way for North to give a Slam try. If South holds the other two Aces and also holds the King of clubs, he will know that your four-notrump bid is predicated upon two Aces and the King of hearts, and seven will then be reached quite easily. At any rate, there is no better bid that North can make which will, first, force his partner; second, paint a picture of his hand, and third, locate the key cards.

What To Do For It

TAKE—2 Teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Authorities say a large number of people suffer from acid stomach. And think, often, that there is something far worse the matter with them.

If you have Acid Stomach, you can easily trace it. Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," nausea are the usual indications.

To get rid of it, all you need do is this:

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, substituting one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid and get the same result.

Try It—You Will Be Amazed

Try this. It may make a great difference in your life. For this small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to neutralize the stomach acids that cause distress.

After-meal pains and discomfort go. You feel freedom from dull headaches. That "afternoon-fag" you think is "nerves" disappears. You feel like another person.

Get REAL Phillips'

But all "milk of magnesia" is not alike. When you buy, be sure to get the REAL article — Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. This is the kind doctors endorse—judged the safest and most effective laxative anti-acid known.

PERRY AWARDED THREE PLACES ON TEAM

(Note—During the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight, Julius Levin, scholastic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will elaborate upon his All-City High School selections appearing herewith, and also will review the scholastic football situation throughout Western Pennsylvania.)

By JULIUS LEVIN

Perry High School, last year's City League champion, which went through the 1933 season without meeting defeat, although it was held to deadlocks by South Hills, Section II titleholder, and Carrick, is awarded three places on the all-City League football team chosen by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In selecting the boys who stood out consistently during the City League season, the players were judged on their own merits rather than on the records compiled by their teams.

Peabody, champion of Section I, Carrick and South were the only schools, aside from Perry, to win more than one position on the first eleven, each getting two places, while South Hills, champion in Section II, and Allderdice complete the first eleven by placing one player on the team.

BRILLIANT ENDS

One of the outstanding features of the City League campaign was the fine crop of ends developed by the coaches, making it a difficult task to select the best for the important positions.

Ed Spotovich, of South, and Paul Greenwald, of Carrick, are named terminals on the first team, while Fred Schindler, of South Hills, and Robert Hunkele, of Langley, are chosen on the second team. Spotovich and Greenwald, both rangy athletes, stood out for their respective teams throughout the season. Both were exceptionally fast in getting down under punts and their ability to snare passes played an important part in the victories scored by their teams. Schindler and Hunkele were not far behind Spotovich and Greenwald in all-round brilliance.

James Willis, captain of the Peabody eleven, and Billy Webb, of Allderdice, receive the honor of being the best tackles in the City League. Willis has played consistent football in the Peabody line, one of the reasons Dick Meyers' eleven is the Section I representative in the post-season tilt with South Hills tomorrow. His defensive play throughout the season has been remarkable. Very few gains have been made through his sector. Like Willis, Webb, a brother of the Johnny, who was chosen all-City League end last year, played remarkable football for Coach Bob Irvin's Squirrel Hill eleven. His sterling defensive play throughout the season was responsible in a large measure for the fine showing made by Allderdice in the Section I race.

BREVERMAN ON SECOND

David Breverman, of Fifth Avenue, a team that failed to win a game, and almost went through the season without scoring a point, is awarded a tackle position on the second team. Breverman's play throughout the season, regardless of whether he played at tackle or guard, was the shining feature of an otherwise drab season at Fifth Avenue. While it is true that Fifth Avenue never figured in the race, Breverman's work in the Fifth Avenue line gave all opponents plenty of trouble. There were very few backs able to penetrate his part of the line.

Ted Schmitt, powerful tackle of the Carrick High eleven, is the other member of the second team. His fine play in the early stages of the season kept his team in the running until it ran afoul an aroused South Hills eleven.

David McClain, of Perry, and Ray Bombe, of Carrick, are chosen as guards on the first team. McClain was the keystone of the powerful line developed by Coach Chester Smith, while Bombe stood out in all Carrick victories. Both are sure tacklers, few runners being able to gain consistently in their parts of the line. Both are powerfully built and loom as fine prospects for college football. Salvatore Sunseri, of Peabody, and Mike Monaca, of Westinghouse, were chosen as the second team guards. They were not far behind the first two in all-round brilliance.

SEIFERT AT CENTER

One of the most difficult positions to fill was that of center with Homer Seifert, of Perry, John Belie, of Allderdice, running

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Walton in Great Stride. Brilliant Runs by Carter. District Lads Aid Lions. Unappreciated Grid Plays. Irish Coaches Retain Lead. Grimes Plans Comeback.

HIGH RANKING EARNED BY PITT TACKLE

One of Pitt's best bets in the line during Saturday's battle with Nebraska will be Frank (Tiger) Walton, pride of Beaver Falls and right tackle for the Panthers. The Tiger is certain to let himself out in this game. He didn't have such a good day in Lincoln last season, when Nebraska held the Blue and Gold to a scoreless tie, and he is determined to make up for it this time and to show that the Cornhuskers have no terrors for him. Walton's play for Pitt against Notre Dame and Duquesne was far above average. There is little doubt that had the "Mayor of Seventh Avenue," as he is known in Beaver Falls, managed to get off to a better start against Wash-Jeff and Navy, he would be figuring in much of the all-America talk at present, despite his slump against Minnesota. Even as it is, though he will be performing on the same team with such luminaries as Izzy Weinstock, Doc Hartwig and Joe Skladany, his name probably will be mentioned often in accounts of Pitt's remaining games.

Tiger Walton

While it was generally unnoticed, along with the fine guard play of Hartwig, the exhibition that Walton put on at tackle against Duquesne was an unusually fine one. Even a line so good as a whole that there was little chance for any individual stars to stand out, the work of the Tiger was particularly effective, in the eyes of close football observers. Walton not only kept his own side of the field inviolate, but he got in behind the Duke ball carriers when they made sorties to the other side, and several times he pulled down the Red and Blue backs before they could reach the line of scrimmage. Incidentally, it was Walton, not Skladany, who downed Weinstock's missed field goal attempt on Duquesne's three-yard line.

DISTRICT GRIDDERS STAR FOR COLUMBIA

The success of the Columbia University team in winning all of its games except that with Princeton has been due largely to the excellent work of the line, and this district contributed two of the standouts in Lou Little's present forward wall. Right Tackle Ferrara is a Pittsburgher and Left Tackle Jackel's home is in McKeesport. Both are starting regulars.

Columbia and Navy are involved in a dispute over records. The former insists that it never has lost a game to the Middies, and that last Saturday's victory was the fifth for the Lions in five meetings, the others having been scored in 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1932. But the athletic records at Annapolis omit the 11-to-0 defeat of 1900 and declare that Navy walloped the Lions in 1898 by a score of 52 to 0. Since football was barred at Columbia from 1891 to 1899, and the school had no team in 1898, Columbia men wonder where Navy got that game.

IRISH STILL LEAD IN COACH PRODUCTION

Notre Dame's big lead over other colleges in number of graduates coaching major football teams has shown no falling off this season. The Irish have produced more of the present big time mentors than any three other schools combined. There are 35 former South Bend warriors now coaching prominent

PITT, HUSKERS TO STAGE DUEL OF STARS

By JESS CARVER

Saturday's game here between Pitt and Nebraska (and it will be a ball game, too, you may lay to that) looks like a matching of all-America material between Coach Jock Sutherland, of the Panthers, and Dana X. (marks the spot) Bible, of the Huskers.

The rival elevens will offer three all-America candidates each, the Huskers presenting George Sauer, one of the leading fullback candidates of the year; Bernie Masterson, a pip of a quarter and Bruce Kilbourne, an end.

Pitt will counter with Joe Skladany, one of the finest wingmen in the school's history and this year at the very top of the all-star ratings; Frank Walton, hefty tackle, and Izzy Weinstock, stellar fullback. Skladany and Kilbourne and Sauer and Weinstock may be counted on to put up great battles.

SKLADANY, SAUER STARS

Of the six, Skladany and Sauer have the best chance of landing all-America berths. They'll have to come through here on Saturday, however, for the game is to be witnessed by several observers who will have much to say when it comes to placing the all-American this year.

Pitt's victory chances slumped somewhat yesterday when it was learned that Mike Sebastian, star right halfback, who suffered an injury to his side in the game with the Dukes, would not be in condition to start. His place will be taken by Dick Matesic.

Now, Matesic is a good halfback, big and tough and an accurate passer, but he lacks Sebastian's speed, and more important, the Sharon star's change of pace. As a result, the job of the Cornhusker ends will be that much softer.

The Scarlet and Cream squad will arrive in town early tomorrow morning, establish headquarters at the William Penn Hotel and drill in the Stadium in the afternoon.

TECH DRILLS RESERVES

Carnegie Tech's reserves are due to see a maximum of service Saturday as the Tartans tackle Georgetown at Washington. Coach Harpster has not decided whether or not he'll start his entire second eleven, but many of his first stringers are in dire need of rest, and at least seven of the regulars will hear the kickoff whistle from the bench.

For example, Kay Burns figures to start at left end in place of Capt. Stewart; Goodridge will take Lewis' place on the other end of the line; Forsman and Nutter are likely to be at the tackles; Jerry O'Toole will go at center and Sayles and Bowser in the

There's a lot of comfort in a check for 700 odd dollars while the snow flies and the wind howls. Members of the Pirate family won't have to worry about shining up the old dinner bucket this winter now that the mail man has deposited the letters from Judge Landis on the doorstep. Each letter contained a second-place share of the world series money.

Steve Swetonic, Lloyd Waner and Honus Wagner, all in Pittsburgh, have received their certified documents. Each regular on the Pittsburgh club has been rewarded with $762.50, to be explicit. The Buccos were quite generous in their pie; they voted 28 full shares, two of which were subdivided among six persons of a varied hue.

Twenty-six players and coaches, together with Manager Gibson, were voted full shares by Capt. Traynor and his buddies. Those who received the full amount were, Leon Chagnon, Larry French, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt, Heinie Meine, Hal Smith, Steve Swetonic, Bill Swift, Hal Finney, Earl Grace, Tony Piet, Gus Suhr, Tommy Thevenow, Pie Traynor, Floyd Vaughan, Floyd Young, Adam Comorosky, Forrest Jensen, Fred Lindstrom, Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Honus Wagner, Grover Hartley, Otis Crandall, Trainer Charles Jorgensen and Manager Gibson.

Two full shares were allotted to six deserving persons. One share was given Tommy Padden. Val Picinich and Ralph Birkofer. Tommy was given half of this share, Picinich and Birkofer dividing the other half. The other full share went in even portions to Scout Bill Hinchman, Groundkeeper Jack Fogarty and Assistant Trainer George Asten.

So it seems that Santa Claus will come again to the home of the six little Fogartys of Oakland.

Pittsburgh Revolver League Opens Friday

The Pittsburgh Revolver League, enlarged to 12 teams, will open its season tomorrow, according to the schedule released today.

The opening matches find Canonsburg at Fort Pitt, Federal Reserve at Pittsburgh Revolver Club, I. W. L. A. at 176th Field Artillery, Carnegie at Pittsburgh Police and Bellevue at Coraopolis.

Ike Boone Named Toronto Manager

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Ike Boone, former major league outfielder, today was named manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, succeeding Dan Howley, who managed the team last year.

CUBS GET SLAB STAR; SHIRES IS TRADED

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Officials of the Chicago Cubs announced today they had purchased Roy Joiner, lefthanded pitcher, from Oakland, of the Pacific Coast League. Oakland received a player to be named, an unnamed sum of cash.

Joiner will join the Cubs in the spring. He won 20 and lost 13 last year. He is 26 years old, pitched 258 innings and made only one wild pitch.

Buffalo, of the International League, has purchased Lincoln Wasem, catcher, from Joplin, of the Western League. No purchase price was announced.

ART SHIRES TRADED

Houston, of the Texas League, traded George Binder, shortstop, to Oklahoma City, in the same circuit, for Walter Euller, third baseman.

Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester Club, of the International League, said he had traded Art Shires, first baseman, to Toledo, of the American Association, for Bill Sweeney, first baseman, in an "even swap." Shires last year was with Columbus and Rochester, St. Louis Cardinal farms.

WASHINGTON SOLD

Indianapolis purchased Vernon (George) Washington, outfielder, and E. W. (Lefty) Chambers, pitcher, of the Texas League. No sale price was announced. They played last year with Fort Worth.

The Atlanta Crackers announced purchase of H. J. Koehler, infielder, from Milwaukee, of the American Association. The price was not given.

Buffalo Awarded P. G. A. Tournament

BUFFALO, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Award of the National Professional Golfers' Association 1934 tournament to Buffalo was announced here today by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Henry J. Comstock, president of the Junior Chamber, said the tournament will be held at the Park Club, in Williamsville, some time in July.

Daughter Presented To Holahan Family

John D Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne University, became the proud father of an eight and one-half pound baby girl this morning in the Mercy Hospital. It was the second child for the Holahans, their first, Maureen, being two and one-half years old.

The newcomer to the Holahan household will be named Shiela.

SPORT VIGNETTES

We hear and read a lot these days about the fact that Pitt will not meet Duquesne University on the gridiron next fall, and considerable agitation to bring the teams together again, especially in view of the fact that this year's game, their second meeting, was so hard fought and resulted in only a 7-0 victory for the Panthers, last Saturday . . . The hue and cry is all for having the teams meet again next fall and annually thereafter . . . The man on the street can not see how Pitt can afford to drop an opponent capable of drawing 60,000 fans into the Stadium on one of the worst football days of the year.

How about the other side of the picture—Pitt's side? . . . I got it from an unofficial spokesman for the Panthers yesterday. . . . "I am not in favor of having Pitt play Duquesne again next year," he said, "and I'll tell you why . . . I appreciate the fact that the Dukes have come along to the point where they loom as a formidable foe for any team and a great drawing card for Pitt, but suppose they had beaten Pitt last week? . . . How many people do you think we would have for our games with Nebraska next Saturday and with Carnegie Tech on Thanksgiving Day? . . . All I need to do is to go back to the first time Carnegie Tech won over Pitt, some years ago . . . The attendance for the remaining Pitt games fell down to the well-known corporal's guard size, and the crowds flocked out to Tech's bowl.

"The answer is that for many years Pitt has been the big team around here . . . For a long time it had the field all to itself . . . Then it took Tech into the fold and I have told you already what happened . . . Now Duquesne is added . . . The field here is large enough for three teams, but not as rivals . . . Pittsburgh is one of the very few football centers which fosters such local rivalry . . . In Philadelphia, Penn does not take on Temple and Villanova, and, in Chicago, the University of Chicago does not meet Northwestern . . . True, local competition has developed in New York in the last few years, with New York University, Fordham and Columbia, all big teams . . . And, in Cleveland, Case and Western Reserve and John Carroll meet, but they do not draw large crowds.

"It is not that Pitt fears defeat from its local rivals . . . It is because the crowd follows the winner and such a defeat would prove costly in a monetary way . . . Pitt may not draw 60,000 persons with every opponent, but it will draw more consistent crowds with judicial arrangement of its schedule if there are no defeats by local rivals to detract from its own drawing

ANDERSON PICKS NEBRASKA TO BEAT PITT

PANTHERS PAST PEAK, VIEW OF COACH

ANDERSON'S CHOICES

Nebraska over Pitt.
Michigan over Minnesota.
Purdue over Iowa.
Ohio State over Wisconsin.
Illinois over Chicago.
Notre Dame-Northwestern a tie.

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach.

Coming down the home stretch, Michigan has only one serious obstacle between it and the Big Ten football title.

Michigan plays Minnesota Saturday at Ann Arbor, and will finish the season against Northwestern in what should be an easy victory, according to the present outlook.

Hunk Anderson

Minnesota is the only team which has defeated Pittsburgh's great team this year, and the Gophers are the only ones given a chance of stopping the Michigan victory march.

Unless Purdue folds up like many of the teams which managed to defeat Notre Dame and then tie or lose their next game, they should win easily from Iowa. And I don't look for Purdue to stop now, for the Boilermakers have a chance to win the Big Ten title. Only a tie with Minnesota mars the great Boilermaker record, and that 12-threat backfield should be able to find some way to take the Hawkeyes.

The versatility of Michigan and Purdue have kept them at the top of the Big Ten heap this year. Minnesota has stayed up because of great defensive strength, a world of fight, and flashes of offense, not like the consistent offense of the former two teams.

PITT PAST ITS PEAK

Pitt, I believe, is past its peak. I look for the Panthers to drop a close one to Nebraska, although even with an off day they may be good enough to win. Pitt was the best team we played to date this season for sheer power and versatility of attack. I think Purdue was the smartest team we met, but we did more to defend ourselves against Purdue than we did against Pittsburgh. I believe that I was the only person outside of the Nebraska alumni group to pick Nebraska over Pitt last year, and our old Cornhusker rivals came through with a tie. I'll play the same hunch again this season.

MORGANS BANK ON CARROLL

By TOM BIRKS

East End sandlot fans are looking for Hooks Carroll, probably the best halfback of the local sandlots, to be the big threat in the Scott Morgan-Rox Ranger game scheduled for Forbes Field Sunday afternoon.

Carroll is the star of the best backfield that ever represented the East End on the gridiron. One of the few triple threat men in the district, Hooks is a great ball carrier can throw passes accurately and is better than the average kicker.

The Scott Morgans will have plenty of capable men in the backfield Sunday. Ollie Hussey will be at quarterback. He is one of the hardest working and most unasumming players in the district. He rarely carries the ball, but is a wizard at running the team and at blocking.

In the starting lineup, McDowell former Wilkinsburg High School star, will be at halfback with Carroll and the Homewood favorite, Hon Bert, will be at fullback.

The last time these teams met the Rangers won by a field goal, interference on a forward pass placing the Roxians in a scoring position.

backfield. The matter of the guard positions hasn't as yet been worked out.

Elmer Layden gave his Dukes their first hard drill since the Pitt game yesterday, sending his squad through a brisk workout on the Bluff.

The Dukes have not yet received the bid for a game New Year's Day with Miami University in Florida, which is reported coming their way, but when they do, it will be given serious consideration, which means that they'll likely accept.

The Festival of the Palms would be a nifty one in which the Bluffites could wind up their most brilliant campaign. Besides, the team has not enjoyed a real road trip this year, and Coach Layden would like to reward his huskies for their hard work and fine showing by taking them on the southern jaunt.

Moose Fight Card Near Completion

Three of the four bouts have been arranged for the boxing show to be held in the Moose Temple next Monday night. Two 10-rounders will feature the bill with Mose Butch and Charley Burns in the windup, and Anson Green and Billy Holt in the first feature event.

Jack Daicherone will box Whiz Lazor, of St. Michaels, in the six-round opener.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE PRODIGAL DIME—George H. Lewis, Sr., of Baltimore, carved his initials on a dime in 1885 and lost the coin shortly afterward. In 1910, his son George H. Lewis, Jr., engaged as a paymaster in making up a factory payroll, found the dime with his father's initials among the change of the payroll. It was identified as the lost dime of the elder Mr. Lewis, which had in so curious a manner been returned to the family fold after an absence of 25 years.

elevens. Illinois is next, with 15, and Pitt and Minnesota are tied for third place, with nine apiece. Ohio State, Missouri and Vanderbilt boast eight each. Yale has only three, and Harvard and Brown only one apiece, Eddie Casey and Wallace Wade, respectively.

Notre Dame coaches along the main line have won more than two-thirds of their games this fall. Three of the Four Horsemen stand out with a combined total of 19 victories against four defeats and one tie. Elmer Layden tops the trio with eight won and one lost at Duquesne; Jimmy Crowley's Fordham team has won six and lost one, and Harry Stuhldreher's Villanovans have won five, tied one and lost two.

CARTER'S LONG RUNS FEATURE FOUR GAMES

Paul Pardonner, football's surest dropkicker, who in three seasons has failed in only three kicks out of 30 for extra point after touchdown, isn't the only Purdue player to shine at a specialty. Jim Carter's long suit is making distance runs for touchdowns. The Boilermakers' left halfback is the leading climax runner of the Middle West. He has scored on a long run against every opponent this season except Minnesota and Notre Dame, or in four games out of six to date.

Jim Carter

Carter ran 54 yards to a touchdown against Ohio University, 53 against Chicago, 41 against Wisconsin and capped his performances with a 90-yard scoring gallop against Carnegie Tech. The Purdue star's individual feats of making touchdowns in single plays have a striking contrast in the inability of the whole Notre Dame team to get the ball over the enemy's goal line. Carter has made four runs totaling 238 yards count for four touchdowns. Notre Dame has gained 1,434 yards in six games this fall and yet has scored only 12 points, therefore requiring 717 yards, or more than two-fifths of a mile, for each touchdown.

VALUE OF SACRIFICE PLAYS OFTEN UNSEEN

After watching football for many years, and seeing the crowds fail to grasp the importance of numerous heady plays, Harry Salsinger remarks that the quickest way to stop the grandstand quarterback is to give him a hypothetical play to solve. He refers particularly to sacrifice plays. Many of these plays lose ground, but are used purely to get desired position.

Because they lose ground, they look stupid to many spectators, but they are extremely vital to an offense, and often mean the difference between victory and defeat. In that respect, football is like checkers. It frequently sees the loss of yards on one play so that the next can establish a long gain. In checkers, you often sacrifice one man, or two, to take three or more.

GRIMES NOT READY TO HANG UP GLOVE

Burleigh Grimes insists there is another guess coming to those who are tabbing Urban Faber as the only remaining spitball pitcher in the big baseball leagues. The veteran, recently released by the Cardinals, is not ready to admit that his slab days are over. He believes he still can "pour it on 'em," as he puts it. At any rate, he's not going to stagger out of baseball, he says, and he won't hang up his glove until he has found that a comeback is impossible. To this end, he has engaged a famous baseball trainer to work on him at his farm near New Haven, Mo., and says he feels so much better after the preliminary treatments that he is encouraged to believe he will be fit for another attempt at pitching duty when the time for spring practice arrives.

Burleigh Grimes

Grimes could quit baseball without any financial distress, as he owns a well-stocked farm of 230 acres, employs six men to help him run it, and is in comfortable circumstances generally. But he would like to stay in baseball, if possible, and if he decides he can't pitch and win consistently he will consider a coaching job or a minor league managerial post. And Burleigh doesn't believe spitball pitching is going to pass out. He thinks the day will come when the majors will reinstate the damp fling.

School Contenders Must File Records

Elmer E. Carroll, chairman of the football committee of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, requests all schools eligible for championship recognition file their records for the season by November 21.

Scott High School, of North Braddock, is the lone school undefeated and untied in the class A race. East Pittsburgh, East Huntingdon and Ramsay High, of Mt Pleasant, are the contenders in class B, while New Castle, Greensburg and Jeannette are the survivors in the class AA race.

All records and claims should be sent to Elmer E. Carroll, athletic director, Wilkinsburg High School.

Fight Results

At Cincinnati—Vincent Hambright defeated Jackie Purvis, 10 rounds; Paul Thobe and Kid Wright drew, 6 rounds.

At Laredo—Joe Ruiz defeated Johnny Cook, 10 rounds.

At Reno—Al Gomez and Ernie Peters drew, 10 rounds; Louis Rogers knocked out Jimmy Mello, 2 rounds.

At Bellingham, Wash.—Joe Calder and Benny Gallup drew, 8 rounds.

D. O'LOUGHLIN NAMED PITT NET COACH

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, first ranking racqueter of Western Pennsylvania, will serve as volunteer coach of the University of Pittsburgh tennis squad next spring. O'Loughlin, star of the Panther net crew in 1926, 1927 and 1930, succeeds his friend and doubles partner, Dr. Billy McEllroy, who several years ago assumed the post left vacant by the death of the late Dr. Tom Stephens.

The O'Loughlin name has been a byword of Pitt tennis for nearly a decade. Dr. John O'Loughlin, present men's singles champion of the district, came down from Johnstown, along with brother Dave in the fall of 1924. The pair starred on the freshman team of 1925, together with Dr. Jack Lauler and Byron Baur. John played straight through till 1928, in which season he was captain, but Dave took respite during the tough second and third years of medical school and did not wind up his varsity career till 1930, when he and Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore crack, teamed to attain the semi-finals of the national intercollegiate doubles at the Merion Cricket Club.

Billy, youngest of the famed Cambria trio, led the Blue and Gold court array last spring, his second campaign with the outfit. He had previously garnered honors at Shady Side Academy and Duquesne University Prep, as well as with the Panther frosh. He is now studying medicine at Georgetown.

LOCAL TEAMS IN ICE RACE

Several local teams are expected to enter the seven-day ice-skating marathon which opens after the final skating session in Duquesne Garden at 11:15 next Saturday night, to challenge the 10 or more two-men teams from other cities whose entries already have been received.

A record for seven days' continuous skating will be set in this affair. The best mark for six days is 1296 miles. In order to keep up this pace, the skaters will have to average better than 200 miles per day, making a real grind of the affair. Sprints for points which will decide the winning in the event of a tie in the matter of laps covered at the finish will add to the strenuousness of the contest.

The race, together with fancy skating exhibitions and comedy stunts during the week, will not interfere with the regular skating sessions, it is announced. The sprints will be staged only at such times as the patrons are not on the ice.

County Golf Links Show 1933 Profit

With the closing the North and South County parks golf courses for the year last Tuesday, figures reveal that the layouts were operated at a profit of $2,280.53, as against a deficit of $37,676.96 last year.

Raising of the yearly permit fee from $10 to $20 caused a falling off in the issue of these licenses to receipts of $5,940 from the $20,150 gross of the year before, but the daily green fees of $1 showed little curtailment, the figures being $23,728 last year and $22,865 this year.

County Commissioners will determine whether the permit fee is to remain at $20 or be reduced for the 1934 season.

New P. & O. League Indicated by Carr

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov., 15.—(AP.)—Joe F. Carr, promotional director of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, said it was virtually certain three new minor leagues would be in operation next year and that there were strong possibilities others would be formed.

The impetus given the game in Pennsylvania by the legalization of Sunday baseball might lead to the formation of a Pennsylvania-Ohio League as a Class B or Class C circuit, Carr stated. He named Erie, Oil City, Franklin, Sharon, and New Castle, Pa., and Youngstown, Akron and Canton, O., as possible cities.

Names in News

Rumors have been revived in Philadelphia that CHUCK KLEIN, slugging-outfielder of the Phillies, will be traded to the Chicago Cubs for BABE HERMAN, another player and a bundle of cash.

PAUL RUNYAN, WILLIE Mac FARLANE and JOE TURNESA shared in a three-way deadlock for first place in the 36-hole Mid-South open golf tournament at Pinehurst yesterday. They tied at 143.

The unexpected appearance of FRED C. CLARKE, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, revived rumors that Clarke would return to baseball before the 1934 season opened. It is being whispered that Clarke is interested in obtaining the St. Louis Browns.

The ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTH FIELD ARTILLERY polo officials have announced two officials for Saturday's game with North Hills. The move was taken to reduce the number of injuries.

PARIS CANGEY, of Mahoningtown, and CHARLES ARKET, of West Pittsburgh, amateur boxers, were injured yesterday when struck by an automobile while repairing a puncture.

The OMAHA baseball franchise will be placed on the auction block to satisfy creditors, one of them being the Pittsburgh Baseball Club. Omaha owes the Pirates $10,000.

powers . . . We have a great deal of respect for both Carnegie Tech and Duquesne, but I believe I have stated the case properly and without bias . . . The athletic leaders of Pitt have their own problems to face and solve and they are entitled to their viewpoint."

Such a frank expression merits consideration . . . No one would be more anxious to see Pitt and Carnegie Tech and Duquesne meet annually in a triangular series with each of the teams playing its two rivals and see all objections to such an arrangement set aside than this writer, but here, for the present at least, is an answer to the criticisms directed at Pitt for dropping its worthy rival from the Bluff . . . It was not submitted with a view of publication, but was so rationally put that it deserves to be passed on for any enlightenment it may give.—HARRY KECK.

CITY ALL-STAR TEAM PICKED

neck-and-neck. Seifert, however, was chosen because he does everything that a first-class center should do. He is a sure tackler, never missing his man. He is an accurate passer, one who boasts an unusual record of never making a poor pass from center. As a defensive player, there was none in the City League to compare with Seifert. Most of the tackles made by the Perry line have been attributed to Seifert. Another center who stood out prominently was Howard Brien, of Schenley. His work in the final game with Peabody was a factor in Schenley holding the Section I champion to a deadlock.

The backfield of the first team is composed virtually of triple-threat stars. Bob Kornick, quarterback at Perry, was in a class by himself in this department of play. He carried the ball for consistent gains, threw the majority of passes completed by Perry and his punting ability kept the opposition in dangerous territory throughout the season. Without Kornick Perry hardly would have compiled the record it made in 1933. A southpaw in everything he does with a football, Kornick looms as one of the best backs ever turned out by a City League school.

ROBERTS STANDS OUT

Abner (Abbie) Roberts, brilliant Negro star of the Peabody eleven, and George Fowle, of South Hills, who will be pitted against each other in the championship game tomorrow, are chosen as halfbacks. Neither boy had any trouble breaking through for consistent gains in City League games. Roberts has played an important part in all the scoring done by his team. He is a fine broken field runner and an accurate passer. Fowle, besides his running ability, is a fine punter and a great defensive star. His ability to throw forward passes with deadly accuracy has accounted for several of South Hills victories.

The All-City League fullback post goes to Johnny Grad, plunging ace of Grover Washabaugh's South eleven. Grad, like Kornick, can do everything required of an ideal football star to perfection. He is a good punter, an accurate passer, and can rip the best of lines to shreds. Only one team succeeded in stopping South in a City League game and that team won the title. Grad was the key man in the South attack. Bill Devlin, of South Hills, was another crackerjack fullback who acquitted himself with glory.

PIRATES BUY NEW CATCHER

A fifth catcher was added to the Pirate roster last night. Vice President Sam Watters announced the purchase of Walter VanGrofski, first-string receiver of the York club of the New York-Pennsylvania League. The latest addition to the Bucco family is a big fellow who will become of age next month.

VanGrofski broke into the professional game with York in 1931. He played under an option with Clarksburg, of the Mid-Atlantic League, before returning to York. Last season he took part in 84 games and batted .254. The other receivers on the Gibson staff are Grace, Padden, Finney and Veltman.

York is managed by Hubert Fitzgerald, a Pittsburgher, who helped to close the deal for his star catcher.

HADDOCK FIRST CHOICE FOR A. A. U. HEAD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Despite an imposing field of candidates, William S. (Bill) Haddock, warhorse of the organization in these parts, today was designated as the favorite to succeed Avery Brundage, of Chicago, as president of the Amateur Athletic Union, when that body elects its new officers at the National convention which convenes at the William Penn Hotel Sunday.

W. S. Haddock

The other leading candidates for Brundage's toga are Martin Klein and Maj. Pat Walsh, of New York; William Kenny, of Boston; Judge Fred Hoffman, of Cincinnati, and A. C. Gilbert, of New Haven.

MAYOR TO GREET VISITORS

Meantime, Haddock and his aides are getting their convention plans solidified. The big event will officially open Sunday at 9 o'clock, when several hours will be given over to the registration of delegates. At 2 o'clock the many and varied committees will go into huddles.

Mayor Herron will deliver the address of welcome to the delegates Monday at 9 o'clock. The banquet on the same evening will furnish the convention's biggest social sidelight. Election of officers will be one of the big events of Tuesday, the last day of the convention.

Many items of importance will be disposed of during the sessions. Not the least important of these is the question of the metric system of procedure voted into the national organization one year ago, out of deference to the Olympic committee. The metric system of measurement prevails in all Olympic events.

HADDOCK LIKES METERS

The innovation seems to have met with approval in most sections, although it has found foes in the prominent New England and Metropolitan divisions. These sections handle many meets and the old style methods appear to be more popular with the officials of the divisions mentioned.

Haddock, longtime president of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., is a firm believer in the metric system. While the local official admits the American plan has its good points in regard to sectional competitions, he feels that these points are outweighed by the arguments in favor of a universal system. Said Haddock:

"It is my opinion that the convention will vote to retain the metric system."

STOCKS CLIMB AS TRADING EXPANDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—The stock market began to pay some attention to the inflationary aspects of sharply declining dollar rates today and prices of a number of leaders moved up 1 to 3 or more points in expanding trade.

Sterling spurted 11½ cents to another post-war high of $5.51½ and the sympathetic French franc trailed with a gain of .14¾ of a cent at 6.71½, also a new peak for the present currency. The domestic gold price was again unchanged. Equities moved forward steadily after the first hour. It was not a runaway market, but the trend apparently was upward. Wheat rallied nearly 2 cents a bushel, cotton steadied and rubber futures were in demand. Bonds, especially federal issues, drifted lower.

While most banking circles, as well as brokerage houses, continued to display some nervousness over the foreign exchange situation and falling bond prices, various financial observers expressed the opinion that recently voiced fears regarding the government's credit were groundless.

Total money in circulation on November 8, last, it was recalled, amounted to $5,673,000,000. The law requires a gold coverage of at least 40 per cent for outstanding currency. On the old basis of gold at $20.67 an ounce, the government owned metal valued at some $4,250,000,000. At the present gold price, the gold in the federal vaults is valued at more than $6,000,000,000. It is argued that the money circulation actually could be doubled without straining government credit or exceeding the legal limit.

The decline of the dollar, it was believed in some quarters, may eventually bring a rush of foreign capital into American securities. In line with this thought, or hope, it was said that almost any European currency can now buy dollars cheap and with these same dollars American property can be purchased at prices which have not advanced in proportion to the decline in money values.

The impression prevailed in Wall street that the President probably would make some statement soon regarding the monetary program. With Secretary of the Treasury Woodin on an extended leave of absence, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., in charge as undersecretary, there was no expectancy of any change in the fiscal policy which involves the purchase and sale of gold in order to control commodity prices.

WHEAT TAKES SHARP RISE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — Grain prices were higher early today. A sharp advance in British exchange was the chief stimulating factor, with Washington quotations on gold unchanged. Opening ⅛@½ higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ⅜@⅞ gain and subsequently altered little.

Bulls were encouraged owing to an authoritative statement that the 15 per cent domestic wheat acreage cut sought by the administration was not 15 per cent reduction from the 1933 acreage but from the acreage planted for crops of 1930, 1931 and 1932. This is nearly 5 per cent higher than the acreage planted for the 1933 wheat crop, and would indicate that the goal was more nearly being attained than in various quarters has been supposed. After overnight advances, however, had amounted to a cent a bushel, selling increased, and the market temporarily underwent about two cents setback from early top figures, rallying later to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats were swayed principally by wheat, and by word of 21,000 bushels of white corn taken for export, the second lot purchased of late for overseas. Provisions were neglected.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Ickes May Defer Fixing Oil Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes, the oil code administrator, said today it may be necessary to postpone price fixing to permit ample time for all interested parties to present their views.

The Secretary said both consumers and all interests in the oil industry would be given a full hearing.

Messages have been received from oil companies and operators he explained, contending oil prices should be fixed December 1 regardless of what transpired at the price fixing hearings.

Pressed Steel Car Committees Formed

Two committees, one representing preferred and one common stockholders of Pressed Steel Car Company have been organized to represent and protest the interests of each class of stock in negotiations for any plans to reorganize the company. Receivers for the company were appointed in May, this year. George D. B. Greene, 44 Wall street, New York, is secretary for the preferred stockholders' committee, and S. Weldon O'Brien, 15 Broad street, New York, is secretary for the common stockholders' committee.

DOLLAR FEARS SEND CAPITAL TO EUROPE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—A substantial capital flight out of the country has been taking place as a result of fears concerning the dollar.

Inasmuch as the recent weakness of the dollar has been a manipulated one, it follows that there is a tendency to overvalue numerous foreign currencies in terms of dollars.

Mr. Rukeyser

Those who are among the last to take flight may find it difficult to get back into dollars after stabilization without incurring losses.

The accumulation of foreign balances by those who have taken flight is an element of strength for the United States.

After the flight from the franc had reached a climax in 1926, the French government, with the cooperation of the Bank of France, acquired such balances from its nationals, and the possession of such foreign claims contributed greatly to the French economic strength after stabilization.

CONFIDENCE AT EBB

Financial confidence has been at a low ebb, particularly because orthodox folk are out of sympathy with the heterodox monetary experimentation at Washington.

They would like a direct statement from the administration as to its monetary technique, but when asked for such data spokesmen at Washington point out that when European countries conduct monetary operations, they do not reveal their position at the end of each day.

Meantime, while the financial folk are disturbed, the great multitude of consumers maintains an attitude of calm.

There is no evidence in the stores of a disposition to buy very far ahead, as part of an escape from money. On the other hand, with family incomes still greatly restricted, consumers are buying as they get income.

SEE TRADE GAIN

An informal survey of store sentiment around the country indicates a belief that the holiday dollar sales of the department stores will be larger than in the corresponding period last year. With the re-employment of 4,000,000 and the partial improvement in farm buying power, this expectation does not appear unreasonable.

A checkup of the bookings of barometric industrial corporations indicates comparative stability in recent weeks despite the gyrations in financial sentiment.

The approaching period for the insurance of bank deposits adds to the worries of conservatives.

There is a fear that through manipulation there will be an attempt to postpone the introduction of sound banking methods.

WOULD CLOSE BANKS

The opposition would close banks whose capital and surplus are impaired, liquidate them as promptly as possible with government assistance, and then permit widespread branch banking by soundly managed banks.

As a brake against unbridled inflation, it has been suggested that steps be taken now to reduce the expansibility of bank credit.

With the growing belief by some that certain foreign currencies are being overvalued in terms of the dollar, there is increasing criticism against continuing restrictions on normal foreign exchange operations. Some financiers purport ot see opportunities to profit from selling certain European currencies short.

In Memoriam 1-B

Watson, William—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago today:
Sweet memories will linger forever,
Time cannot change them it's true,
Years that may come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.
Sadly missed by his wife and daughter.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Nollie felt a sinking at heart as she heard Mrs. Judson's announcement.

The haughty Rhoda Vane arriving here almost at once! Intruder in Eden she would be. That predatory, appraising air with which she scrutinized the opposite sex . . . at the garden-party in Westchester Nollie had it.

When an attractive man was by, Rhoda would lower her eyes and then suddenly raise them like a challenge, giving him a dazzling look.

Men seemed attracted by her too. Rhoda was tall and beautiful and chic.

But to Nollie there was something serpentine about the quick turn of her small head, her long lissom body.

She was arriving here this evening.

So was Tony!

A jealous fear of which she was ashamed caught Nollie.

This Rhoda had such poise—such queenly airs, as though all her life she'd been accustomed to being kowtowed to.

And men were strange animalies, and if a beautiful woman demanded it they would figuratively bow the knee to her.

But Tony wasn't of that sort. In a woman he liked sweetness and shyness and modesty.

He was sick of the worldly type . . . the women who posed, and lived for dress, and gambled and drank and flirted.

He had told Nollie so. In his impulsive headlong way he had said that meeting her was like walking into a cool, sweet-scented garden after the heat and flurry of the day . . . that her eyes were deep and lovely pools where a man's very soul could sink in blissful rest . . . that he would never weary of being with her.

DISTURBING THOUGHTS

Why fear the advent of this Rhoda Vane, when this was so? She would believe in Tony.

Rhoda was a tall, gold sunflower of a girl flaunting her beauty like a banner. Nollie . . . well, Tony himself had likened Nollie to the shy, sweet wood anemone.

"And he liked REAL people. He's genuine himself. He's real. He'd never take to her."

With such assurance Nollie tried to drive this feeling of depression off. But the thought of Rhoda worried her.

Cynical phrases, rude remarks of this other girl's came back to her.

"She took a dislike to me on sight. And she despised my clothes, because she knew they were cheap. She would like to 'put me in my place.' She'll try. She thinks I'm 'inferior.'"

But Nollie kept these disturbing thoughts to herself. Mrs. Judson was annoyed enough about Rhoda's premature arrival.

"She has such nerve. She knew I didn't really want her here, and so she telegraphed me on the way, and I can't stop her."

"Do you know her intimately?" Nollie asked.

"No. That's the impertinent part of the whole thing. I only met her on the Riviera."

"Is—is she well off?"

"I'll tell the world. Her people struck oil out west some years ago. They were quite ordinary people in Arkansas. She never brings them east—or if they do show up, she never introduces them to anybody."

A HUNTRESS

"But—" it was like biting on a sore tooth, but Nollie must go on, must find out more about this queenly creature—

Mrs. Judson finished her question for her.

"You're surprised at her refined look, her airs? So's everybody that knows her history. I heard about her when she first came to New York, several years ago. She was poor then and got a job on the stage as a showgirl. The names of one or two prominent men were linked with hers, and she figured in at least one scandal. Then oil was found on her parents' farm, and she dropped her job and rushed back home, and stayed right there till she induced them to settle at least half the property on her, though it's my belief she got the lion's share—she took her own lawyer out with her."

Said Nollie quietly: "Then—she has a large income?"

"Rhoda has plenty and to spare, and she no longer has to go after rich men."

"You mean—?"

"She's a huntress. That's her sport. And the other woman's man is her pet quarry."

Nollie's heart gave a great thud at that. Her thoughts flew to Tony . . .

With his beguiling charm, his looks, his feeling for herself, he would be like a challenge and a dare to Rhoda!

Mrs. Judson evidently thought so, too, for she said shortly: "If I could get in touch with her I'd stop her . . . I'm very sorry Rhoda Vane is coming here."

It poured that afternoon so heavily that Nollie couldn't possibly make an excuse to slip out of the house in the afternoon and meet Tony down by the little clearing.

The rain came down in sheets. She had no raincoat and it was a long walk to that part of the lake.

"I suppose the four of us will play bridge all evening," remarked Mrs. Judson. "I certainly shan't let Rhoda play for high stakes."

"Oh, I don't play," said Nollie.

RHODA ARRIVES

The "odd man out" she'd be. She felt a strange foreboding.

Rhoda arrived at six, in a handsome car, accompanied by a maid and chauffeur.

She was wearing a Molyneux sports outfit that had cost $250.

"A drink, for the love of heaven! And then I'll have a hot bath and a snooze, and then Yvonne will attend to me . . ."

Yvonne was the maid she had brought from Europe with her.

Nollie slipped off to her own room as soon as possible.

At seven o'clock, after she'd bathed and changed into her chiffon dress, she went down to the dining-room to give the finishing touches to the table and arrange the flowers, as she had been requested to do by Mrs. Judson.

At twenty past the hour, Tony arrived. He did not wear a dinner jacket, but looked smart and handsome in a dark blue suit.

He had only time for a word or two with Nollie when down the wide and shallow staircase leading from the floor above swept a bright vision.

It was Rhoda making the grand entrance in a bewitching Paris evening gown.

Tony looked upward—stared—halted dead in the middle of a sentence.

"It's I, Tony, really I," twittered Rhoda, beaming at him as she came forward, "and not anybody's ghost!"

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. He explains that he is an attorney, not rich, but has many wealthy friends. Mrs. Judson, displeased, announces that Rhoda is going to visit.

BLACK FRIDAY IN GOLD ROOM, WALL STREET, SEPT. 24, 1869

The Civil War was financed by taxes, paper money and bonds. As in every war, speculation (converting paper money into goods) started.

So in gold, when it ceased to circulate in 1862. An easy opportunity for speculation in gold was offered by the "greenbacks"—paper money, not secured by gold or silver, but by the government's promise to redeem when possible. A clique of speculators drove the price of gold to 164 in greenbacks on Sept. 24, 1869, causing panic by shaking the people's faith in money. In this critical moment the government stepped in, offering gold to sell, thus breaking immediately the high price and bursting the speculators' ring. Many persons lost their fortunes on that day, called since "Black Friday" (not the only one in history). (United States History)

KING LEAR WITH HIS JESTER

Wrongdoing of children and of parents is dramatized in Shakespeare's "King Lear" with matchless power. King Lear divided England between Goneril and Regan, flattering daughters, against the privilege of being their guest with his knights. He disinherits frank Cordelia, later queen of France. The daughters soon break their vow and humiliated Lear with his fool seeks refuge in the wilderness, losing his mind from grief and exposure. Goneril poisons Regan in jealousy over Edmund, who fights Cordelia arriving with a French army to help Lear. Cordelia, captured, is hanged by Edmund; Lear dies by her body. Goneril, exposed, stabs herself; Edmund is slain in a duel.

FRENCH REVOLUTION OF 1848; SECOND FRENCH REPUBLIC

King Louis Philippe (1830-1848) encouraged commerce and industry and led France to prosperity; later, his reign annoyed the people, who saw the preferred nobility and clergy of former years replaced by the rich bourgeoisie. But his government suppressed outbreaks for liberty. About six attempts were made upon Louis Philippe's life. In February, 1848, revolt broke out in Paris, the people erecting barricades and clashing with the military. The King fled to England. The republic was proclaimed with a provisional government. In December, 1848, Louis Napoleon was elected president. (World History)

CALCIUM CARBIDE FURNACE (Chemistry)

Calcium carbide (CaC2) is obtained from lime and coke in the electric arc furnace; shown above. The furnace lined with fire bricks is filled with finely-ground lime and coke (3:2). One carbon electrode is at the bottom, the others being lowered by a crane, until arc is struck. In the evolved heat (over 2,000 °C. temp.) calcium carbide is formed directly: $CaO + 3C = CaC2 + CO$.

Above, right: Electric furnace with continuous electrodes. They are steel casings (tamped with carbon), similar pieces being welded to their tops in the tamping house and lowered at the same rate by which their bottoms are used up. The pit is filled with limestone which fuses and gives, with the carbon of the electrode, molten calcium carbide, drawn off by tapping the furnace. Calcium carbide with water gives acetylene ($C2H2$) used as illuminant and in the oxy-acetylene torch: $CaC2 + 2H2O = C2H2 + Ca(OH)2$.

ROOF COVERINGS OF BUILDINGS (General Science)

The most generally used: 1, Shingles. They are nailed overlappingly to wood sheathing. Shingles can be of wood (cypress, cedar, red wood, pine), asphalt (felt saturated with asphalt with a gravel top coating), asbestos (asbestos fibre and portland cement compressed), metal (galvanized steel, zinc, copper, lead). Slates are natural rocks, split and shaped rectangular, nailed like shingles. 3, Tile, burned clay or cement, nailed to wood sheathing or nailing strips. 4, Sheet metal, placed over felt on top of wood sheathing. Seams may be flat (soldered), standing or batten (in conjunction with wooden strips). 5, Composition, consisting of several layers of overlapping saturated felt cemented together with asphalt or tar pitch; top surface being covered with gravel.

TAPEWORMS (Cestoda)—PARASITIC FLATWORMS (Platyhelminthes) FIFTH ANIMAL PHYLUM

Tapeworms form one group of this phylum. The pork tapeworm (Taenia solium), the beef tapeworm (Taenia saginata) and that of the dog (Taenia echinococcus) and the rat (Taenia nana) are some of the species attacking man. They attach themselves to the intestines by hooks and suckers of their head (scolex). Their body consists of segments (proglottids) provided each with reproductive organs producing fertilized eggs, expelled by the host. This is eaten by the pig, ox, sheep, rat, mouse, etc., developing into an oval crystericus (measle) imbedded in the muscles. Man, by eating infected meat or other food, acquires the tapeworm (above, enlarged). The Taenia echinococcus of the dog (left) is most dangerous to man. Its eggs introduced in man's body develop embryos which migrate into liver, lungs, brain, kidneys, bones, etc., causing fatal complications. Presence of tapeworms can be determined by microscope. Master Tricks!

It is assumed that all the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity have been following the adventures of "Inspector Day" in his hunt for "The Duke." Will this master detective apprehend this master criminal and how will he do it? Every boy and girl sending in an advance solution to the problem before Wednesday night, November 22, written in 50 words or less, will be mailed a dandy magic trick with full instructions how to do it, whether your solution is right or wrong. Send your letter to "Inspector Day," Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hair is dependent upon health and vitality. Remember that man Samson? He was a big, strong fellow until his sweetie-mamma sheared off his brain mat. The cave man is pictured with a bushy floor mop coiffure and ferocious whiskers; maybe sunlight grew them. At any rate, beauty specialists find that sun lamps help the winter coat of fuzz to grow thick and lustrous. Nervousness, indigestion, loss of sleep take their toll from the glorious crest. Fever wrecks the whole structure, though a new growth pops out in time. If locks are moulting, let up on worry and unnecessary activities, have a tonic friction once a week, get yourself generally in form, and the old thatch will perk up, look young again.

Hair dyeing is an art, it is not easily accomplished by the amateur. Bleaching is easier, but there are right and wrong ways of doing it. If too much ammonia is added to the peroxide the shafts of the hair are weakened. They become dry and harsh, the shampoo agent rolls off as water flows over a duck's back. The first dyeing and the first bleaching are likely to be successful. It is that business of touching up the new growth at the roots that brings trouble. The coloring agent must go on there and there only; it is not to be brushed or combed through the whole length of the hair.

New Kind of Conference

Can we ever have peace through the medium of penciled notations on the margins of foolscap paper?

Starting with the Versailles scenario we have had a series of agreements, pacts and codicils which have been little less than 90-day notes. They all wound up in the ragman's bag.

Of all the historical documents only two seem to have become dignified and mellow with age. One is the Magna Carta or great charter delivered in 1215 by King John to the English barons at Runnymede. The other is the Constitution of the United States, much amended and repealed, but still chugging up those hills as surefooted as a mountain mule.

All the other momentous parchments have been abrogated, nullified, repudiated and otherwise cancelled. Even our Constitution has suffered from legislative doctoring and majority and minority medication.

That's why we keep it in a burglar proof vault in an effort to forestall patriotic tinkering and enthusiastic improvements.

The original safety deposit vault of the Magna Carta was a hollow oak. The Barons knew the squirrels would be satisfied to nibble the acorns and leave the charter alone. But nobody has thought of a plan to keep the squirrels out of the Locarno pact or the Geneva wills and testaments.

A modern treaty conference serves but one object. It's food and lodging for the delegates.

But the job of making a pact operate after being signed is a tougher assignment than handcuffing a centipede.

Everybody desires peace but no one gets it. Nobody wants war but everybody fights.

So why not reverse the conference process? Instead of the nations slapping each other on the backs and telling how friendly they are let 'em organize a war conference.

At the battle debate there would be nothing but bulldozing, threats and horrible promises. Each delegate would tell how fierce he was and what he was going to do to his distinguished contemporaries.

Every man would be thoroughly intimidated, frightened and timorous of the future. He would be scared into a comatose condition of angelic neighborliness. Even if this plan doesn't work it is as good as the others.

Slum Removal Progress

The Developments in the Campaign for Better Houses For the Masses Are Encouraging.

Encouraging developments are reported in the campaign for the eradication of Pittsburgh's slums.

In his address before the Better Business Bureau Mayor-elect W. N. McNair advocated a general razing of the old, insanitary, ramshackle structures in which multitudes of Pittsburghers are forced to live and the erection of decent houses in their stead.

He will have the support of at least five members of the new Council in this program.

One of the Councilmen-elect, Representative John J. Kane, has introduced in the Legislature three measures providing for the formation of limited dividend housing corporations to put the slum clearance movement into effect.

And 27 Pittsburgh architects announce they have made some surveys in furtherance of the project and are enlisting the support of financiers, real estate men and leaders in the building industry.

There is scarcely any other plan for the improvement of Pittsburgh that would bring greater benefits. The favorable effect on business would be great, for the project would give work to many men and create a big demand for building materials produced here.

Vastly more important, in our estimation, is the favorable effect that slum clearance would have on health, morals and happiness.

Tracing Disease

Pittsburgh's Wide-Awake Health Department Has Another Achievement to Its Credit.

Under the efficient direction of Dr. W. W. McFarland, Pittsburgh's alert Department of Health has completed another creditable piece of investigation.

A fatal case of amoebic dysentery was discovered. It was very important that the source of the disease be learned, that protection might be given to other persons exposed to the danger.

The sufferer was a transient. His movements were traced, and it was proved that he contracted the ailment in Chicago, the source of numerous other cases of amoebic dysentery that have been reported in various parts of the country.

It is a comfort to know that the Health Department is constantly on the alert, constantly on the watch for focal centers of disease, with a view to safeguarding Pittsburghers' health.

Dr. McFarland has been remarkably successful in tracing cases of infectious disease to the point of origin.

During the World War, as medical officer at Camp Upton, he definitely established, by painstaking investigation, how the influenza epidemic came to invade the camp.

We are all prone to take the protection of the city's health as a matter of course. Let us not forget to give due credit to the watchfulness of the Health Department.

The Public as Art Jury

The Fact That the Popular Award Never Coincides With the Official Award Is Significant.

Visitors to the international exhibition of paintings at Carnegie Institute are again asked to indicate by vote which picture they consider best. A prize of $100 will be given the artist whose canvas received the most votes.

This will be the ninth such award. In the eight previous elections the people ignored the pictures chosen as best by the official jury and bestowed their favor on other pictures. It will be surprising if they do not follow the same course in the present exhibition.

It must be discouraging to those who are trying to educate the people to appreciate art that notwithstanding the many exhibitions and the many lectures on the exhibitions the public still fails to see eye to eye with the artists and art museum directors who make the official awards.

In their childlike innocence the people persist in picking pictures that are beautiful or lifelike as most deserving of esteem.

Planes for $700

Why Not?

"Flivver" planes to sell as cheaply as low-priced cars have been talked about for years, but, like the weather, nobody has done much about them.

Hence it is interesting to note that Eugene Vidal, Director of Aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, is proposing the manufacture of 10,000 of them for sale to licensed and student pilots and mechanics at the low figure of $700 each.

There are 14,000 licensed pilots in the country, 11,000 student pilots and at least 8,500 airplane mechanics who can fly now or could learn with a minimum amount of training.

Mr. Vidal proposes that the aircraft industry go into mass production of two-seater planes with a landing speed of not more than 25 miles an hour as a safety factor, and believes that $700 would cover the cost of each if 10,000 of them could be turned out.

Putting low-cost planes on the market would be a great stimulus to business recovery in many lines besides the airplane industry, and there seems no engineering reason why a plane of that type and price is not as feasible now as the small car was 15 or 20 years ago.

How to Blow Your Nose

A Little Understood Art.

The 120,000,000 men, women and children in this country who now and then have colds in their heads can avoid them by learning to blow their noses properly. This on the authority of a French scientist, who has been lecturing his own countrymen on the gentle art of using the handkerchief.

It is as simple as saying "good morning," or "Bon Jour." The main thing to remember, says our Frenchman, is that only one nostril should be blown at one time. Most people pinch the nose together, thus sending back all the microbes into the throat or ears, where they are only too happy to remain. This is how colds begin.

Waiting on the States

(Copyright, 1933.)

Secretary Ickes, as Federal Public Works Administrator, has appealed again to the Governors of ten States, asking them to expedite the awarding of road-building contracts and thereby make jobs for unemployed citizens.

The Public Works appropriations include large sums that have been set aside to lend the States for highway work. Some States are proceeding to put their allotments to work. Others are negligent—and it is this delay on the part of certain States that is holding back the Federal program.

But how long does the Federal Government need to wait on dilatory States?

As William Randolph Hearst has frequently pointed out, this country must have express highways extending from coast to coast. Such highways can be completed by linking up and widening existing good roads. In States able to do so portions of the work can be done by the States themselves with Federal aid. Other portions, where the States are poor or where population is thin, must be provided by the Federal Government itself.

To construct these transcontinental highways now, when costs are low, will make thousands of jobs, improve our internal communications for all time and—in event of war—contribute immeasurably to our national defense.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fish markets—along the Seine, Billingsgate and Fulton street—have always interested me. Chiefly, I think, because of the harmony and discord of smell. Fulton Market in this musical metaphor is a cat walking across a piano. A blare of odors.

The stranger there, if he has a keen nose, can disentangle the strains of the mass effect, just as a music lover is able to deafen himself to the symphony and follow the steady notes of an individual 'cello. He knows the haddock from the cod several stalls away.

But the hardened Fulton Market fishmonger—and you cannot talk to one five minutes without being told Al Smith began life there—smell nothing. His nose becomes atrophied. After several years he becomes entirely immune from fishy spindrifts. How wonderful nature is!

It is at dusk that the aromas fairly assault the senses. For men in high-hipped rubber boots begin flushing stalls for next day. The gutters run with chopped oddments, some already in a state of decay. Another thing I learned. Fishmongers as a class are fond of fish as food.

At 5 a. m. big hotel and restaurant buyers wander in and out Fulton's rows of dead fish. Nothing can look so dead as a fish. It is difficult to believe these beautiful specimens along with the comic monstrosities with shiny green whiskers have ever sported gallantly in the sea, making love, building homes and seeing to it the world is generously supplied with their flabby corpses.

She is one of those vague hovering women who stands at street corners when Broadway becomes an empty tunnel of light. She seemed bewildered, minced shyly toward me, stopped, then came on. Rather breathlessly she said: "Walk toward the subway with me, please. There's a policeman down the block. I'm not what you think, although I was about to be." She went down the subway steps. I went on wondering!

Thingumabobs: Roy W. Howard was once an E flat cornetist in an Indianapolis newsboy band . . . Judge Samuel Seabury's grandfather was the first Episcopal bishop in America . . . John Golden can play any tune he ever heard on the piano by ear . . . Richard Whitney, of the Stock Exchange, rides horseback five miles daily before breakfast . . . Col. Lindbergh is a chili addict, the hotter the better . . . Nothing relaxes Mussolini like playing a violin . . . The composer of the cowboy song "Round Up" was born in the New York Ghetto . . . New York's Chinatown thrilled Janet Gaynor more than anything else.

One of the staunchest trios of New York's literary world was composed of Richard Harding Davis, John Fox, Jr., and Charles Dana Gibson, when each was in full flush of popularity. They usually lunched at the Brevoort or at Delmonico's, and romantic ladies filled nearby tables just to gaze and dream. Gibson's girl and the Gibson man were as popular as Mickey Mouse today. Gibson was the artist, Dickey Davis was the Gibson man in real life, and John Fox, Jr., later to marry the prima donna of the day, Fritzi Scheff, was turning out romantic best sellers of his native Virginia.

At the curb in front of Dear Old Del's, as Delmonico's was known, was the cabbie Chauncey, whose resplendent hansom was known to every saunterer of the avenue. The bulk of his clientele was from Canfield's gambling house after midnight. He was the only jehu to limit his customers to those in full dress and silk hat. To others he was sorry but engaged. He discovered no one in the splendor of full dress tipped lightly. And if the customer had a fortunate night at Canfield's a $50 fee was not unusual.

At a theater I noticed among program credits: "Dog purchased at Soandso Shop." I wonder what becomes of such dogs when a show, as Variety calls it, folds.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

If I Could Start All Over Again!

Ever hear a soul talking to itself? Here is the record of a soul talking to itself.

Whose soul? Any soul. All souls. All the souls in America talking to themselves out of the bedlam, the despair and discouragement of 1933. Your soul—my soul—all of us talking to ourselves. All of us facing the same things, wishing the same things. Listen!

Oh, if I could only make a fresh start!

What's the use of going on like that? Waking each morning to the same dark thoughts—thinking what a fool I've been, and the mess I've made of everything! Falling asleep each night with the same useless tear—remembering the dear ones who've gone, the happiness that's over forever, the chances that will never come again!

What's the use of living, when everything's spoiled?

But suppose I could begin all over again—wipe out all the old mistakes, forget the bitter memories, rid myself of the hangovers of fear and hate, resentment and regret?

If I could only start all over again, like that, how different life would be! So clean and free, so honest and happy and proud!

Never again—never, never again!—would I do such fool things. For indeed, I never wanted to do them. Not really! But somehow I just got into a jamb, then everything went wrong! But if I could make a fresh start—

Why, then, I'd just do the things I really want to do—the big, brave decent things I've always wanted to do. I'd show the world my real self, my true self.

But I can't do that now, with all this old record behind me. There's no use even trying. For, no matter what I do, that record will be held against me, will drag me down.

Oh, God, why does life have to be like this? Why can't we start all over again?

BUT WE DO START ALL OVER AGAIN! EACH DAY WE START ALL OVER AGAIN, FRESH AND FREE, WITH A CLEAN SLATE BEFORE US!

Yes, I know what you're going to say—"We can't shake our yesterdays.' That's true; we can't. But what of it? Why be so tragic about our yesterdays? Full of mistakes? Of course they were. But a mistake isn't necessarily tragic.

OUR MISTAKES ARE AS MUCH A PART OF OUR GROWTH AS OUR SUCCESS; AS NATURAL AND AS NECESSARY.

That isn't Pollyanna talk. It's simply truth. I'm writing this beside a huge oak. The trunk of the old oak is a tower behind my back. Its roots spread out in walls on either side. They sink into a dark loam, very rich and deep.

The life of the huge tree is drawn from that loam. Yearly the roots sink in more deeply, sending the stored nourishment out into the thickening trunk, the spreading branches. Wonderful soil! Still, after a hundred years of storm and drought and frost, it is giving the old oak "a fresh start."

Yet here is a strange thing. That soil in which the oak lives, on which it feeds, WAS MADE BY THE OAK ITSELF. IT WAS MADE FROM THE FALLEN LEAVES AND ACORNS, THE SPLINTERED BRANCHES, THE SCORCHED BARK OF THE OAK'S OWN GROWING LIFE.

IT WAS MADE FROM THE OAK'S YESTERDAYS!

Discouraged? Disgusted? Wishing you could "wipe out all the old mistakes?"

Why wipe them out? USE THEM, INSTEAD! They aren't a "shameful record" which you should forget—which you must eliminate before you can be free. They are the natural result of your own growth—of the things you have done in your effort to live—of the things that have happened to you. They are as natural as soil.

THEY ARE THE SOIL OF YOUR SOIL. ROOT IN THAT SOIL—AND GO ON!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

What Women Don't Tell

A man's love for a woman is always "blind"—until some other woman comes along and hands him a microscope.

Of course, husbands and wives should be frank and honest with each other. But the woman who never lets a man have a private thought is putting the "sin" in sincerity.

A man is not actually middle-aged unless he can remember when he had to chew a peppermint to disguise the cocktail, before kissing a girl, instead of wiping off the lip-rouge, afterward.

The Tired Business Girl is not looking for somebody to "mother." What she wants is a co-operative husband with a Boy Scout training, who can fix his own bath, find his own sox and turn the toast while she fries the bacon.

* * *

Any bright girl knows that a man likes to think of himself as "inscrutable," and that it is always fatal to love for a woman to let him know that she is "wise" to him.

* * *

Even if the stay-at-home girl were not almost as rare as a roller-towel, the business girl would be a better matrimonial bet; because, no matter how much a man may admire a parlor ornament, what he needs, in these times, is a working partner.

* * *

No matter how much a woman may harden her heart against men, they can always manage to get around her so long as her vanity remains as soft and impressionable as a custard pie.

* * *

A woman may be planning to junk her husband as worthless, but the moment she sees another woman trying to appropriate him, his value goes up like the thermometer in July.

Somehow, woman's far-famed intuition never seems to tell her when she has reached the last kiss.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Perhaps you praise your children too much.

To encourage them you commend them out of all proportion to their attainments.

Naturally if a child receives only compliments from you it will begin to believe that its performances are nearly perfect.

The result will be less effort to improve and a more puffed up ego.

You should not complain about everything a child does, certainly.

But you should give credit for good points together with just criticism in a kind and helpful way that will make for proficiency.

Most parents have biased opinions in regard to their own children.

They seem to believe, actually, that their children are brighter and finer and more talented than any other children.

They have an exaggerated opinion of their children's accomplishments.

It is easier to change a child than a grown person and, in the formative years, children should be guided upwards, criticized and admonished occasionally; not spoiled by too much praise.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Sunsets

Through many years I have watched sunset skies
Of rose and mauve, of amber, turquoise, jade,
And I have seen the hues of paradise
Flare out in rainbow flame and fleetly fade.

I know where one tall pine against the west
Stands up to snare the young moon, dropping down;
And I have seen, above a high hill's crest,
The bright cloud-towers of some celestial town.

Oh, all the jewels, all the flowers are there,
Heaped for a little time along the sky,
And this their message; How can man despair,
When day in such triumphant mood can die?

Text for Today

Woe unto him that buildeth his house by unrighteousness, and his chambers by wrong; that useth his neighbour's service without wages, and giveth him not for his work.—Jeremiah, xxii: 13.

Human Side of the News

Arthur Hind and His Famous Stamp Collection—Fabulous Sums Expended by Rich Philatelists

By Edwin C. Hill

TWO MEN in New York City are winding up a task which has taken them through a collection of albums much like the albums in which we paste up the pictures of the family and friends made at the seashore during the summer vacation. These books are picture ones, too, but not of Uncle John and Cousin Nellie. The portraits in them are of kings, queens and emperors, of ships, animals and a thousand and one other things.

Among them is a small piece of paper, reddish violet in color and about an inch square in size. It bears the legend, "British Guiana, One Penny." It is a postage stamp issued in 1856 by that colony of the crown. It is the philatelic prize of the world, the Kohinoor of postage stamps. For that scrap of paper the late Arthur Hind paid out $34,198—American dollars of gold standard value—back in 1922, outbidding the King of England and all others, when it was put up for sale in Paris at the disposal of the collection of the Austrian Count Ferrari, who was perhaps the most avid of all the world's stamp-hunters.

The Count's eminence passed on to Mr. Hind, whose death in Miami last March, threw on the market a great collection valued at anything between $500,000 and $2,000,000. His will ordered the collection to the auction block, and the two appraisers he named have announced that, after the completion of their work, the auction will follow in 1934.

That auction will be big news. Men and women will travel from all parts of the globe to attend it and to bid for the prizes of the philatelic world. And those of us who are not familiar with the hobby are going to be staggered by some of the prices that will be paid, and eagerly paid, even in these thin times.

Arthur Hind, born in England, came to America about 35 years ago to engage in the prosaic occupation of manufacturing plush. He settled in Utica, New York, and soon had a prominent standing in the business and banking circles of that community. A friend got him interested in stamps and he went to it in a big way.

Pays Fortune For Duveen Stamps

WHEN THE Duveen collection was put up for sale, Hind carried it off by paying $170,000. Again, it was his $50,000 which put in his steel safes two white envelopes which bore two cancelled stamps, the one and two penny denominations of the Mauritius Post Office issue. He paid $12,000 for a provisional stamp issued by a postmaster of Boscawen, N. H., and $5,000 for a similar one originating in Lockport, N. Y. Hind did most of his buying at auction, believing that the competitive bidding fixed values more truly than private sales.

Shortly before his death Hind met King George of England at a stamp exhibition in London. The King jokingly remarked:

"Too bad you were outbidding me the other day."

Hind protested that he did not know that his opponent at the auction was representing the King, and offered to present the stamp to the monarch's collection.

"No, no," said George V. "I'll tell you what I'll do. I have a stamp you'd like to own. Let's swap."

Which they did.

For many people stamp collecting seems to hold the same fascination that art, books, antiques, and gems have for other connoisseurs. And sometimes there is a rare stroke of fortune, such as occurred in the sale of the 24-cent airmails issued by this government. A purchaser of a sheet of 100 stamps turned them back to the clerk, saying that they were valueless because of a glaring misprint. A collector next in line almost collapsed in his anxiety to get hold of that sheet of inverted stamps. He snapped them up, and all the power of the United States government couldn't take them from him.

Each one of those 100 stamps is valued at $2,750 or $275,000 for all. Col. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, is supposed to have paid $15,000 for a block of four.

The President A Stamp Collector

THE MOST distinguished of all stamp collectors is the President of these more or less United States. As a small boy, Franklin Delano Roosevelt was bitten by the stamp bug. He set out to gather the greatest—the most varied—collection in America. His collection embraces some 10,000 stamps representing the gleanings of more than 40 years. Its value is great, but it is not for sale and has never been publicly exhibited.

On March fourth, when Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House, his collection formed one of the most carefully guarded sections of the Rooseveltian luggage that went from Hyde Park and the town house in Manhattan, and a good chunk of storage space is required in the White House to accommodate the numerous bulky books and envelopes that embrace the collection.

Since the government, and especially its State Department, is constantly receiving cancelled stamps on correspondence from every corner of the world, fresh issues of interest almost daily find their way to the President's desk. A man of many eager interests, stamps have a special power to please and relax the man who rules us.

Firearms Control Sought In War on Crime

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is paving the way for drastic measures by the organized forces of government to rid this country of habitual criminals and organized crime.

New legislation will be requested when Congress reconvenes to strengthen the arm of the federal government in dealing with major crimes punishable by federal law and in aiding state and local authorities in dealing with major crimes punishable under their own laws.

Without waiting for Congress to reconvene the President has entered into an agreement with machine gun manufacturers to limit the sale of machine guns to federal, state and municipal authorities and to the holders of special purchase permits to be issued only by the Department of Justice.

Under a comprehensive code for dealers in firearms, which the President will soon approve, they will bind themselves to abide by legislation which Congress will be urged to enact at the coming session, placing the sale of revolvers under the most rigid restriction.

Recommended by Senate Committee

THESE INITIAL steps toward breaking up of racketeering and other classes of organized crime were recommended to the President by the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Commerce. Under the leadership of Senator Copeland, of New York, this sub-committee is investigating racketeering and other crimes in the principal cities of the country.

Hearings held by the Copeland Committee in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and other large cities developed ample evidence upon which both the executive and legislative branches of the government will be warranted in resorting to drastic measures to rid this country of kidnapers, racketeers, blackmailers and other major criminals.

Supplementing the efforts of the Copeland Committee are those of the Department of Justice, which is making a special study of racketeering and other forms of organized crime.

The President's recommendations to Congress, reinforced by the recommendations of the Copeland Committee, will provide a plan of campaign against major criminals which the states and local authorities, with the support of the federal government, will be urged to carry out.

Among the most helpful witnesses who have given testimony before the Copeland Committee were the officials of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. These law-enforcing officers deal directly with all sorts and conditions of crime and criminals. Their recommendations for combating both have a practical value.

These experts urge the passage by Congress of a federal habitual criminal act which has already been recommended by the President's Attorney General, Mr. Cummings.

Recommendations Of Police Chiefs

THIS MEASURE would provide that convictions for felonies by State courts, as well as convictions for felonies in Federal courts, shall be computed in the total convictions.

Under such laws, after a certain number of convictions, a criminal would be adjudged an habitual criminal. The court would have to sentence him either to imprisonment for a long term of years or to life.

The police chiefs also recommended that Congress make it a Federal offense for a person to go from one State to another after committing a felony, or to transport stolen property across a State line.

They would have the States add to their penal codes that provision of the Federal code, which makes it a crime for a citizen to withhold information in connection with a felony.

They also favor Federal laws preventing the importation of weapons by private individuals, the interstate shipment of revolvers, pistols, machine guns or offensive gas, or their transportation by an individual from one State to another.

The findings of the Copeland Committee will be printed by the time Congress convenes. These, with the studies which the Department of Justice will submit, will leave neither the President nor the Congress with any reasonable excuse for delaying longer the most effective warfare the Federal Government can wage, to aid the states in ridding this country of the curse that organized crime has put upon it.

Isn't It So?
